Hostile Commuters Heard; Span Board Reverses Vote

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted unanimously yesterday to rescind their decision to eliminate commuter books after June.

The 13-0 vote came after two hours of generally hostile protest from commuters, but the directors did not discuss why they reversed their Dec. 12 decision to eliminate the books.

Yesterday's unprecedented special meeting of the full board was called on Monday by president William Moskovitz of San Francisco after Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said he needed five months to order July books.

Rescinding the decision was mentioned by several directors on Jan. 9 at the regular board meeting, but the talk came to nothing. Luehring, however, said a quick decision was needed to avoid running out of books after June.

In a report yesterday to the board, Luehring stressed that traffic would be slowed if toll collectors had to take time to handle money instead of commuter tickets.

No attempt was made yesterday by any director, however, to return the price of the 25-round-trip book to $6.50, the price in effect until the hike on Dec. 26 to $10.

Several directors repeatedly emphasized that they will vote to eliminate the books—or at least any discount for the books—after the district actually operates its own transit system.

Luehring said that the earliest date new buses were expected to be delivered was September, thus the bridge board could wrestle anew with the issue of eliminating the books before the year ends.

Also reporting yesterday to directors was the district's auditor, Gordon E. Dahlgren, who figured that $3,195,000 was needed, but unavailable, for the

Sour Notes Hit Giveaway As Brody Vanishes, Check Account Runs Dry

SCARSDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Mod millionaire Michael James Brody Jr. decided to get away from it all today after the crowds and flurry created by his announced $25 million giveaway became a bit too much.

As word spread that Brody had left the guess was he headed for a Carribbean island—the president of the Scarsdale National Bank and Trust Co. confirmed reports that the 21-year-old checking account balance was not sufficient to cover his check writing activities of Friday. He said the earliest a deposit could be added would be Monday.

And the telephone at Brody's rented $400,000 home here, whose number he took pains to publicize, had been changed to an unlisted number.

Police kept the barricades up on Paddington Road leading to the house but only a few hangers-on remained from the crowds that gathered in this normally sedate suburb Friday.

Brody, heir to a margarine fortune, told the world Thursday that he had $25 million to give away and was promptly besieged by visitors, telephone callers and telegrams requesting a piece of the action.

At one point he was surrounded by 15 strangers as he sat writing checks at the kitchen table. He cried out that he was down to his last three blank checks and asked police to clear the house.

Friday afternoon Brody and his bride of 11 days, Renee, drove to their luxury apartment on New York's East Side and then wandered around the city ready to pass out money to those who caught his fancy.

The money madness spread abroad. In Paris, switchboards of the French National Television network and Radio Monte Carlo were flooded with calls after broadcasts there of the story. All the callers wanted Brody's address and phone number.

In Manhattan reports of a Brody giveaway office opening on Broadway brought hundreds of fund-seekers to a tiny 14th-floor cubicle.

Requests ranged from cash to buy a helicopter to $25 to pay for a month grazing for a horse. Joseph Cassella, a "professional dynamite blaster," drove all night from Weirton, W.Va., to ask for $1 million.

He said he needed the money to build a pig-iron melting plant that would provide jobs for Weirton, which he said was in the heart of the poverty belt.

By late Friday afternoon Bro-

San Rafael Schools Tax Rates On Ballot

The San Rafael Board of Education today voted to seek tax rate hikes in the elementary and high school districts at a June 2 election.

The board will ask a 40-cent increase in the elementary district and 30 cents in the high school district. Board members said the raises are needed merely to maintain present education programs.

The present general purpose tax rate limits are $2.25 per $100 assessed valuation in the elementary district and $1.75 in the high school district. Total tax rates are $3.275 in the elementary district and $2.295 in the high school district.

The only dissenting vote came from trustee Paul L. Jones on the vote to seek the increases. Jones later voted for the motions setting the amount of increase and the election date.

Jones said the district should operate within the present tax rate for a few years making program cuts as necessary, until the public came to the board asking for a tax raise.

A cutback now, trustee Lawrence I. Kramer, Jr. said, would mean a decade's setback for education in the district.

Jones later objected that the 40-cent and 30-cent increases were too small and advocated seeking larger increase so needed improvements in the education programs could be made.

The board scheduled the election with the June primary rather than setting an April date to allow more time to develop election ammunition.

Kramer also said that the proposed April 14 date came at the income tax deadline. At income tax time, Kramer said, "I wouldn't even vote for motherhood."

About 25 persons turned out for the board's adjourned meeting this morning.

Auditorium Needs $150,000 More?

A minimum of $150,000 will be needed to make the new Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center a full-quality, fully-functioning 300-seat facility. Of that amount, $100,000 can come from the landscaping outlay included in this year's budget.

This report will go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors from Assistant County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella and Executive Director Leon G. Kalimos of Fair-Marin on Tuesday.

The first phase of the $2.5 million building is expected to be completed in June this year. The second phase, costing another $500,000, would expand the building to a 2,100 seat auditorium.

Fair-Marin officials had agreed to raise the $500,000 for the second phase completion, but they told the supervisors they will need a year or two to raise the funds.

Supervisors last month asked the county administrator and Kalimos to see how the building could be made usable without completing the second phase.

Campanella and Kalimos found that when the first phase is completed, an additional $150,000 would provide the following:

Demonstrators Marching At I-J

Approximately 500 strike sympathizers joined printers union pickets in intermittent heavy rain today in a demonstration outside the Independent-Journal Building, forming a human chain that ringed two blocks in San Rafael.

San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21, which struck the paper Jan. 17 had sought support from throughout the Bay Area, and by 11:30 a.m. demonstrators included students from the University of California and other schools, as well as members of other unions, their families and friends.

Chanting as they passed the I-J, the marchers circled the two blocks bounded by Mission Avenue, A, Fourth and B streets.

Oakland Has Slide Troubles, Too As Crack Threatens Plush Homes

OAKLAND (UPI)—"It's the most helpless feeling in the world," said Mrs. Yvonne Behiel. "I'm scared and I just want to get out of here."

Mrs. Behiel's expensive home is on a steep hillside in East Oakland —a rain-soaked hillside that is now on a slow creep toward a creek below.

Rains which have drenched Northern California for more than a week moved the hillside two feet, officials said, and at least 13 other homes are threatened.

The slow-moving slide measures 500 by 800 feet and is moving at least three acres of ground. The slide caused a widening crack in London Road, where Mrs. Behiel's home is located.

"That crack has come right down the street toward our house," she said.

The crack burst a water main at the intersection of Jordan Road and crews were forced to relocate utility lines. Sewer lines were cut off to some homes.

A 10-inch pipeline by which Shell Oil Co. supplies jet fuel to Oakland and San Francisco International Airports was ordered closed by the fire department and flushed with water to eliminate the possibility of an explosion if it ruptured.

The Oakland City Council authorized a $20,000 crash study of the slide. Similar slides

Agnew Reiterates Stand On Brush-Fire Troubles

HONOLULU (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, heading homeward from his Asia-Pacific tour, said Saturday the United States is determined to avoid being called on "to bail out" small countries when there are flareups within their borders.

He said he thinks he succeeded in making Asian leaders understand and accept that aspect and the rest of President Nixon's policy, which stresses regional cooperation in defense.

Agnew said Asian leaders made it clear to him they want "a continuing U.S. presence in the Pacific" and he declared he doubts "there will be any appreciable diminution of American ability to maintain its commitments."

The vice president reviewed his three-week, 11-nation tour while his plane, Air Force Two, flew from Auckland, New Zealand, to Honolulu. Agnew's party plans a two-day rest stop there before heading to a Washington arrival Monday night.

Agnew agreed with the proposition that there are "great similarities" between the Nixon ad-

U.S. Captives' Death March Revealed

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong hauled two American captives from one village to another, placed them on exhibit, then shot them to death, the statement by the U.S. Command said.

The ordeal of Capt. David R. Devers of Mount Holly, N.C., and M. Sgt. John H. O-Neill occurred 41 months ago, but it wasn't until last Christmas Eve that U.S. Marines found their bodies. They lay in a shallow grave in a coastal area of Thua Thien Province, in the northernmost 1st Corps area of South Vietnam, the announcement said. They were executed in front of a village church north of Hue, the announcement said.

Devers and O-Neill served on a U.S. advisory team attached to the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division.

The command held up the announcement until the two victims were identified through dental records and next of kin were notified.

The Pentagon said O'Neill's family had asked that the name of his home town not be disclosed.

"Reports from residents in the area stated the Viet Cong put the U.S. prisoners on display in several villages before executing them," said the statement. "They had been captured after an action Aug. 13, 1966, and later shot to death by their Viet Cong captors."

The bodies of three South Vietnamese soldiers, apparently executed, were found in the same grave.

A U.S. spokesman said Devers and O'Neill were not the first American prisoners executed by the Viet Cong. He said there had been reports of others, but he did not know how many.

Devers' former wife, Mrs. Terry Cannon, said in Mount Holly, N.C. that the Army had notified her that Devers had been "executed on the legal date of Sept. 30, 1966," 49 days after his capture.

Mrs. Cannon said she was told that Devers "was taken with another American, presumably O'Neill, in front of the church in the village and executed."

"The villagers did not report the execution until Christmas Eve of 1969," she said. "The Army said the villagers decided three years later to tell what had happened. A U.S. Marine civic action team, acting on information supplied by residents in the area, found the bodies.

Tax Reform Bill Still Has Breaks For Some Companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax reform bill of 1969, launched as a means of closing tax loopholes, ended up with enough fine print in its 1,004 sections to benefit a number of special industries and corporations.

Lobbyists, arguing that their clients represented special situations, managed to get the provisions in the bill during its long legislative journey. These provisions tucked away in the measure survived the extensive rewriting which left the final content of the bill uncertain up to the last.

Now that the bill has become the 255-Page Public Law 91-172 and the Treasury Department has started spelling out its effects in regulations, the benefits to certain industries and corporations are evident.

The investment credit, by which businesses recovered 7 per cent of equipment outlays, is repealed retroactively to April 18, 1969. But the repeal is surrounded by special transition provisions, so that:

—Lykes Steamship Co., New Orleans, building a new barge-carrying ship, can claim the exemption not only on the ship, which was contracted for before the deadline, but also the barges, which were not.

—Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and McDonnell-Douglas Corp. can claim it on equipment to finish orders for jumbo aircraft.

—Seatrain Shipbuilding of New York has an exception from the rule which makes contracts between affiliates ineligible.

—Uniroyal, Inc., which may have been eligible anyway, is assured of credit on a $73 million plant in Ardmore, Okla.

—Twenty-nine pipeline companies who contended they would have contracted for equipment in time except for paperwork delays by the Federal Power Commission, are cleared to claim credits that may go to $39 million.

Railroads didn't get a blanket exemption on rolling stock ordered through 1970—as the bill provided at one stage. But they got a compensating privilege, to depreciate the rolling stock in just five years.

However, a special exception for a $200 million refinery in Joliet, Ill., for Mobil Oil Co. was deleted before the bill was finally approved.

Attempts to tighten down tax preferences in some other areas of the law also were eased or exemptions were retained in the final draft.

A limited and indirect tax on some interest paid by municipal bonds was voted by the House. The Senate Finance Committee knocked it out after state and local officials dealers and financial institutions mounted a strong counterattack. The deletion stuck.

The House voted to require foundations to divest themselves of control of businesses, cutting their holdings to 20 per cent of the stock of any one company, but the basic provision was eased substantially in the end. The foundations must cut down to 50 per cent holdings in the near future, 35 per cent in the long term.

MIT Takes Hard Line On Protest

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Swift action was promised against 55 youths who ended a 34-hour occupation of administration offices at Massachusetts Institute of Technology Friday night, leaving behind what a spokesman called "a shambles."

"They went in with an ultimatum of non-negotiable demands," President Howard W. Johnson said in a statement. "They left with nothing."

"We shall move promptly to seek legal action against every one of the trespassers we can identify. Let there be no misunderstanding about this."

An MIT spokesman said about 30 students identified among the demonstrators will be brought before the institute's disciplinary board and court action for trespass will be sought against nonstudents who can be identified.

Johnson said civil authorities would have been called to eject the invaders if the sit-in had continued.

"The reason why they left is because MIT's faculty and students refused to support threats and violence as a way to accomplish change at this institution," he said. "The faculty showed this Thursday by its overwhelming vote condemning the occupation."

Unruh Jeered During Speech On Campus

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Assembly Democratic leader Jess Unruh, the only announced candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination, was greeted by taunts and obscenities from a small group of militants during a campaign appearance Friday at UCLA.

However, the great majority of the rest of the estimated 1,200 students in attendance, frequently applauded Unruh as he denounced Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Unruh told the students that if Reagan "finally is able to get tuition (imposed), it will be the fulfillment of his first promise since taking office "in 1967.

The veteran lawmaker went on that one of the reasons Reagan was in office was because of the conduct of some students. "You gave the Legisklature to Ronald Reagan," he said and was greeted with an obscenity and a retort: "And the Jews created Hitler."

Giant Transport Jet Joins F111 As Dodo

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Both of the Air Force's newest planes, the F111 fighter and the C5A jet transport, have been grounded because of apparent structural weaknesses in the wings.

The C5A Galaxy, largest airplane ever built, was grounded because an 8-to-10 inch crack was found late Friday in a wing section of the third of the giant planes to be completed at Marietta, Ga.

The 223 F111C fighter planes built so far already were grounded because a wing section fell off one of the planes at Nellis Air Force Base outside Las Vegas, Nev., last month, killing two pilots.

The Air Force said the 10 C5A transports so far operational will not be flown until after inspections that will take several days.

Whether the C5As will be permitted to fly before measures are taken to strengthen the wings has not been decided.

The wing weakness in the C5A already had been discovered in static (non flying) tests. The No. 3 operational model was in the Lockheed plant for "retrofitting" when the crack was discovered. It had made 84 flights and had logged 297 hours. A "retrofit" is described as "a simple aluminum brace which reinforces 11 points on the wing at places where major wing sections join."

The weakness, which first showed up in severe tests, had not been considered sufficiently severe to ground all of the 10 planes completed so far.

The Galaxy, almost as long as a football field, is capable of carrying 220,000 pounds —or 375 fully armed troops —a distance of more than 3,000 miles. It is 245 feet 9 inches long, compared with a Boeing 747's length of 231 feet 4 inches.

After it was originally planned as a fleet of 120 planes, the C5A's cost rose by nearly $2 billion to a total of $5.1 billion. This would mean a cost of about $40 million a plane. The Air Force now has decided to reduce the fleet to 81 planes.

The Air Force still is not convinced that its F111 fighter planes, formerly the TFX, are afflicted with a fatal weakness in the wings.

The wing failure at Las Vegas, according to the Air Force, could have been caused by unusual circumstances such as vibrations that no wing structure could resist.

Williams Out Of State Job

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's welfare boss, Spencer Williams, joined the ranks of the unemployed Friday, leaving his $35,000-a-year state job.

The former State Human Relations Agency chief who sought cures for unemployment during his years with the Reagan administration, will borrow and use savings to support his family while campaigning for attorney general.

The other three Republican aspirants for attorney general remain tax-supported, two as state senators, one as district attorney.

"I think this race is worth the investment of time and my own resources," said Williams, who resigned his cabinet-level post to avoid making it a target for partisan rhetoric in a political campaign.

"If I were to have held on to this job," said Williams of the post he is not legally required to yield, "they would be able to attack this office in a partisan campaign in a way which might be unfair and unfortunate."

Cal Tuition Decision Put Off A Month

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The final vote on the controversial issue of tuition at the UNIVERSITY of California was put off a month by the regents Friday after Gov. Ronald Reagan and UC President Charles J. Hitch introduced separate plans into consideration.

Both proposals generally would result in similar costs to the students. However, under Hitch's plan, the tuition money would be added to regular state support funds. The governor's proposal would result in the lowering of state support of the university by the amount of tuition income.

Reagan submitted his proposal following a report by Hitch, in which he recommended a straight tuition for all, first increasing the present $300 per year fee to $480 in 1970-71 and then upping it to $660 in 1971-72.

REAGAN'S IDEA

The governor, meanwhile, called for higher charges for graduates than undergraduates, with all students having a choice between immediate or deferred payment.

Reagan suggested a tuition for undergraduates of $480 next year and $525 in 1970-71. For graduates, whose education is more expensive, he called for a fee of $660 next year and $750 in 1970-71.

Because of the different suggestions for handling the funds under the two plans, Hitch's would be of greater financial benefit to the university. Hitch said the funds should be divided equally to meet the "urgent needs" of campus construction and student financial aid.

HITCH OPINION

Later, Hitch told newsmen he thought Reagan's proposal might be designed merely to take a set amount of money from the students and reduce the state's support by an equal amount. If so, he said, he could not support it.

The president also criticized the deferred tuition plan for not providing full funds immediately.

"It looks to me like an open-ended contribution to the general fund," iHtch said. "I do not see how it is going to contribute to solving the problems of student financial aid and campus construction."

During the meeting, the governor said he was indeed seeking to provide a redistribution of taxes, but he denied any thought of reducing state responsibility.

'DOUBLE SERVICE'

He said his plan was "based on the premise that those receiving a double service—as students and as members of society—should pay for them on a pro rata basis."

The discussion became heated at times over the collection and allocations of the funds, but there was no indication that the regents objected to the concept of tuition itself, now after three years of debate. The final vote is expected next month.

VETERANS' BREAK

In other action Friday, the board approved a proposal by Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, and ex-officio regent, to give first priority in admission to qualified Vietnam veterans from California.

The initiation of the program aimed at attacking air pollution through the use of university facilities was also approved.

Also Friday, the Task Force on Student Governance submitted a report to the regents recommending that UC students be permitted more involvement in decision-making on the nine campuses.

The recommendations included full student participation in running academic departments, participation at "every important point in the (campus) administration process," and establishing campus-wide forums to provide advice to all segments of the academic community.

The task force, consisting of three students body presidents, three chancellors and three professors, have worked on the report since last summer at the request of the State Legislature.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Medal To Widow

LONDON (AP) — A gold medal from the President, Congress and people of the United States was presented Friday to Lady Churchill, widow of Sir Winston.

The medal, authorized by a special act of Congress last May and struck by the U.S. mint in Philadelphia commemorates the Churchill Memorial and Library at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo.

The pugnacious British statesman and World War II leader first used the words "iron curtain" to describe divided Europe in the cold war at Westminster College May 5, 1946.

Raft Tape Aired

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood actor George Raft has been depicted in telephone wiretaps as a go-between for an alleged $21,300 check transmittal to a reputed Cosa Nostra lieutenant.

In tapes played Friday at a New York State joint legislative committee hearing on crime, Raft, 74, was mentioned as the intended first recipient of the check from multimillionaire Kirk Kerkorian to alleged mobster Charles "Charley the Blade" Tourine.

The check was to have been cashed by Raft, according to the tapes, for Tourine, who refused to answer committee questions about the tapes. The tapes were said to have been made in 1961.

Kerkorian, 52, is the Las Vegas hotelman and financier who recently gained control of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc.

No reason was given for the transaction discussed in the tapes.

Plea For Author

LONDON (AP) — Alexander Daniel, son of the imprisoned Russian writer Yulr Daniel, has written to British author Graham Greene appealing for maximum publicity about his father's plight.

The father, aged 45, was sentenced to five years hard labor in 1966 for writing books held to be slanderous of the Soviet system and having them published in the West.

Second Transplant

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Gerald Rector, 44, who received a second heart transplant Friday, was reported breathing well without assistance today at University of Michigan Hospital.

Doctors made the second transplant after Rector, who lives on a farm near Kalamazoo, Mich. began to show rejection of a heart he received last March.

Newscast Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military newscasters working abroad are restricted from offending the host country, affecting the safety of U.S. forces or aiding the enemy, but otherwise are not burdened with censorship or news management, a Pentagon official says.

John C. Broger, head of the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service, said Friday newscasters may be "restive" under the restrictions but he added military radio or television is not comparable with commercial U.S. broadcasting.

Two Army newscasters were recently relieved of their duties for publicly accusing the U.S. command in Vietnam of censhorship.

Consumer Law Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1966 Fair Packaging and Labeling Act has failed to make it much easier for shoppers to find the best bargain on American grocery shelves says an offfcial of the Consumer Federation of America.

Testifying before a Senate commerce subcommittee, CFA Vice President Helen Nelson testified tests showed housewives still cannot compare prices effectively.

"Congress will restore order in the market place only by amending the Fair Labeling and Packaging Act to fix responsibility on retailers to price their packaged wares by unit measures," Mrs. Nelson said.

Guard Murdered

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — A prison officer was beaten to death Friday night at the Soledad Correctional Training Facility, a prison spokesman said.

Correctional Officer John V. Mills, 26, died from "a massive beating around the upper body and head," said F. W. Forden, program administrator at the troubled state facility.

Forden said Mills was the victim of a "surprise attack by one or more prisoners in a medium security housing unit." He said the assailants were unknown.

Last Tuesday a tower guard shot and killed three prisoners who were part of a crowd of 14 beating two other prisoners on the ground.

Earlier Friday, the Monterey County district attorney said the shooting would probably be ruled "justifiable homicide by a public officer in performance of his duty."

Epidemic's Toll

LONDON (UPI)—More persons died from the Asian flu last week than any time since a flu epidemic 32 years ago, a Department of Health spokesman said Friday. The spokesmen said in the week ending Jan. 9, 2,850 persons died as result of flu or influenzal pneumonia. It was 450 more than the previous week. The spokesman said 7,000 persons have died from flu in the past month.

Scott Arraigned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ex-convict Raymond L. Scott, 36, was arraigned here Friday on charges of murdering two persons and wounding three others in a Tuesday night shooting spree on San Francisco's south side.

Municipal Judge Joseph Kennedy ordered Scott to appear Jan. 30 to enter his plea. He is also charged with possession of a firearm by an ex-convict.

G.E. Truce Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Sources close to the negotiations in the 12-week-old nationwide strike against the General Electric Co. have reported "some progress."

The reports of "movement" in the negotiations were made following talks held here Friday.

J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, set further meetings for this weekend.

The strike by 133,000 workers has crippled GE plants in 135 cities around the country.

The reports of "movement" were the first in weeks of stalemated negotiations. However, other sources warned against false hopes for a quick settlement.

Steel Price Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has announced a possible trend-setting rise in steel prices, but first-ranked United States Steel Corp. and other producers have not made any comment.

Bethlehem, the nation's second largest steelmaker, said Friday that it would institute about five per cent price increases on structural shapes and carbon steel plates and about six per cent on sheet piling, materials used in heavy construction.

Bethlehem's announcement comes at a time when the gross national product and other key indicators are showing a slowdown in the economy.

Bethlehem's base price on structural and plate steel will be increased $7 a ton March 1 and sheet piling will be increased $10 a ton Feb. 15.

Ex-Fairfax Resident Loses Fight

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A 24-year-old former Fairfax resident, convicted of selling LSD to federal agents in March of 1967, yesterday lost a last ditch appeal to stay out of jail in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Darren Guy Erlin, now a Honolulu businessman, was ordered to surrender to a U.S. Marshall on March 2 at 10 a.m. to begin serving a two-year term in a federal prison.

Erlin's appeal to modify the sentence to probation was turned down by Judge Oliver J. Carter who originally sentenced him in May of 1968.

A plea from Erlin's attorney, Carl B. Shapiro of San Anselmo, to allow the young man more time to liquidate his business before beginning the prison term, was also refused by the Judge.

Jerrold M. Ladar, chief of the criminal division of the U.S. attorney's office in San Francisco opposed a further extension of freedom for Erlin. "I feel this case has been going on a great length of time and has to be concluded sometime," Ladar told the judge.

Erlin has been free on $5,000 bail (later reduced to $2,000) since May 1968. Following his conviction, he appealed to the U.S. Court of Appeals which upheld the conviction, then asked the U.S. Supreme Court to hear the case. The high court refused the case on Jan. 6.

Erlin was arrested for selling 120 capsules of LSD to narcotics agents on March 15, 1967.

ministration's desire to avoid involvement in the internal difficulties of Asian countries and the position of many U.S. senators who fear another Vietnam-type involvement. He called most of the dispute between the Senate and administration "merely political differences."

The highlight of his trip, Agnew said, was "a personal impression of Vietnam and to see how good the morale is there, and seeing how well the members of the Vietnamese not only with ach other but how well they are getting along with their efforts to improve the pacification program and secure better communications with the villages and hamlets."

Art Juror Panel Set Wednesday

"Methods and Observations Used by Qualified Jurors," a panel discussion sponsored by the Marin Society of Artists will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Marin Art and Garden Center rather than Monday as erroneously reported yesterday in the Independent-Journal.

Participants in the panel scheduled for the Frances Young Gallery are Laura Devendorf, Independent-Journal critic; Edwin Cadogan, Robert Elsocht, Fred Herschleb, Frank Milner and Micheline Wyler. Betty Finsland will moderate.

The I-J also erred yesterday in reporting that the artist's society would hold its annual showing of works by new members tomorrow. This show was held last Sunday.

Bad Checks Lead To Man's Arrest

Charles Stanley Jackson, Jr., 42, of the Carmel Hotel, San Rafael was arrested by San Rafael police yesterday on suspicion of passing fraudulent checks.

Jackson, arrested about 1 p.m. while working at Dexter Pontiac, posted $6,250 and is scheduled to appear Monday at 2 p.m. in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment.

Police said the checks were issued locally over the past several months.

132-bus system, expected to cost about $7.7 million.

Dahlgren's report showed that a 1959 law passed by the Legislature limited the power of the district to spend its reserves in order to save money for a long-range transit system.

The audience of 30, many of whom spoke, was mixed on whether to support the $10 price on commuter books, but was unanimously opposed to elimination of the books.

Director Dean N. Meyer, mayor of Mill Valley, said he would push for continuing the books permanently at a 10 per cent discount, which would push the price for 25 tickets to $11.25, but he appeared to be in the minority among the directors.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco argued the district "will need every dime to subsidize transit enough so people will leave their automobiles at home."

Several speakers also appealed to directors to rescind their hike in bus tolls from 26 cents to $2 per round trip, but no director responded to their appeals. Greyhound Lines West has applied to the California Public Utilities Commission to hike Marin bus commuter books by $1 to cover the cost of the higher tolls.

Several other speakers argued the bridge district should be dissolved, and the bridge turned over to the state. One, Vincent South of San Anselmo, promised he would see that such a proposal "gets on the ballot."

Martin Strauss of Fairfax, organizer of the new Golden Gate Commuter Association, charged that the district was pushing for ferries because it was dominated by San Francisco. "If San Francisco said camels were best, I have no doubt you'd be out scrounging around for 50,000 camels right now," he said.

The directors were "not qualified to get into the transportation business," he argued.

Strauss urged the bridge directors to explain their plans before his association's meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Civic Center.

A. D. Maxwell of Corte Madera, noting the large populations on both sides of the Golden Gate that would benefit from transit, said the district was "asking only 30,000 people (the approximate number of commuters) to pay for the whole bloody thing."

Only Robert F. Raab of Fairfax argued that the district "can't afford to subsidize the automobile commuter. There's no such thing as the divine right of automobiles," he said.

Director Lowell Edington of Napa County cautioned the audience that "it's your money, and it can help you—but give it away, and you lose it."

Leonoudakis added that "the people in Marin can have it either way; either on the property tax rolls or with a slight increase in tolls."

happened in the same area during rains a year ago.

Assistant City Engineer Weston Follett said damage so far has been confined to cracked walls and sticking doors. But he said the street level has dropped several inches and parts of the hillside have dropped as much as two feet.

The slide area is near Oakland's new Mormon Temple, which is not threatened, and is also near the Hayward Fault, an off-shoot of the earthquake-prone San Andreas Fault.

Linda M. Fry, 16, a passenger in a car driven by Joseph McCarthy, 16, also of Petaluma, was treated at Petaluma Hospital for minor neck injuries sustained when the McCarthy auto ran off the road and overturned about 11:30 p.m. while trying to avoid a stopped car.

FLYING FAIR IN SOCCER?

Two-legged soccer players often seem to soar through the air, but they come down on the turf with a thump. Sherrie, a pet rooster belonging to Jamie Sowers of Orlando, Fla., has a flying advantage in such things—but is claimed to fear that he must be a winner or be a "fricasseed soccer star."

tra chairs, signs and lettering, box office equipment, carpeting for foyer and aisles, dressing room makeup mirrors and lights, lobby and foyer furnishings, and 86 additional seats on seat wagons.

The $100,000 allocated in this year's budget for site development, plus $50,000 from reserves could finance the $150,000, and the auditorium would be fully functional.

If the grounds around the auditorium are to be used for the 1971 county fair, the county will have to allocate money for lighting, trees, irrigation and landscaping. This will cost $35,000 for one acre or $70,000 for two acres, to be budgeted in the 1970-71 fiscal year.

Campanella and Kalimos said another $100,000 would be needed to put in sewer and water lines, fences, rest rooms and paths to serve the fair site, but the county can apply to the state Division of Fairs and Expositions for this financing.

With this report, Campanella will remind the supervisors that Fair-Marin should proceed with other agreed tasks such as submitting fee schedules for use of the auditorium, and a timetable for raising money needed to complete the second phase, increasing seating capacity to 2,100.

Poverty Aide Raps Census

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The general manager of the St. Louis anti-poverty program says plans for the 1070 federal census may yield too low a count of the poor and the uneducated.

Clyde S. Cahill Jr., head of the Human Developm ent Corp., said Friday in a letter to Census Director A. Ross Eckler that the mail approach and the complexity of the census form will discourage responses from uneducated Citizens.

"As a result, "Cahill said, "there is a danger of glorifying affluence and inaccurately disguising poverty."

Youngsters Names Chosen For Small Freitas Parkway Parks

Arbor and Hill View were names chosen Wednesday night by San Rafael Park and Recreation commissioners for parkettes at Gallinas and Las Pavadas avenues on Manuel T. Freitas Parkway.

The names had been suggested by Becky Price, 11, of 89 De La Guerra Road and Julie Kaplan, 12, of 719 Butternut Drive, reported A. J. Snyder Jr., city parks and recreation director.

The commission is considering diverting an after-school program from either Nova Albion, Hartzell or Don Timeteo School to the Santa Margarita Valley Park next spring when the weather warms up, Snyder said.

The matter came up after a group of residents whose children attend the Santa Margarita and Bernard Hoffman schools in the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District requested San Rafael commissioners establish an after-school program in the schools. Commissioner Charles L. Tacchi suggested they consult the Terra Linda district to see if it might set up a program, Snyder said.

Commissiioners also voted to change the date of their meeting from Wednesday to the second Thursday of the month at 8 .m. at City Hall starting Mar. 12, Snyder said.

San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission also,

LITTLE — LEAGUE Delayed action on a request of the Little League to use softball diamond at Albert Field from March until July 1 to determine if facilities were available for adult softball program.

PLAQUE — San Rafael City School and Dixie School districts were nominated by commissioners to receive an award for their work and cooperation at California Parks and Recreation Society District annual banquet Jan. 24 at the San Rafael Holiday Inn.

PARK — Approved Snyder writing the state Division of Highways to inquire into leasing land at Belle Avenue and Irwin Street for a park.

LIGHTING — Dan Coleman Associates has been hired to make study of lighting at Albert Park to determine if it needs upgrading.

BRODY

dy was in a recording studio—in addition to having money he plays guitar and sings—cutting a demonstration record that he will probably bring out himself under his new Prince of Peace label.

"Just let me sleep, just let me alone," Brody pleaded before entering the studio. "I've been up 60 hours. Let's all be greedy in seven days. Can't people cool it for that long?"

He explained that it would take that long to get some organization going in his fledgling philanthropy—a need he discovered earlier when 15 people crowded around the kitchen table in his home while he rapidly penned checks.

"You want love? You'll get love," he said. "Money. Cars. You'll get what you want. Money will be pouring out within seven days. If you want my death you can have that too. I'm ready to die for you if that's what you want."

Brody has already handed out, by his figuring tens of thousaids of dollars in the past few days.

These gifts reportedly include $2,500 to a man with mortgage problems, $1,000 to a cab driver who accidentally smashed the guitar Brody carries with him, $1,500 to the staff of a restaurant where he enjoyed the service, $100 bills to children on Harlem streets, and $500 to a heroin addict who promised to kick the habit.

Brody came into his money when he turned 21 last October. His maternal grandfather, John F. Jelke, the oleomargarine magnate who died in 1965, left Brody an inheritance of some $3 million, according to Michael's father.

Michael Jr. says it is now $25 million and growing.

The money went directly to Jelke's grandchildren. One of the grandfather's sons was Minot F. "Mickey" Jelke III, who was convicted of compulsory prostitution in a widely publicized Manhattan call-girl case in 1955.

AUTO CHIEF — Charles W. Wherry of Modesto has been re-elected to a second term as president of the California Automobile Association. Wherry, a retired furniture company executive, has been a CSAA director since 1958 and served as a vice president from 1965 to 1969.

U.S. Investigating Cuba Invasion Fiasco

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating whether any U.S. laws were violated by 14 Cuban exiles who used Miami as a staging and demarcation point last week for an unsuccessful invasion of their homeland.

The State Department said Friday the Cubsns had to give up their invasion plans when the engine in their 17-foot-long boat failed 10 miles off the Cuban coast. A U.S. Navy vessel rescued the would be raiders, who were then returned to Miami.

San Rafael Crash Injuries Hub Youth

William R. Cline, 17, of 1331 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, sustained a cut left leg at 5:50 p.m. yesterday in an accident at Fourth Street and West Crescent Drive, San Rafael police reported.

Cline, whose car collided with a vehicle driven by Josie Stoddard, of 37 Sunset Way, San Rafael, declined to go to the hospital and was treated by his own doctor.

Centenrian Says DeGaulle Right About Birthdays

VANCOUVER B. C. (AP) — James Smith, a bachelor who lives at a Salvation Army's home for men, will be 101 Sunday and says he shares former French President Charles De Gaulle's sentiments on birthdays.

"De Gaulle said his birthday was a sinking ship, "Smith said in an interview Friday. "If you're 100 years or over everyone expects you're going down any time.

"I've no intention of going down yet. I like the world as well as ever. I plan to be around for 25 years yet, "said Smith who says he gets up at 7 A.M. for breakfast and walks two or three miles every day.

Clebrations? there will be none, he declares.

"No birthday cake, no candles, no fuss and don't you send that photographer around—it's unnecessary."

Drug Charges For Fairfax Man

A 26-year-old Fairfax man was booked into Marin County Jail today for investigation of marijuana possession after Fairfax police, armed with a warrant, searched his home.

Henri Peter Baylacq, of 25 Manzanita Road, was held in lieu of $10,000 bail to appear Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

He was arrested after police found two kilos of what appeared to be the drug, plus an assortment of pills which will be analyzed.

Flood Wreaks Havoc With Peru's Capital

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Less than an inch of rain is hardly a sprinkle in Seattle or Saigon, but it's a flood in lima.

The Peruvian capital gets only a thimble full of rain a year. Hardly anybody owns a raincoat or umbrella, and the streets were built without storm sewers.

But Thursday night it rained .6 of an inch here—four times the yearly average—and Friday morning Lima was a disaster area. A man was electrocuted in his home, and a woman and child were carried to their death by the rampaging Rimac River. Streets were flooded, slum shacks swept away, roofs caved in, electric power cut, cars and buses immobilized.

Of some 100 emperors who ruled in Byzantium during the Middle Ages only a third died peacefully in their beds, still emperors.

HOTTER, HEALTHFUL HOTDOGS

Some of the points recommended in a training course on proper handling of P-TA hotdog programs for schools are in practice at Park School in Mill Valley. Preparation is done in a kitchen by the mothers rather than in a makeshift setup, and hotdogs are thoroughly boiled and kept hot in a warmer until they are transported in styrofoam chests to the classrooms. The pilot program for better hotdog service was begun this week after a training session. Here Mrs. R. J. Seymour takes a turn at the stove. From left Mrs. David Wahler and Mrs. Alan Scott lift hotdogs with tongs to place in paper sacks as Mrs. Roger Daniels stores them in warmer.

ENJOYING REALLY hot hotdogs are Jessica Stern and Terrence Schaniel as they sit on a table especially set up for keeping the children occupied whose mothers must bring them when they prepare the hotdogs at the school. The training course in safe and sanitary handling of the hotdog program, a project of the Mill Valley P-TA Council, was conducted by the Marin County Public Health Department Wednesday at Park School.

Wrap Chese And Store To Preserve

If you've received a gift of cheese, cover the soft varieties, and store them in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Wrap natural, hard cheese in wax paper, foil or plastic and store in the refrigerator.

The cut edges may be buttered or coated with melted paraffin to keep them from drying. Natural cheese, tightly wrapped, freezes well in one pound pieces, but process or cottage or cream cheese tend to become wattery when thawed.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

'Without Police We'd Be In More Trouble Than We Could Handle'

DEAR HELEN:

I am a teen-ager who is concerned about the accusations against our policemen.

People scream "police brutality." Don't they realize that without police, we'd be in more trouble than we could handle?

I think that most of the police use only the force necessary to keep situations calmed down. Sure, there are always a few in any huge organization who aren't right for the job, but I bet they get weeded out fast.

It's a shame that young men are turning away from police work because they don't want to be called "pigs" by some of their friends.—UPSET

DEAR UPSET:

A few cities across the country are trying to improve the image by good public relations programs. These include televised discussions between police and minority groups; "love the fuzz" days; newspaper publicity on new law enforcement methods, etc.

May there be more. —H

DEAR HELEN:

Why can't these dames cut their hair and wash it instead of trying to look like sheep dogs or witches? And the stuff they wear.

Ads say they look glamorous with rags around their heads, necks and waists—long scarves that hang below their skirts. Then there's that body jewelry that looks like medieval slave chains.

Some girls are wearing sailor pants and combat boots. They think they look different. I think they look about as feminine as my Uncle Charlie.

No wonder most of us guys find something else besides dames. —ANOTHER GUY

DEAR HELEN:

Not too long ago my boy friend was killed in an automobile accident. On his birthday, I wanted to visit his grave and pay my respects.

My Dad said it wasn't necessary because I wasn't anything more to him than a close friend.

Do you think it was right for him not to let me go? —WIDOWED GIRL FRIEND

DEAR W.G.:

I think your father was trying to shield you from further grief. His instincts were right, but he should perhaps let you make your own decisions here. How does your mother feel about it?—H

Don't over-water holiday plants. Horticultural experts say that over-watering is a leading reason for premature fading of holiday gift plants. Touch the top soil of the plant with your thumb. If it feels dry, water plant. Use water at room temperature.

Prose, Poetry With Bramwell Fletcher

By BARBARA HOSMER

A couple hundred thirtyish housewives left flooding and mudslides behind for an hour of real theater yesterday morning.

Shaking the raindrops off their boots and collapsing their umbrellas they settled into seats at the Tamalpais Theater in San Anselmo to hear Broadway actor Bramwell Fletcher do his one-man program of prose and poetry through the ages.

Titled "A Passion for Living," a phrase from Albert Camus' "The Myth of Sisyphus," the program began with "The Spirit of Youth" and continued with "The Absurd Heroes"—one of whom was Sisyphus, who ceaselessly rolled a boulder up the mountain only to have it fall back again—and finished with "This Uncertain Age."

The British-born Fletcher opened with the 12th Century "Cuckoo Song" and moved smoothly into Ezra Pound's famed "Winter Is A-Comin' In," bringing laughs from the audience. Then he recited the Dylan Thomas passage beginning "a girl standing gazing out to sea" from "A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man."

Humorists E. B. White and James Thurber's "Is Sex Necessary" brought further amusement and Fletcher changed pace to a more tender mood with Andrew Marvell's "To His Coy Mistress" with the familiar line "had we but world enough and time," and a passage called "The Kiss" from D. H. Lawrence's "Love on the Farm."

Passages dramatized by Fletcher included the long poem "Bereft" by Robert Frost, with its familiar ending, "If winter comes can spring be far behind?" Don Marquis' "Pete the Parrot and Bill Shakespeare," "If Only We Might Live as We Choose" by Marcus Valeris Martialis from the 1st century, with its last line, "Should I delay to live who has learned how to live?"

Other selections were Frost's "Why Wait for Science," Shaw's "As Far As Thought Can Reach," MacLeish's "The End of the World," and "Oedipus the King." Fletcher concluded with Sean O'Casey's "Make Way for the Strong and the Swift and the Fearless."

The program was the second in A.M. series of Marin lectures.

Under 30 Wives Have Nap Habit

CHICAGO (UPI)—Catnapping on the homefront seems to be more a habit among the under-30 housewives than it is among older ones.

Most young homemakers participating in a survey sponsored by Sealy, said they nap every day for as long as two hours.

Top-Knots

The top of the fashion picture from right now on into spring is the top-knot hairstyle. Make yours with a fall of real or synthetic hair if your own isn't long enough.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

'Miss Yachting' Will Be Selected Tonight

By MOLLY MARIN

The Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon will be the scene of the "Miss Yachting" contest tonight. Eighteen candidates, representing clubs in the Pacific Inter Club Yachting Association, will be judged by Joan Lisetor of the Independent-Journal, Jack Sterley of Peacock Gap and Bob Baciacco of San Rafael. Dinner chairman is Bill Savale of San Rafael. About 200 will attend.

Marin contestants are Catherine Wright of San Francisco, Corinthian; Alice Robinson of San Rafael, Loch Lomond; Anita Nagel of Corte Madera, Presideo and Lurene Asklund of San Rafael.

"Miss Yachting of 1970" and her two princesses will reign over many sailing events in Northern California this season. They will preside Sunday over the San Francisco Sports and Boat Show's closing day.

THE FRED B. Craddocks of San Rafael have returned from a month's stay at Palm Dessert where they are building a home at the La Quinta Country Club.

MRS. MICHAEL Ohannesian of Cotati returned last week from a 10-day stay in Hawaii, where she visited her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jansky, at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu. Sightseeing trips to interesting places on the islands and swimming at Waikiki were part of Mrs. Ohannesian's first trip to Hawaii.

SEW SEMPLE

It's Time To Clean Machine

By EUNICE FARMER

With the holidays over, I know you will be anxious to once again get back to the sewing machine and sew like mad for spring, if you take a few moments now for cleaning your machine, your sewing will go much smoother.

Never let the bobbin case get full of lint or tiny threads that collect so easily from fake furs and fluffy woolens. Just take a small long-handled brush and spray it with a spray cleaner made for this purpose, and the lint and threads will cling to it for easy removal.

Oil your machine carefully, according to the instructions for your machine. Be sure to use sewing machine oil for this job. After oiling your machine, be sure to keep the presser foot down on a piece of fabric and machine stitch through the fabric several times to avoid any danger of oil on your newest creation.

Spray the entire machine with this cleaner to give it a thorough cleaning, and remove all traces of dirt particles that can accumulate by wiping clean with a damp cloth. Your sewing machine can be your happy slave, but you must give it a little tender loving care for best results.

MRS. ESTHER SCHOEN, St. Louis, Mo., is the winner this week of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her following suggestion:

"When buying patterned sheets and pillow slips for my daughter's bedroom, I bought an extra top sheet and made her a long lounging robe with long sleeves. The border makes a very attractive finish for the hem of the long skirt. Many times you will have enough of the print left to use as a trim on a matching gown or pajamas. With very little cost, you can have an elegant, custom ensemble that matches the room decor."

DEAR EUNICE,

I purchased a pleated skirt for my little girl who is six years old. The waistband seems to fit snugly at the waist, but it keeps slipping down. Is there a way to remedy this little problem?

MRS. A. S.

DEAR MRS. A. S.:

Your little girl is having the same problem that some of us wish we had: no hips. The only solution I can think of is to add shoulder straps made of decorative braid or ribbon. Usually children of this age look much better in jumpers than they do in skirts.

DEAR EUNICE,

This is the first letter I have ever written a columnist but I want to write and tell you about the happiness you brought to me this holiday season. You suggested we give our family a treat by making the long skirt and wearing it just for them at home.

After the initial shock they experienced at seeing me look so dressed up with no place to go, they began to feel flattered. I noticed my smaller children getting combed and shined up for dinner and even their manners were improved. Best of all, my husband, who doesn't say much, showed me his true feelings when he asked me if I wasn't going to make another one to wear after Christmas.

Thank you for the help you have given us with our sewing problems, and a special thanks for your understanding suggestions you give us that couldn't be bought at any price.

MRS. F. B.

You may find the sewing questions that have been puzzling you answered in Mrs. Farmer's helpful booklet, "Twenty Questions." To obtain this, please send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

"Now, make me a newspaper by tonight"

Tall order . . . since a complete newspaper such as the Independent-Journal is at once the most complex yet lowest-priced product that can be made in one day.

Every day a new "model" . . . delivered by nightfall. To do this job against the clock—

- our 18 reporters comb the county, observing, interviewing, phoning, writing, getting the facts for you.
- thousands of AP and UPI newsmen check the world for you, put its pulse on the wire.
- teletypes chatter some 120,000 words to us, from as close as Mill Valley, as far away as Capetown.
- rolls of paper, each 850 lbs., move in from Canada and the Northwest.
- electronic impulses turn into photographs on a machine—the world in black and white, caught in action.
- the managing editor watches for the big stories, gauging the importance of each, overseeing the editorial "construction" of the paper, from content to design.
- pressmen feed the giant press with ink and paper—a taste of what's to come.
- "Circulation" readies for the job of distributing the paper, via 700 newspaperboys, to two out of three homes in the county.
- experts set type for news, for ads—enough in one day to fill a good-sized book.
- the retail advertising staff, 10 strong, contacts almost every business in the county . . . planning campaigns, offering merchants professional service in copywriting, layout and merchandising.
- the city editor "feels" for the news on a hundred fronts, hands out assignments, shaping the news force to the shape of events.
- engravers work their chemical magic, placing print and picture on metal.
- the women's editor and staff of 5 molds food and fashions, social doings, meetings, school events, into a women's world.
- syndicates send in both national and world-wide features—columns, comics, cartoons.
- specialists "make up" the paper, designing every page of news and ads.
- the art department creates illustrations, layouts, designs, cartoons.
- photographers race the news throughout the county, clicking the visual happenings of Marin today.
- ink for the press arrives not in bottles but tank trucks.
- color plates and color inks are being readied for ads, special editions, covers—all to brighten your reading eye.
- sports "jump" in the typewriters of the sports department and Willie Mays leaps up into a headline.
- "Classified" is setting up the county's daily market place, and the phone rings with "wanted" and "for sale."
- headlines are being written against deadlines—and the tight confines of space.
- vital statistics are being compiled; weather and stock reports are coming in.
- the mechancial superintendent moves the copy through a maze of linotypes, electronic typesetters and the precise hands of men who literally know type up-side down.
- the library is digging up background data for stories, filing photos, micro-filming each edition of the newspaper.
- legal ads get eagle-eyed checking for accuracy.
- orders are coming in from the nation's advertising agencies with mats for advertisements—everything from autos to ant spray.
- issues become the tissue of editorials—the reasoned interpretation of events.
- proofreaders scan every line of news and advertising trying to hold errors to a minimum against the pressure of time.
- letters to the editor are being read for possible publication.
- the dispatch office is moving ads into production—checking size, type, mats, insertion dates, art, photos—a hundred elements.
- our national representatives are meeting with ad agencies and advertisers in New York, Detroit, Chicago—a dozen cities—telling them about Marin County and its newspaper.
- special contributors' columns on fishing, baseball and many others are being processed.
- Marin Magazine is being dummied; stories developed for the Saturday edition—picturing life in Marin.
- the business office moves against a mountain of financial and administrative detail.
- stereotypers cast the weighty cylinders for the big press—the final imprint of the news on metal.
- last minute news comes through and the front page changes under the expert fingers of typographers and the eye of the editor.

BILLBOARD — Capturing this incredible monument rising out of the countryside is photographer Thomas Tenney's reminder of how we seem bent on botching up the landscape and is included in the Oakland Museum's current Pollution Show.

ART REVIEW

Pollution Show Rises Above Show-Off Stuff

By LAURA DEVENDORF

OAKLAND — Admittedly, much "protest" art turns out merely to be a show-off's holiday of profane, patently overdone, self-important, shock-seeking stuff. So the Pollution Show, which runs through Feb. 15 at the new Oakland Museum at Tenth and Fallon, would seem justifiably suspect.

Perhaps one reason this show seems so great is that it rarely sinks to that level. Instead, the 70, mostly professional Bay Area artists who are taking part, usually keep art first. Then they make you laugh, muse, get sick sometimes and ultimately think about the problem by demonstrating it through artists' eyes.

TITLES GRIPPING

Many pieces seem innocent until the titles grab you. Robert Hartman's etherial "The Last Natural Cloud," Jason Schoener's rolling barren hill, "Beverly Hills, 2,000 A.D." and Martha Borge's rustic countryside ablaze with wild flowers, the "Future Site of Oakley Grove Terrace," are a few.

Even the purity of Ansel Adams's nature photographs seems horrifying when surrounded by omens of the monumental garbage heap we are creating for ourselves. One of the most pointed warnings is the joint effort of Hugh Wiley, Corky McChesney and Richard Rodriguez, "My Plastic Garden of Delights."

It's a stunning, if gruesome work, featuring a crud-flowing drinking fountain constructed from a toilet, set amidst an amazing jungle of wires, cable and hose. It even has its own brand of garden pest, undoubtedly nurtured by some exotic insecticide, which basks under the murky splotches of black on blue that pass for sky.

Marin Artists

Wiley is a Fairfax resident. Other Marin artists included are Dennis Beall, Jack Fulton, Peter Hutton, Shelby Kennedy and Robert Kinmont.

In another grimly beautiful piece, Wiley shows a spread-winged eagle with its breast cleft and its heart hanging out. Grimmer still are Peter Boiger's plastic encased and oily remains of a bird, its beak protruding from its deadly prison.

If all this seems heavy stuff, several artists attack the conscience through the funny bone. You can always count on Barbara Spring, this time with "Two-Ply," a gigantic baby-blue Kleenex box. And then there's Silvio Rozone's pink satin-lined black casket. It has a skeleton carved on the lid, a cigarette-flowered black wreath inside and is flanked by two tall candle stands heaving with squashed cigarette and cigar butts.

The title is, "This is the cough that carries you off. This is the coffin they carry you off in." After that, there's little left to say.

Burglars Hit School

Burglars stole an undetermined amount of change from vending machines in the teachers' lounge and girls' bathroom, and four pies from the gym kitchen at Davidson Junior High School between 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Girl's Case Sent To Youth Court

The case of Debra Cheryl Chappelle, 18, of San Rafael, yesterday was referred to juvenile probation officers by Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court for possible transferral to juvenile court.

She is accused of three felony counts of making out false prescriptions to obtain drugs Jan. 7 in San Rafael.

She was told to return to court Feb. 6.

Prisoner On Pass Fails To Return

Richard C. Smith, 28-year-old San Quentin inmate scheduled to be paroled April 13 failed to return to prison yesterday at the end of a 72-hour pass to arrange for schooling and a work furlough in Los Angeles County, Associate Warden James W. L. Park reported.

Smith, serving terms for receiving stolen property and for escaping from a forestry camp in Shasta County, was due back at 1 p.m., Park said.

Guilty Plea Entered To Reduced Charge

William Conrad, 36, of Santa Rosa, pleaded guilty Thursday in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced charge of using another person's credit card. Sentencing was set for Tuesday.

Conrad, who had originally been charged with a felony, was arrested Jan. 3 when he allegedly used the card to make a purchase at a San Rafael service station.

Belvedere Burglary Charge Is Denied

John Randolph Arbuckle, 21, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to charges of burglary and possessing stolen property. A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

He was arrested Wednesday outside Belvedere police headquarters carrying a stereo set allegedly stolen from a residence on Bay View Avenue.

U.S. Loan Officer Remains In Marin

A loan officer from the federal Small Business Administration will continue to take applications for flood repair loans at the Marin Civic Center all next week.

F. Vincent Kenney of San Rafael, the loan officer, can be reached through the clerk of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. His temporary office is on the third floor of the Civic Center administration building. His office hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

During the past two weeks, 19 Marin businessmen and 77 homeowners have taken out forms on which to apply for federally-subsidized loans at 3 per cent interest for the repair or replacement of flood losses.

Kenney said he has no total figure on the amount of loans sought because most of the homeowners and businessmen do not know their exact losses. The applicants will fill in these figures when they return their applications to the San Francisco office of SBA at 450 Golden Gate Avenue.

From conversations with the flood victims, Kenney estimated that home losses will range from $400 to $10,000 each, and business losses from $1,500 to $6,000.

As of yesterday, only those losses incurred during the December floods were eligible for loans, but there is a good chance that January losses will also be included.

The SBA declared Marin County a disaster area for the month of December, James V. Burdick, deputy director of Civil Defense in Marin, asked that the disaster be extended to January.

W. H. Thomas, assistant chief of the financing division at the SBA office in San Francisco, said yesterday he expects a confirmation of the disaster extension from the Washington office of SBA.

The loan officer in Narin is already accepting applications for loans for this month's flood damages, in the event the extension is confirmed.

Low cost loans will be granted to replace business inventory lost in floods and to restore flood-damaged homes to pre-flood conditions.

"Raising homes on stilts to prevent further flooding is also eligible for loan consideration," said Kenney.

Counties Share In Cigarette Taxes

Marin County received $2,899 and Sonoma County, $11,763 as their share from cigarette taxes last month, the state controller's office has reported.

Marin and Southern Sonoma cities receiving revenues were: Belvedere, $255; Corte Madera, $1,848; Cotati, $270; Fairfax, $863; Larkspur, $1,188; Mill Valley, $1,653; Novato, $3,698; Petaluma, $3,491; Rohnert Park, $667; San Anselmo, $1,607; San Rafael, $8,556; Sausalito, $1,562 and Tiburon, $844.

Beattle's Art Ban Not Bar To U.S. Sale

NEW YORK (UPI)—A London police ban on the display of lithographs graphically depicting Beatle John Lennon's love life will not affect plans for their sale in this country, it was announced Friday.

A spokesman for the Nordness Gallery said the lithographs picturing intimacies between Lennon and his Japanese-born wife, Yoko Ono, will go on sale in New York Feb. 6 at a price of $900 a set. They will be offered for sale later in Chicago and San Francisco.

Reproductions of the 14 lithographs will appear in the Jan. 26 issue of Avant-Garde magazine.

Ralph Ginzburg, publisher of Avant-Garde, said he was surprised to hear that the London gallery which displayed the pictures was shut down by police the day after the exhibit was placed on view.

The pictures already have been passed by U.S. customs as acceptable for entry into the United States.

Marin City Board Fills Vacancy

The Marin City Community Services District board has chosen Frank Phillips Sr. as new chairman and named Arthur Miller, a former director, to the board, both replacing Douglas J. Quiett, who resigned because of school and business activities.

Elected officers besides Phillips are Doretha Mitchell, vice chairman, and Gussie Blakely, secretary.

The board is scheduled to meet next week at an unspecified time to discuss reports by the Marin County Housing Authority that it is reconsidering its level of financial aid to the district because of little activity.

Closing Of Sausalito Schools Not Advised

The Sausalito School District would not save money by closing either Bayside or Central School, a study committee has concluded.

David E. Freedheim, chairman of the facilities study committee of the school district board, said yesterday any savings in shutting either school would be offset by the cost of moving pupils from the closed facility to the one that would remain open.

Also, he said, the district would sacrifice valuable facilities by closing either school, since it has invested $120,000 in portable units at Bayside and would lose a library and large auditorium — not available at Bayside — if it closed Central.

The study was asked last fall as a possible way to combat a decreasing student population. School enrollment is now about 725, and figures supplied by the county schools office reveal that the district spent $1,326 per student in 1968-69—one of three elementary districts in Marin to exceed $1,000 per pupil.

Most of Marin's 18 elementary districts spend between $600 and $800 on each student.

Freedheim said the district's long-range goal is to create one school for all children, but he could not predict when that might occur or when a study might begin.

He said he expected "substantial changes in districtwide expenditures" when the 1970-71 school budget is considered. An administrative salary and finance committee of C. Gerald Clear and James E. Muldoon is studying this situation, he said.

Freedheim said his committee, meanwhile, would report to the district board soon on the cost of bringing Central School up to Field Act standards.

Conservation Art Show Set

An art show sponsored by the Environmental Conservation Club, a new student organization at San Rafael High School, will be held in the school's little theater Monday through Friday.

The show will include painting, sculpture, photography and a slide show, all designed to strengthen awareness of ecological problems.

Hours will be 3 to 4:30 p.m. Monday, 12:45 to 3 p.m. Tuesday, 7 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, and 12:30 to 3 p.m. Friday. There is no admission charge.

Selfish Tennis Players Face Rec Crackdown

The Sausalito Recreation Commission wants selfish tennis players who use municipal courts to be cited by police.

Norman Wohlschlaeger, director of public works, said the commission Thursday night asked the city council to adopt an ordinance giving police the power to cite tennis buffs who decline to give way to other players.

Wohlschlaeger said commissioners had received complaints from persons who had failed to gain entry to courts.

In other matters, commissioners said they would present at a future meeting specific proposals for recreational projects that might be included in the city budget next fiscal year.

Meeting Called Off

The Friends of the Larkspur Library did not meet this month, president Beth Reilly reported, but will hold a meeting Feb. 19 at 10:30 a.m. at the library. The program has not been arranged, Mrs. Reilly said.

LEGAL BURNER—Sam Chapman, Marin enforcement inspector for air pollution control, inspects an incinerator at San Rafael High School that meets stringent new burning regulations. The incinerator burns natural gas together with smoke from burning trash, reburning the smoke at 800 to 1,600 degrees to destroy all smog-producing chemicals. (Independent-Journal photo)

Subdivision Asked In Rohnert Park

Plans for a new subdivision in Rohnert Park will be considered for approval at the city council meeting Monday at 7 p.m.

Known as Deer Meadow Village, the proposed housing development is planned for north of Santa Alicia Drive at the end of Arlen, Ava and Alta avenues.

The council will also hear a report from the chamber of commerce on its plans to have the council contribute the bulk of the business license fees to the chamber for promotional activities.

'In Week' Slated At Tam High

A three-day student activities program designed to be both educational and entertaining has been scheduled next Wednesday and through Friday at Tamalpais High School.

The program, planned and staged for the most part by students, has been dubbed "in week" and will be held during expanded lunch hours on campus.

Events Wednesday and Thursday will include discussions, slides, movies and exhibits on ecology and urban planning, a mathematics contest, chamber music, a ceramics exhibit and gymnastic meets. On Friday, two bands, Ofodien-Den and Muscadine Blues, will perform at a dance concluding the activities.

INCINERATORS SHUT DOWN

Smog Ban Bringing Few Howls In Marin

Marin residents may joke about hiring Boy Scouts to sit around their trash fires so they can qualify as legal recreation fires under the new backyard burning ban, but most are cooperating fully with the new regulations.

Sam Chapman, Marin's enforcement inspector for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, thought he was in for a large headache when the district's ban against private trash burning went into effect Jan. 1. He even worked New Year's Day to prepare for what he thought would be a deluge of complaints and citations.

"It's amazing; I haven't written a citation yet—I haven't even seen a violation," he said, shaking his head. "I never expected this kind of cooperation."

Chapman admits he received "about a half-dozen" complaints during the first few days of 1970, mainly because a few persons were unaware of the law or "forgot." All promised to comply with the regulations in the future.

Chapman attributes the full-scale compliance to a new concern on the part of citizens about air pollution and their environment. "I think people are finally becoming worried about pollution and what it will mean in the future if nothing is done about the problem now," Chapman said.

The inspector, a former professional baseball player with the Philadelphia Athletics (1938-51) and the Oakland Oaks (1951-54), has been Marin's inspector for industrial pollution for the past five years. Although he is the only one in the county, there are 24 inspectors scattered throughout the Bay Area who can be called in to assist him if the need arises.

In addition, local fire departments help Chapman by writing out violations for illegal burning (most cities forbid trash fires without a permit and no more permits are being issued) and referring violators and any complaints of illegal fires to him.

Chapman in his "marked" district car is becoming a familiar sight around the county and, not surprisingly, since he estimates he drives 150 miles a day, doing some checks and other reinspections, mostly on firms which have been a source of pollution in the past.

In addition to checking on fires which may contaminate the air, the inspector is on the lookout for businesses, such as service stations and dry cleaners, which release gases into the atmosphere. Companies which generate odors, dust and sewage are also a part of his check list.

Chapman said the number of complaints, especially against industrial plants, depend on the weather. For him a "good day" is one that is wet and rainy ("The smog blows away and no one notices or complains.") He refers to calm, sunny days as "bad weather," at least for pollution.

Persons who are considering waiting until the wee hours of the morning to burn their trash or who hope to "get away with" a small trash fire should beware, according to Chapman, who said the new rules make illegal burning a misdemeanor.

Violators can be sentenced to six months in jail or fined $500 or both, he said, adding the district plans to prosecute stubborn offenders. "They mean business," he said.

Chapman is hopeful all the cities in the county will take decisive steps to solve the problem of excess refuse before summer comes to leafy, green-lawned Marin. "If the garbage situation isn't resolved by summer, we may have some real problems," he admitted.

COMPARE!

BUYING A HOUSE WITH RENTING AN APARTMENT OR WITH OWNING YOUR OWN APARTMENT HOME.

In today's highly mobile and changing society, an ever greater number of people are moving into apartments because of the advantages they offer. People today WANT to have a pool. They WANT to spend their leisure time doing things other than yard work and painting. In other words, the apartment dweller is wary of becoming a house buyer for he suspects that his house might absorb his time and money and end up owning him.

It is well known that the renter of an apartment is penalized for his freedom. His rent money isn't buying anything, whereas the homeowner's or apartment home-owner's payments are slowly but surely building up equity. Just as important, the homeowner and apartment homeowner get to deduct the taxes and interest he's paid out every month from his annual Federal Income Tax returns in April.

Counterclaims Mideast War Exchanged In

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command said today commandos crossed into Egypt during the night, coming within 36 miles of Cairo. Egyptian officials described the report as a "complete forgery."

An Israeli spokesman said it was the closest a commando force has come to Cairo in the series of ground actions against Egypt that began Oct. 31, 1968.

In addition to striking near Cairo, commandos also attacked an army position and administrative center 40 miles west of Ras Za'Farana on the Gulf of Suez, the spokesman continued.

The attack near Cairo, the spokesman explained, concentrated on rear echelon forces who man the Cairo-to-Suez road. He said commandos hit telephone lines and electric pylons.

No further details were availtance between targets.

PLANES BUSY

Israeli air force planes hit targets in the Ras Za'Farana area Friday night, presumably as cover for the landing force.

In Cairo, Egyptian officials denied the Israeli claim. They said "the incident is a complete forgery," they added there was no disorder in telephone connections between Cairo and Suez and power lines are "unhurt."

Egyptian officials also reported that an Israeli Skyhawk pilot downed over the Suez Gulf Friday apparently was killed in the shark-infested waters of the Red Sea. The officials said the sharks beat an Egyptian launch to the location.

The Israelis announced that one of its planes was hit in raids Friday and the pilot was seen bailing out over Egypt. The Egyptians claimed they shot down three planes.

CAIRO'S SIDE

The Cairo spokesman added: "Enemy planes attempted to raid other targets south of Suez but our defenses drove them away."

He said there were no casualties and no damage from the raids.

An indication of the intent behind the Israeli raids came Friday when Premier Golda Meir said Israel must try to foil Egypt's plans for war.

Speaking at a businessmen's lunch Mrs. Meir said President Gamal Abdel Nasser is always talking about war, but "apparently his timetable is always changing according to the rate of bombing of the Israeli air force." Nasser recently said Egypt would not be ready for war for five years.

"What convinced Nasser was not the speeches of the Israeli prime minister calling for peace, but that he has learned that he cannot start a war and win it," she said.

She said the Israeli air force was not out to "knock Nasser out of power, but to cut him down to size."

"If our planes bombed not far from Cario it should convince the people into what direction its leader was dragging them."

Kidnap Chase Hurts Five Girl Is Safe

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — An ex-convict and four law officers injured in a wild chase after $2,500 ransom was paid in an abortive kidnaping Friday.

The kidnap victim, Miss Patricia Childs, 18, of Overland Park, was released to her father after he handed over $3,500 in $100 bills in an Olathe parking lot.

The ex-convict, Thomas Preston Lamb, 28, of Fort Scott, was charged with first-degree kidnaping and his bond was set at $50,000. He was in custody at the University of Kansas Medical Center where he was being treated for head injuries. Police said seized Miss Childs was seized Thursday night at a shopping center. Arrangements for paying the ransom were made by telephone Friday.

The father, Joseph J. Childs, parked his car in Olathe as directed. Police said Lamb drove up, accepted the money, let Miss Childs out of his car, then sped away.

Unmarked police cars tried to head him off, and a high-speed chase on Kansas 7 ended when Lamb's car crashed into a police car blocking the road.

Detectives Jim Beeler and Robert Norman were injured in a police car that had rammed Lamb's vehicle minutes before. Sheriff Fred Allenbrand said Norman was shot in the chest, apparently by a stray police bullet.

Also injured were detective John Hall and Larry Welch, an FBI agent, who were barricaded behind the car at the roadblock.

Students Missing

BERLIN (UPI)—Four Catholic theology students at the University of Munich disappeared last week after entering East Berlin for a visit and may be in Communist custody, Western officials said Friday. The students, three West Germans and one Yugoslav, had been in West Berlin for a seminar.

FULL FATHOM, MINUS FIVE

Shortest man in the U.S. Navy is Walter Brown, 19, (left), of Philadelphia, Pa. He was assisted by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., in persuading the Navy to let him in at half an inch below the minimum five feet height, after Brown wrote, "There is nothing in the streets for me but gangs and trouble. I want no part of them." With him at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center near Chicago is a fellow recruit, Michael Stiles, six feet, five inches.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Human Endurance Fantastic Among Some Rugged Individuals

VAN DELLEN

There are many outstanding examples of human endurance.

Surviving sevre conditions taks more than courage; physique, characetr, acclimatization to environment, and the racial group to which one belongs play a role.

Other factors einclud sex, age experience, type of clothing, and state of health when put to the suprem test.

SOME PEOPLE not only adjust to the cold and survive exptrems, but they thrive in thes etypes of environment. Anative of Nepal met members of a Himalayan expdition at 17,500 feet.

The 35-year-old Nepalese wore no shoes or gloves, and ewas clothd in thin, cotton trousers and a shirt. According to Dr. Ralph H. Johnson of the University of Oxford, the eman weatherd a snowstrom with high winds and temperatures of 5 degrees above zro.

Shivering was minimal and body temprature was maintained by a compensaetory ris in metabolism.

ALL YEAR-'ROUND the Ama womene of South Kora dive to the bottom of the sea for edible seaweds and shellfish. Tests show that an increase in metabolism protects them from the colde.

Th naked aborigines of Australis slep comfortably at night ien sver cold. This race has an adaptatfon not possessed by other groups.

Teh ebst age foer survival is btwen 30 and 40.

Channel swimmers who remain in the frigid water for 22 hours need a good layer of fat. Most of us would die in five hours. In cold water, considerable heat is lost by conduction, and the body temprature may fall 5.5 degres Fahrenheit in less than 30 minutes.

FOLLOWING THE Lakonia shipwreck in 1963, passengrs who wer eclothd and kept still had a higher rate of survival than those ho swam about or took off their clothing.

When the cheips ar down, nothing replaces morale, haelth, xperience, and knowing the tricks of survival.

Unity Week Stresses Importance of Grass Roots

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — An "ecumenical ennui," a kind of ho-hum lethargy, has settled over the movement for Christian unity, many church experts say. Yet it's still making headway, despite some setbacks.

And it's also developing some maverick momentum outside the official channels.

That was the mixed situation today as Christians around the world were to join once again in a special week of "Prayer for Christian Unity," tomorrow through next Sunday, under sponsorship of Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic organizations.

"Some Christians feel that the ecumenical movement has come to a stop, or gone into a slump or run out of steam," observes Rev. Titus Cranny, of the Graymoor Franciscan Friars, of Garrison, N.Y.

However, both that unity-minded Catholic order and numerous other church groups, Protestant and Catholic, cite the rising amount of transdenominational activity and attitudes developing spontaneously at grass roots levels.

Sometimes called a "rebel ecumenism," it goes on, despite the continued organizational divisions.

"It's really now out of the hands of us professionals," says Dr. Eugene L. Smith, secretary of the U.S. Conference of the World Council of Churches. "The dynamics are no longer where we can control them."

Dr. Kenneth G. Neigh, head of the United Presbyterian National Missions Board, predicts that "there probably is going to be union de facto long before ecclesiastical statues can be tidied up enough to admit union de jure."

Various action-oriented church groups on such matters as race, poverty, peace, and particularly among youth, have indicated scant interest in unity negotiations per se, viewing them as academic and secondary to concerted action on live issues.

Meanwhile, at the official, denominational levels, efforts toward unity last year yielded both advances and retreats.

The major setback came last summer when the Church of England voted to reject a plan for union with British Methodists after it had been worked out in 14 years of tedious negotiations.

"A tragic setback, but only a setback," commented Dr. Albert G. Outler, of Dallas, a noted American Methodist scholar and ecumenist. He said it wouldn't stop the effort. "Sooner or later they will resume negotiations and bring them off."

Among the forward steps:

—Common English texts for the Lord's Prayer, Apostles' and Nicene creeds and other key parts of Christian worship have been developed both by national and international commissions representing Roman Catholics and Protestants.

—A specific plan of union for nine major American Protestant bodies is expected to be ready for submission in March to the Consultation on Church Union, and if approved, relayed to participating denominations for reactions.

—In Asia, six denominations, including Methodists, Baptists, Brethren, Anglicans, Presbyterians and Disciples, with 1.3 million members, completed approval of plans to merge into the Church of North India in December 1970, culminating 40 years of negotiations.

—Joint Catholic-Protestant-Orthodox commissions now are studying possible ways for Roman Catholicism to affiliate with the World Council of Churches and National Council of Churches, potentially involving reorganization along new lines.

—A recent survey found that of the nation's 800 local council of churches, Roman Catholic dioceses or parishes now are full members of at least 35 of them, participate in other ways in 435 of them. Of the 50 state councils, Catholic dioceses are full members of six, and are negotiating membership in eight other states.

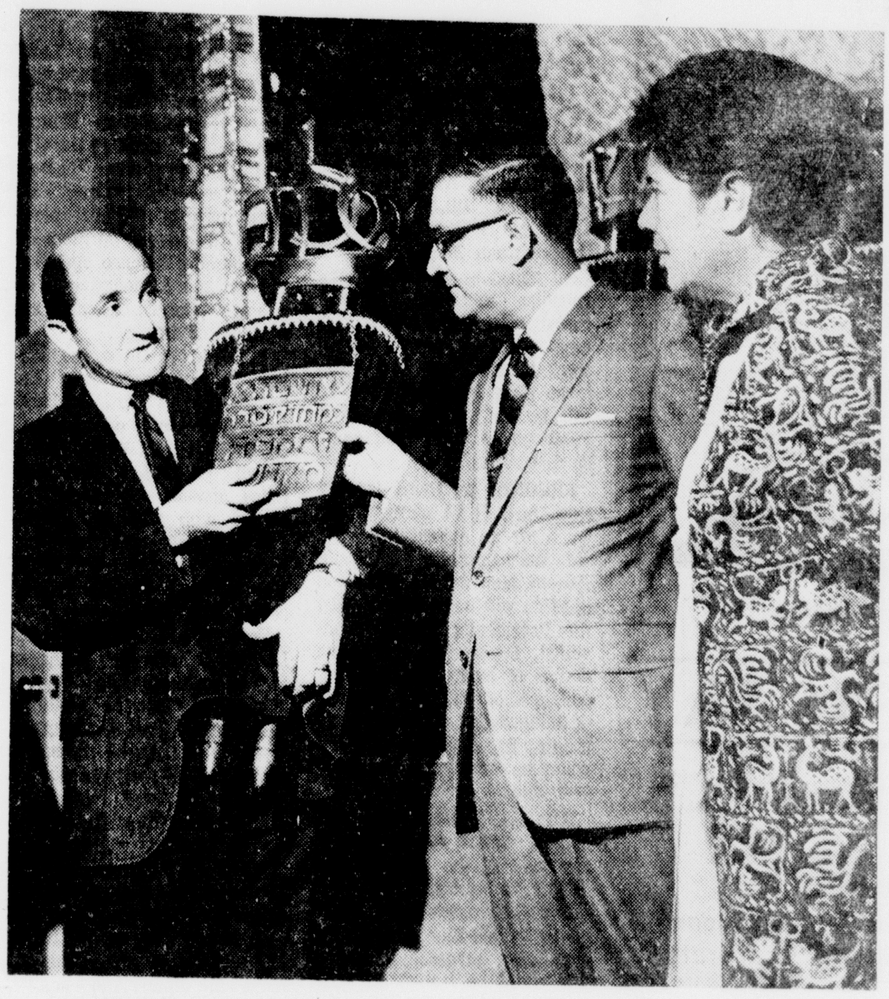

—After five years of preparation, a plan of union has been completed for a united church of New Zealand, involving Anglicans, Presbyterians, Methodists, Congregationalists and the Church of Christ, with four more years needed for them to act on it individually.

—An Eastern Orthodox-Roman Catholic consultation, meeting last month in Worcester, Mass., reported "remarkable and fundamental agreement" on doctrine concerning the Eucharist or Lord's Supper.

—The United Presbyterian Church and the Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern) have reopened union talks, a decade after the breakdown of a similar effort.

—Lutherans and Episcopalians in this country last fall launched a two-year series of theological talks to explore differences and seek closer relationships.

—Joint commissions of the Anglican Church and United Church of Canada have completed a draft unification plan, proposing an Episcopal form of government and recognition of the ancient creeds as a basis for merger.

BISHOPS LEARN ROPES TO PROJECT ON TV

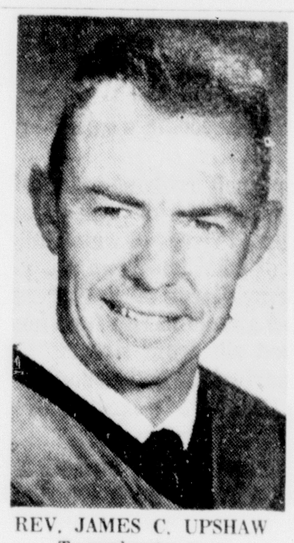

LONDON (AP) — Is it ethical for the bishop to use a teleprompter when addressing his flock? In an era when the medium is the message, apparently so.

Thirteen Roman Catholic bishops graduated a week ago Friday from a week's cram course in how to project the best possible image on television.

They were the first pupils at Britain's newest television station, the $600,000 Catholic Radio and Television Center in suburban Hatch End. For a week they wrote scripts, faced cameras—and received critiques from instructors.

"You must have training if you're going to use the medium," said Archbishop John Murphy of Cardiff, Wales. "The hardest thing is that there's no reaction at all from the camera. In church you can see them going to sleep—at least that's some reaction."

The course was intended to make the churchmen better versed in handling modern communications media. Among the fine points the bishops learned was the use of the teleprompter.

REV. JAMES C. UPSHAW
To moderator post

Marin Pastor Synod's Moderator

Rev. James C. Upshaw, pastor of Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda since 1960, has been elected moderator of the Synod of the Golden Gate, United Presbyterian Church, USA.

Election of Upshaw to the high post came last week at the sixth stated session in Walnut Creek.

As synod moderator, which includes 167 Presbyterian churches in the north coastal area, Upshaw will chair all stated synod sessions and be its representative and spokesman for a year.

Prior to assuming the Terra Linda post, Upshaw was pastor of the Walnut Creek Presbyterian Church. He has been an active member of the Marin Council of Churches and involved in community organizations.

He is currently serving on the synod's clergy development committee. Also he has been for some years an in-pastor instructor at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Upshaw holds an undergraduate degree from the University of Miami. He received his theological degree from Princeton in 1950 and his master of theology degree from the San Anselmo seminary in 1964. He is married and the father of four high school and college-age children.

A Traveling Year In Sight For Pope

VATICAN CITY AP — If Pope Paul's New Year plea for peace is any indication, he is likely in 1970 to continue vigorous personal gestures to help end the world's wars.

One gesture may be a symbolic "peace trip" to Hiroshima, Japan, site of the atomic bomb explosion.

In 1969, the Pope renewed his long-standing offers to help in achieving what he called "reconciliation" in Vietnam and the Middle East. His Vatican relief agency, Caritas, shipped and flew millions of dollars in medicine and supplies to the sick,the wounded and homeless in those areas.

Pop Paul traveled for the first time to Africa, and in Uganda he met separately with Biafran and Nigerian delegates in an effort to get negotiations started again. He obtained only vague promises from both sides.

During the holiday season, Pop Paul expressed in several pessimistic speeches his frustration at not achieving results. World leaders—especially those of the major powers—bore the brunt of the blame.

These actions have led some observers to conclude that the Pope may be reverting to the role of a critical observer, rather than that of a participant in world affairs. Many, however, think he will not give up the personal diplomacy that has marked his six-and-one-half-year year reign.

Peace "concerns leaders, especially those invested with international responsibility," he said again on New Year's Day, during a "Day of Peace" Mass celebrated in a Rome church.

He ended his New Year's observation on peace with a prayer to God which took the form of a confession of humanity.

"Lord," the strongly worded prayer began, "our hands are still bloodstained from the last world wars, so that not all peoples have yet been able to take each other's hand in friendship."

He warned that "the terrible increasing danger of a world conflagration demanded the banishment of war from the earth.

And he closed the prayer with visions of "women in tears, children dying, refugees and prisoners crushed by the weight of solitude and suffering."

There has been considerable speculation in the past year that Pop Paul will visit to Hiroshima in 1970 to mark the 25th anniversary of the atomic bomb explosion, as another dramatic way to translate his concern for peace.

Last year the Vatican dampened such speculation. Some informants indicated the pontiff had been counseled by some advisers not to visit Japan because it would inevitably involve him in local controversy over nuclear and other armaments.

But the progress of the strategic arms limitation talks between the Soviet Union and the United States, which the Pope praised again, and the U. S. decision to return Okinawa to Japan could now spur the pontiff to make Japan his destination for his ninth trip aboard. He has been invited to the world's fair at Osaka and to Hiroshima by its mayor.

Psychology Of Life Seminar Is Scheduled

A six-week seminar on the psychology of life co-sponsored by the First Congregational Church and Christ Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Congregational Church, 8 North San Pedro Road.

Transactional Analysis, which is a system of understanding human behavior and solving life problems, will be used as a framework.

The seminars will cover such questions as "What is the best that family life can offer in 1970?"; and "What are some parent-child games?"

The first three seminars will be held at the Congregational Church with the final three at Christ Presbyterian, 620 Del Ganado.

Rabbi In Praise Of Graham's Work

NEW YORK (AP) — An American Jewish Committee official, Rabbi Dr. Marc Tanenbaum, praises Evangelist Billy Graham for breaking down stereotyped attitudes about Baptists being interested only in "personal salvation" and not in social concerns.

The rabbi said that Graham, in his recent sermons has demonstrated a keen concern for "social justice and for commitment to confront such basic issues as racial injustice, poverty, war and the generation gap," and has helped remove a common caricature of Baptists.

Protestant Praises Roman Catholicism

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — "It is far more exciting to be a Catholic than a Protestant these days," says the Dr. Walter W. Benjamin, a Methodist and head of the religion department at Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn.

After attending a two-week seminar at a Jesuit seminary here, he says the "Healthy ferment" in Roman Catholicism has made it the "Protestant church today — the church reformed, but always to be reformed.

$134 Per Member

ATLANTA (AP) — The 960,000 members of the Presbyterian Church U.S. southern contributed an average of $134.17 each to their denomination last year — a total of $128,456,434.

Faith Lutheran Sets Ecumenical Services

As part of Christian Unity Week which begins tomorrow, Faith Lutheran Church, 355 Los Ranchitos Road, will present two ecumenical-type services.

To dramatize the week's ecumenical message, the church will make use of laymen from five other neighboring congregations in Las Gallinas Valley.

Participating in either the 9 or 11 a.m. services will be Dr. Alan Ellsberg, principal of San Rafael High School, Episcopal Church of the Nativity; Dr. Coggs of Christ Presbyterian Church; John Thomson, First Congregational Church.

Also Paul Bosque, St. Isabella's Catholic Church and Mark Bollwinkel of Aldersgate Methodist Church.

The laymen represent five other churches which have joined with Faith Lutheran to form "The Ecumenical Convocation of Congregations." The group, formed last February, meets periodically to search for ways and means of ministering ecumenically to its area and Marin County as a whole.

Optional Celibacy For Catholic Priests Is Seen

NEW YORK (UPI)—Within five years there will be a change to optional celibacy for priests in the Roman Catholic Church, Rev. John A. O'Brien, research professor of theology at the University of Notre Dame, predicts.

"Before the Second Vatican Council one could scarcely find a Catholic newspaper or magazine that would publish an article favoring the change from Latin to the vernacular in the liturgy," Father O'Brien says in an interview in "Pastoral Life," a publication of the Society of St. Paul.

"But shortly after the Council met and discussed the subject with frankness and honesty, the Council voted overwhelmingly for the vernacular. I think a similar change to optional celibacy will take place in the next five years."

Blind Choir To Sing Tomorrow

The Chinese for Christ Hong Kong Blind Choir will make a return engagement at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo at tomorrow's 11 a.m. service.

All members of the choir are blind and have been trained to sing phonetically in English by their director, Stephen Shao.

The program will consist of hymns and Chinese folk songs which the choir accompanies on Oriental instruments.

New Book Angers A Church In Georgia

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Upset by a new book about its racial conduct, the Tattnall Square Baptist Church here has cancelled its account with the Baptist book store in Atlanta. Explained the pastor, Rev. Byron M. Wilkinson, "We are just tired of getting our teeth kicked out."

The book, "Ashes for Breakfast," by Gainer E. Bryon Jr. and the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Holmes, issued by Judson Press, tells of former ministers being expelled by the congregation for favoring integration, and about some of its mission converts in Africa being denied membership in it.

Many Conservationists, But Best Are Unnoticed

There are many kinds of conservationists.

There are single-minded conservationists, devoted to preventing pollution in one area only and somewhat unconcerned with what correction in their pet field may do to create other types of pollution.

There are those with a broader view, who realize that preservation of the environment must consider air, earth and water together--not each as a separate package.

And there are those who hold the view that, since it is man that pollutes the environment, the only answer is to stop the population explosion, by whatever means necessary.

SINCE CONSERVATION, and saving the environment, have achieved belated recognition as of vital importance to mankind, we have many vocal conservationists. Politicians have seized on "environment control" as a vote-getting issue. Restless youth have turned to it as a new front on which to attack the "establishment."

But there are other conservationists, each quietly "doing his own thing,"who are little noticed in all the hubbub. And were it not for them, the environment would be in much worse shape than it is.

These are the many home-owners and home-renters who take pride in their yards, and who plant green things and give them loving care.

THANKS TO THEM, much of Marin is greener now than it was in its pastoral days. Hillsides that then were covered only by wild grass that turned tinder-dry in summertime are adorned with trees, shrubbery and ground cover that remains green throughout the hot months.

Thanks to them, there are many more trees in Marin's valleys now than there were in the days when Indians and Spanish cattle roamed what now are close-built communities.

It is largely thanks to them that the air is as clear as it is, the floods no worse than they are, and the hills no more badly eroded. The green things they plant and keep alive are nature's own pollution fighters.

Of course, planting trees, shrubs and ground cover will not of itself preserve the environment. But the man or woman (and there are many such) who has planted a half-dozen trees where none grew before and has covered bare earth with flowers and greenery has done more toward that end than many of those who shout loudest about conservation.

THERE ARE STRANGE twists to this matter of conservation.

A generation ago (or even less) the word was "reclamation." The idea was to "reclaim" barren acres by getting water to them, to "reclaim" odorous marshes and shorelines by rip-rap and fill, so they would become useable land.

It was for such reclamation that the Department of Interior built great dams and diverted rivers to water millions of acres of what had been wastelands. The Army Corps of Engineers performed a reclamation function when it cleared silt from streams to keep them navigable, and deposited that silt along the shore to create more useable land.

But these, like some of today's "conservation" efforts, were too single-minded. The great dams dried up hillsides to water valleys, and sometimes increased the rate of erosion. And biologists discovered that riprapping and filling the shoreline was destroying forms of marine life that were the food of birds and fishes. Reclamation was altering the ecology. It was upsetting the balance of nature.

Then came the cry of all-out conservationists who would disturb nothing, leave everything just as it is (although the way it is may not be the way it once was nor the most desirable way to have it). If the marsh stinks, let it stink. If a once-navigable lagoon has silted up leave the silt there: it is a home for crabs.

RECOGNITION HAS COME but lately that leaving things as they are is not the answer either. If corrections are not made, floods will continue to cut larger channels, hills will erode away ever more rapidly, clear waters will be befouled--not only by man but by the deposit of silt.

The over-all approach to preserving and bettering the environment is yet to take form. We still have, for instance, the air pollution control people enforcing rules which may result in pollution of water or land, and vice versa. But we are beginning to get on the right track.

Meanwhile, those unsung men and women who plant green things--not with sense of mission but because they love them--deserve some credit as the best practicing conservationists we have.

Whither The Raccoons?

Marinites who count raccoons as regular boarders, whether fed as honored guests or as garbage can bandits, have noted that during stormy weather the cunning creatures do not show up.

Raccoons do not hibernate, in the sense of sleeping through the winter with their body functions slowed to a snail's pace. But, like the clever little fellows they are, they prefer to sleep out bad weather, knowing that sooner or later they can emerge on a dry calm world.

So, if you miss your raccoons on a rainy night be patient. As patient as a raccoon.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the City of Novato on its 10th birthday for a decade of progress that has seen it become Marin's second largest city and get well started on the way to desirable urban development.

BRICKBATS to those who complain about flooding yet dump trash in creeks which impede the natural flow of the water.

BOUQUET to Pat Hetherton for 15 years of dedicated, unpaid service on the San Rafael Planning Commission, from which he resigned this week. And a belated BOUQUET also to Philip F. Brown, who devoted many years to the San Rafael Library Board and earlier served as a city councilman before retiring from public service late last year.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A young model neatly avoided the clumsy advances of a week-end artist and chided him. "I bet you make passes like this at all of your models." "I swear," he answered, "you're the first." "How many models have you had?" she asked. "Four," he admitted sheepishly, "two bananas, an orange and you."

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Jan. 17, 1960

San Rafael City Council, heeding protests from a delegation that jammed city hall, agreed to repeal an old ordinance banning all-night parking on city streets.

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 17, 1950

Forty community leaders from Marin met in San Anselmo to form a "Marin County Transportation Committee," to fight a proposed 75 to 100 per cent rate increases in Greyhound commute fares.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Dollars Worthless If Environment Lost

Commuters of Marin, the hassle you all experienced while returning home from San Francisco on Friday evening, Jan. 9, was a mere nothing compared to what would happen if, from a natural or man-made disaster, everyone in San Francisco had to get out at the same time during a work day. All the dollars man makes are worthless if nothing is done to save our environment from ourselves. This is a problem of the utmost importance. It's something we can't pass on to the next guy.

Smog, Span Boards Should Cooperate

It seems as though the smog control board who places the blame of smog to a great degree on the automobile should get together with the Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

Instead of increasing the toll for Greyhound busses over the bridge, the toll should be decreased or eliminated! This, to encourage Greyhound to provide increased and improved service, commuter tolls should be increased substantially to make commuting by bus economically desirable.

Bus fares should not be increased, more feeder busses should be provided, all to cut down on the number of smog producing cars on the highway, to ease the parking situation in the city.

One last question for our smog control board. As long as our air on rainy days is smog free (rain cleanses the air) why not permit backyard burning on rainy days?

U.S. Wheat Surplus Not Sufficient

With regards AP's "World Paradox, Surplus and Starving" which appeared in Jan. 7 Independent Journal, the headlines should have read "Impending United States Famine."

When one stops to consider that the carry-over of stored wheat to year 1967 has been less and less, the year 1968 carry-over was down to an all-time low of 425 million bushels according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, and the expected 1969 carry-over was to be 545 million bushels, which would be about half of one year's normal wheat production. (1.5 billion bushels) in the United States, and that slightly more than half a normal year's production (or 600 to 700 million bushels) are needed for domestic use. It is apparent that the stock-piled grain is rather a meager stockpile if anything unforseen occurred. More so, since half a normal year's production is planned for export to other countries.

It is obvious then, that if next year's wheat crops suddenly take a drastic reversal from predictions and is struck by such disasters as drought, hail, cutworms, late, or excessive rain during harvest, freezes, floods, insects etc., etc., then the United States would have a carry-over able to supply domestic needs for only 10 months.

The world, as well as the U.S.A. had better wake up to the dire consequences of an ill-planned food production system which does not allow even one year excess to meet the needs of a disaster year.

LINES ON LIVING

Dialogue Of Generations: Which Is Aged, Infirm?

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Recently a dramatic exchange took place between father and son. They were engaged in dialogue, in the same room, but generations apart.

In outward appearance you would expect the son to be the younger man and the father the older person. And so it was, but only to the eye. For the older father, riper in years, sounded so young, so self-affirming, so vital and romantic; and the younger son, unburdened yet by age, was alas, so desperately faltering in self-sufficiency, vitality and verve.

AS THE CURTAIN rises, we have the son sloganizing for the newest conformity of freaking out in mass: "Legalize marijuana ... I think that marijuana and LSD should be legalized and taken off the hands of the Mafia and the police state."

"Shame on you, Allen," retorted the father. "You are the guru of the flower generation and you keep telling them to smoke pot and get high on LSD knowing that they can get in trouble with the police. You are setting a bad example for them Allen."

And as an afterthought the old man said: "I can get high on the view of a beautiful mountain stream and on the greenness of the fields." And this last sentence, I believe, tells the real age of the man just as Allen's true age shows in the burden of his faltering convictions.

WHO IS THE OLD man in this generation confrontation? Is it the father or his son Allen?

The father has put out 71 candles on his last birthday. The son lived only 41 years. But his is the older man in spirit. It is he who needs a crutch of potion for the encounter of life. His old father may be slackening in pace, waning in muscle and dimming in sight. But he is strong in vivifying posture, firm in personality and mighty in vision. He needs no outward help to fortify his inward enthusiasm and zest for life and the appreciation of beauty in the summons of nature. He sees what his junior of 30 years cannot see -- the gift of a perceptive heart that "can get high on the view of a beautiful mountain stream."

He needs no chemical prescriptions and life transfusions. He needs no props to buttress his spirit and zest for life and beauty and enkindlement. Reality is enough to excite him to tune-in on life's kicks — throbbing, self-made life. The old man has many years behind him but he still has much youth in his life. He is real and alive, not wrinkled and devitalized in shabbiness of heart and in the "cracks" of a synthetically blown-up mind.

IT IS THE younger son who is, indeed, the older soul. He needs a crutch-solution to keep him going from day to day: to escape the reality of life because he fails to grasp the enlivening growth of the yeast of life. His is the euphoria of a fleeting moment, the "pot" with the price tag of addiction and soul's servitude.

Reality to him is unreal, neither is it beautiful, nor exciting. In spite of his young chronological age his pace of living has slackened, his posture of life has stooped, his perceptiveness has been blurred.

Where shall he find courage to keep going when undiluted life has become a burden? His help cometh from a "heaven" crowded into the head of a marijuana molecule.

As the curtain closes, the dialogue ends. In your mind's eye the gap is a real gulf between father and son. Most of all, the incredible question looms: Who is the younger man and who is the older man? The young drop-out of life, or the old man "turning on" at the sight of a mountain's height?

Laird, Under Heavy Cross-Fire Near Top In Unpopularity Poll

WASHINGTON — In the contest for most unpopular (repeat unpopular) man of 1970, Sec. of Defense Melvin R. Laird expects when all the returns are in to rate close to the top. To this realist who has presided for 12 months over the vast congeries of the Department of Defense, the reasons are obvious.

First and foremost is his goal of one million jobs to be cut from the military-civilian-industrial complex. Some will be men in uniform, the cutbacks in Vietnam and elsewhere. Some will be civilian jobs eliminated from the far-flung defense establishment.

A large number, perhaps the highest proportion, will be jobs in industry out of cancellation and reduction of defense contracts. Laird, from his years on Capitol Hill, knows just what this will mean. While Congressman Zilch may be a stout opponent of big military spending and the military-industrial complex, when 500 employees are thrown out of work by the closing of a defense plant in his district, he will be on the phone to the Pentagon to say, "You can't do this to me."

SECOND, as Laird frankly says, he will be carrying the torch for an expansion of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system. How far the expansion is to go will be revealed when the President's budget is unveiled. Despite the grave doubts of leading nuclear scientists about the effectiveness of Safeguard, Laird believes in it today as resolutely as he did when he was torch bearer a year ago.

ABM is, Laird puts it, the biggest "chip" on the American side of the table in the "SALT" talks intended to halt the nuclear arms race. Safeguard in this view is the only significant bargaining counter that could be traded off with the Russians for, as an example, a stop to the rapid buildup of their blockbuster SS-9 missile.

The land-based missile with many warheads — MIRV, the multiple independently targeted re-entry vehicle—has gone beyond the point of no return. So has the Russians' multiple re-entry vehicle.

Laird has said publicly that American detecting devices have picked up three Pacific range tests of the Russian MIRV. The American MIRV has had at least 16 or 17 Pacific and Atlantic range tests and is in the hardware outfitting stage. All of this was foreseeable once the technology coming out of the Pentagon's division of defense and engineering began to roll with the inevitability that weapons technology seems to develop.

THE ATTACK on Laird from the right has gained considerable momentum. The conservative publication Human Events in an article in the current issue, headlined "Laird's Alarming Budget Cuts," accuses him of "liberal platitudes" in insisting on the need for reducing defense spending so that more money can go into urgent needs in health, education and welfare.

"Aside from these astonishing attitudes on defense," the article says, "Laird has also taken a decidedly dovish stand on Vietnam. White House sources contend, in fact, that Laird appears far more concerned with speeding American disengagement from the war than he does with South Vietnam's possible loss to communism."

From the left of center Laird has long been a target for his championship of Safeguard and for the cautious pace of the Vietnam phaseout. If he is concerned at being caught in this cross-fire, he shows no sign of it.

Vietnamization of the war is his No. 1 priority. At least two hours of his Pentagon day he devotes to working over and revising a big chart on the phasing-out process. Marked top secret, the chart has no fixed time tables. And when he goes out to Vietnam next month for a firsthand look one thing is certain—he will make no prediction about when the final withdrawal can take place.

ART BUCHWALD

It's A Dog's Life For Minks With Maxi-Fur Coat Craze

WASHINGTON — The maxi fur coat has put a terrible strain on all our furry animals. Everything from mink to raccoons is in tremendous demand, and it is impossible to fulfill all of the orders. I didn't realize how serious it was until I visited a fur farm in Upstate New York. I talked to a male mink named Emba who seemed to be very tired.

"It's been agony," he said, wiping the perspiration away from his forehead. "The farm is on a full 24-hour shift, but we still can't meet the demand. Stand in front of me so the farm owner doesn't see I'm resting."

Emba said, "It was bad enough when they introduced the maxi fur coat for women, but what really did it to us was when they started pushing maxi fur coats for men. There's just so much a mink can supply."

I believe I detected a teardrop in his eye.

"THIS USED to be a wonderful farm," he said. "We worked hard in the summertime to supply the pelts for fall and winter, and then we could take it easy. You know, play and roll around and rub noses, the stuff minks like to do. But then the furriers went crazy. They got into a fur-price war. They started dyeing furs in crazy colors; they made fur pants, fur blouses, fur apres-ski outfits; they put fur on fur. The fur farms were beseiged with orders. We were told to produce minks or else.

"Every time the farmer sees me resting, he starts measuring my pelt with a tape measure. What choice do I have?"

"IT MUST be hard on the female minks, too," I said.

"They hardly get to feed their offspring before they're expected to produce a new family. The farmer has installed loud-speakers which play music that is supposed to make our work easier, but in between the music he puts on commercials, such as 'An idle mink is a dead mink' and 'The mink paw you save may be your own.' "

"It must be difficult to give birth under those conditions," I said.

"The driving force behind every fur farm now is fear," Emba said.

"IT ISN'T just us," he continued. "Look at those rabbits over there. Would you believe at one time those rabbits were happy at their work?"

"They seem so listless and haggard," I said.

"When a rabbit doesn't want to be a rabbit, then you know the fur craze has gotten out of hand," Emba said.

"Are those beavers over there?"

"They used to be eager beavers, but even beavers have a breaking point. They're so tired reproducing other beavers they don't bother to build dams any more. You see that male beaver walking on all fours? Would you believe he's only one year old?"

"THIS PLACE certainly is depressing," I said.

"I don't know how much longer I'm going to last," Emba said. "I've fathered 134 mink babies, but it's getting to me.

"My back isn't what it used to be, and I have pains in my shoulders and I don't sleep well any more.

"If you would just send out the word that even minks have their limits, you would be doing everyone here a favor. It may be too late for me, but perhaps my sons and their sons would be spared what I've had to go through since the maxi fur coat became the fashion of the year."

TOO EXPENSIVE

Noble Mansions In Untitled Hands

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—There are more untitled owners of noble mansions in England these days than titled ones.

Trouble is, few titled Englishmen can afford the stately homes and lavish estates that have come down to them from the days when to be titled also meant to be rich. Virtually confiscatory inheritance taxes—"death duties" as they are called—have swept away many a lordly fortune.

Yet some of the most noble of English nobles do manage to hang on to their estates, and thereon hangs this story.

The Earl of Harewood, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, is for example spending $60,000 in purchase of two dozen penguins from the Antarctic, flamingos from Chile, hummingbirds and various other exotic bird life from around the world. All this to establish a lakeside bird colony in the grounds of his gracious stately home, Harewood House.

STRICTLY BUSINESS

Lord Harewood's project is strictly for business, to attract tourists—British and foreign alike—to come to his estate as paying visitors.

This business of luring tourists to their beautiful and historic houses, so they can afford to live in them and keep them in repair, has become a lively one among English peers. And a competitive business it is, too.

Among long standing competitors are Lord Montague of Beaulieu, whose come-on is an auto museum, the Duke of Bedford who runs a zoo and an antique market at his Woburn Abbey, and the Marquis of Bath who has lions and giraffes wandering around his estate at Longleat.

Lord Harewood opens his bird collection next Easter. This year the Duke of Marlborough started a garden center at Blenheim Palace and staged a pageant narrated by Richard Burton.

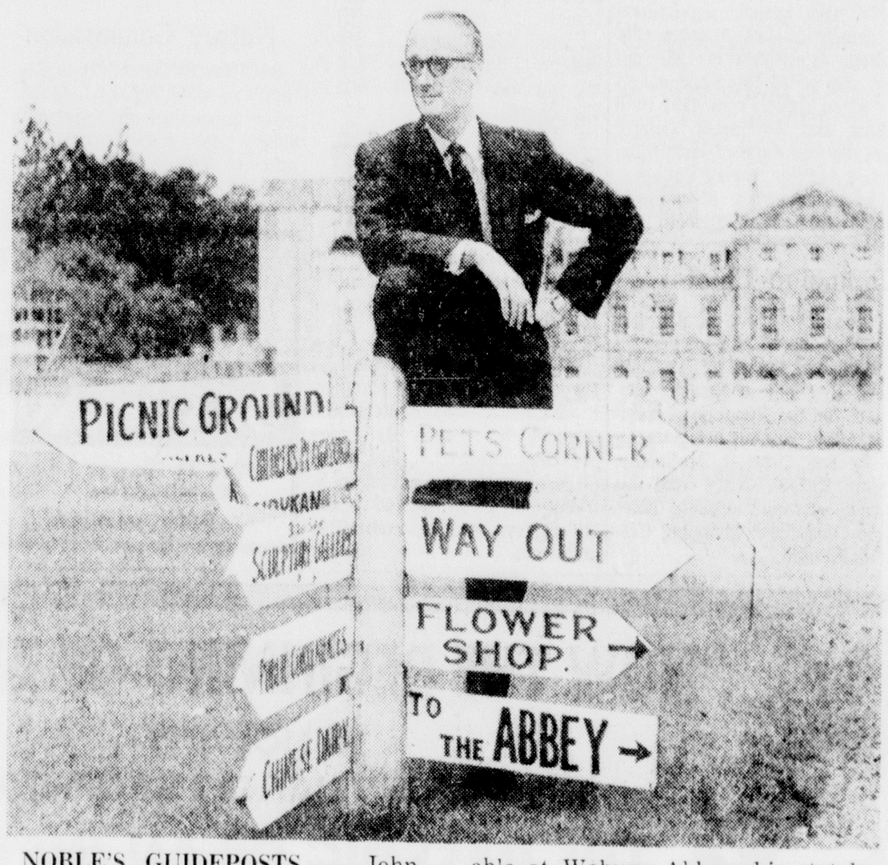

Several stately home owners have taken American tourists as paying guests. Stanford University has acquired Cliveden, the Astor family's stately home, as an overseas campus.

Not all land-poor peers have gone the tourist route, however.

TORN DOWN

The Duke of Westminister decided the best thing to do with his 100-bedroom Victorian gothic mansion, Eaton Hall, was to pull it down.

Sir Westrow Hulse, 9th baronet, whose family had lived for 10 generations in Breamore House, decided a four-bedroomed thatched cottage suited him better because of taxation and the problems of coping with such a big house.

NOBLE'S GUIDEPOSTS — John Robert Russell, the 13th Duke of Bedford, stands behind a signpost indicating the various activities available at Woburn Abbey, his stately ancestral home. The Duke manages to keep his residence going by luring tourists to it—for a fee.

Welfare Fraud Hurts The Deserving Poor

By CAPITAL NEWS SERVICE

Chiseling by welfare recipients costs taxpayers at least $59 million a year, a special panel to study welfare fraud reported. Sixteen per cent of all recipients are practicing some type of fraud, the panel also disclosed. Panelists were district attorneys and county counsels form the state's more populous areas plus an attorney form the state department of Social Welfare office.

The largest percentage of frauds were found to be in cases where recipients conceal outside income. The second largest category was the unreported man assuming the role of spouse in the welfare home.

The panelists arrived at their figures by searching out welfare fraud cases in June 1969, and extending the June percentages throughout a full year. The panelists also aimed much criticism at "recipient oriented" caseworkers, who abet their charges in fraud. The panel recommended harsher penalties for chiselers plus and extended education program to teach recipients and case workers the perils and evils of fraud. "We will be proposing new ligislation and writing new regulations for county welfare departments," said State Social Welfare Director Robert Martin.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST became a big legislative issue here this week when Republican leadership announced it will seek to abolish former Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh's bill before it takes effect and replace it with even a tougner law. Sponsors of the GOP measure are Assembly Speaker Robert Monagan and Sen. Howard Way, speaker pro tempore of the Senate. The Unruh bill would not take effect until April 15.

Chief provisions of the replacement act call for more thorough reporting of campaign contributions; replacement of the old Joint Legislative Ethics Committee with two watchdog commissions; and criminal penalties for State officials and employees — even former employees — who use their jobs for private gain. The bill has the backing of Gov. Ronald Reagan. It received tepid praise from Unruh along with his conjecture the new bill may end as a softening of his own.

LONG HAIR got a quasi judicial trimming in a decision by the California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board. The board ruled that it is perfectly alright to fire an unshorn employee and that the hippie-oriented type has no benefits.

This Week In The World

BY U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Nigerian civil war ended this week in victory for the Union, and the government promised a "massive relief operation" to provide food and medicines for an estimated 3 million persons in former rebel territory.

Odumegwu Ojukwu, refugee leader of the Eastern Region's effort to secede from Nigeria and set itself up as the independent nation of Biafra, charged that members of his Ibo tribe face "complete annihilation" at the hands of other tribal groups. He appealed to the world for help.

A team of military observers from Britain, Canada, Poland, Sweden and the United Nations reported, however, that they saw no signs of starvation or mass slaughter in a tour of the East. They said roads are open and relief shipments are getting through.

Britain was sending in trucks by air and sea to aid the relief effort and the United States said it was preparing a program "aimed at delivering the largest amounts of food, medical supplies and other required materials to the people who need them."

Government policy appeared to be conciliatory. Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, chief of Nigeria's military regime, said civilian officials who joined the rebels will be rehired "as soon as they come out of hiding." Army officers who supported the Biafran cause are being addressed by their regular ranks.

The Eastern Region, formerly a single area, presumably will now be divided into a number of provinces in accordance with a plan advanced by the government before the 30-month war.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

ATLANTA—The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was eulogized on Thursday, which would have been his 41st birthday, in memorial services at the Ebenezer Baptist church where he used to preach. Similar observances were held in a number of other cities.

BEIRUT, Lebanon—Angry townspeople set fire to a Palestinian guerrilla headquarters in southern Lebanon, apparently fearing a nearby school might be hit if Israel retaliated for Arab attacks originating in the area. The government closed the headquarters and another in an adjacent town.

JERUSALEM—Israeli jets bombed a big Egyptian air force supply center nine miles from Cairo and Egypt's biggest military base, 25 miles from the capital.

WASHINGTON—The Commerce Department reported that President Nixon's anti-inflationary program succeeded in halting U.S. economic growth in the last quarter of 1969, presumably slowing price rises. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said cuts in the next defense budget would cost about 1.25 million employes of the government and defense contractors their jobs.

NEW YORK—A federal grand jury handed up indictments charging Martin Sweig and Nathan M. Voloshen with fraud and conspiracy to defraud government agencies. Sweig is a suspended administrative aide of House Speaker John W. McCormack and Voloshen is a reputed influence peddler.

WASHINGTON—The U.S. Supreme Court, with Chief Justice Warren E. Burger dissenting, ordered six deep-South states to integrate school districts by Feb. 1. The ruling reversed an appellate court decision.

BONN—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt called for talks to establish a "regular relationship" between his government and EAST Germany's Communist regime. In a speech to parliament, however, Brandt insisted that international recognition of East Germany is "out of the question."

TOKYO—Premier Eisaku Sato was reelected by Japan's House of Representatives in a vote that followed party lines. Sato reaffirmed his moderate-conservative domestic policy and his pro-American foreign policy.

Russia, China, U.S.—What Is In Store During 1970s?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the 1960s, the United States and Soviet Russia came close to war over Cuba. Does similar danger lurk ahead in the 1970s? What of the Russian ideological conflict with Red China? Does this threaten war? Few persons are more competent to answer such questions than the writer of this dispatch. Henry Shapiro is the dean of American correspondents in the Soviet Union where he has served as UPI Moscow bureau chief since 1937. He has been a witness to virtually every major event in the Soviet Union since that time.)

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — "Your children will be Communists," said the ebullient ruler of all the Russias, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, to a group of Western journalists and diplomats at a Kremlin reception.

"Let us say your grandchildren," the more cautious and diplomatic Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan corrected his chief.

"And your grandchildren will be Chinese," a diplomatic wit interjected.

The conversation took place in 1961 at the beginning of what appeared would become a roaring Khrushchevian decade at the end of which the last of the Soviet Messianic leaders promised to achieve the world's highest living standard.

DREAMS TO REALITY

By 1980, the irrepressible Khrushchev who was about to launch the new 20-year Communist program, predicted, the Soviet Union would be well on its way towards achieving the Age of Communism under which the Marxist dream "from everyone according to his ability, to everyone according to his needs," would become reality.

Not only would the Soviet Union reach a near Utopia but a good part of the world, influenced by the Soviet example, would voluntarily choose communism which by then would have proved infinitely superior to capitalism in all respects, including productivity of labor.

Khrushchev proved a poor prophet. Even then the Khrushchevian vision was beginning to dim for a variety of reasons, an important one of which was the rise of Communist China and the historic break between Moscow and Peking.

This was illustrated by the diplomat's retort reflecting a deep-rooted fear which has since become even more widespread that within the predictable future teeming masses of Chinese might try to swarm across Europe.

KHRUSHCHEV TOPPLED

Three years later Khrushchev himself was to be toppled on a number of charges which included boastfulness, hare-brained scheming, mismanagement of the economy and improper handling of the Chinese problem.

He was succeeded by a collective leadership consisting mostly of trained engineers whose top three men are practical technocrats who started their careers behind industrial drafting boards.

Different as the present ruling troika is from Khrushchev, particularly in its relatively self-effacing modesty, absence of boastfulness and "evangelism," with few modifications it has continued most of the deposed leader's foreign policies.

No sooner was Khrushchev ousted than Chinese premier Chou En-lai rushed to Moscow in November 1964 in the vain hope of extracting political and ideological concessions from the Kremlin.

WANTED WAR

Peking wanted, among other things, no less than a Soviet armed offensive against the West with all the risks of a nuclear war between the Soviet Union and the United States. It had accused Khrushchev of "cowardice" and fear of the American paper tiger when he pulled Soviet missiles out of Cuba.

NIKITA S. KHRUSHCHEV
Accused of fear

A few weeks later the Chinese branded the new Soviet leaders of practicing Khrushchevianism without Khrushchev." The ideological war spilled over into interstate relations which became practically nonexistent. To this day the Russians, in Chinese jargon, are "the clique of renegade revisionists."

"Insane, great-power jingoists," the Russians shout back at the Chinese.

The break between the two giant Communist nations was not a mere episode but had all the elements of an enduring split which would not be bridged for centuries.

RELATIONS DEGENERATE

Never in the worst days of the cold war did relations between capitalist America and Communist Russia degenerate to such low points as characterized Sino-Soviet relations during the 1960s.

What is the prospect for the 1970s?

Moscow and Peking this year came pretty close to war which, as the Russians said, could become nuclear and envelop all continents. Border fighting with the loss of scores of Soviet and Chinese soldiers threatened to spread across the entire Eurasian land mass. There were serious hints that the Soviet Union might try a preemptive strike against China's nuclear installations.

The game of brinkmanship had gone too far and Moscow, risking a Chinese snub, sent Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to Peking in September to plead for a reasonable accommodation before time ran out.

The Chinese agreed and the two Communist rivals in October began what are certain to be long and arduous negotiations to settle their most direct and most explosive problem—demarcation of the imprecise 4,347-mile-long border. There has been a moratorium on border incidents and a diminution of hostile polemics.

MAY BE REASON

It is assumed that neither the Russians nor the Chinese, extreme as they may have been in their diatribes against each other, are suicidal maniacs.

The beginning of the new decade probably will see a delineation of the border and a defusion of the crisis so as to prevent trigger-happy frontier guards from plunging their countries into a universally disastrous war.

If the border problem with China is resolved at least temporarily, it may bring about an improvement in other interstate relations, diplomatic and economic. Then relative quiet will prevail along both sides of the world's longest frontier. But friendship, not to mention partnership, between the two Communist nations does not appear to be in the cards.

The Russians, with their strong sense of security, will not trust the Chinese in the years to come. They will have to continue the deployment of substantial forces on the Chinese border although they may be pulled back an agreed distance from the boundary line.

AGREE ON WEST

If the Russians have steadfastly maintained that peaceful coexistence with the capitalist West does not include ideological coexistence, this is even more true with regard to China.

To people and nations of strong ideological or religious convictions the heretic is worse than the infidel. Capitalist nations are infidels to the Communists and a modus vivendi can be worked out between them. But to each other the Russians and Chinese are heretics with whom there can be no doctrinal compromise.

Normalization of interstate relations between Moscow and Peking in the coming debate may affect the degree of ideological warfare, but warfare there will be.

There is no reason to believe that within the next few years, even after the passing of Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese will modify their extreme views on world revolution, peaceful coexistence and the class struggle and accept the milder form of transition to socialism now advocated by the Russians.

Aside from ideological divergences the issues between Moscow and Peking are too deeply rooted in history, geography and culture and their rivalry for control of the world Communist movement is too sharp to permit a general detente.

INFLUENCE ON RELATIONS

The Sino-Soviet conflict will continue to influence Moscow's relations with the West, particularly the United States. Militarily the balance of power will be changed to Soviet disadvantage because, even if relations with China improve, the Russians for many years will fear Chinese ambitions and plans.

The huge army the Kremlin will have to maintain in the Far East as well as in the West will be a serious drain on Soviet resources.

The Russians will also look with suspicion upon any efforts Washington will make to normalize relations with Peking.

CHOU EN-LAI
Sought concessions

The establishment of some form of Sino-American diplomatic relations within the coming decade may be expected.

It would be contrary to normal diplomatic practice if the United States did not take advantage of the Sino-Soviet conflict to improve its own position. But the United States would be no less anxious than other countries to discourage a war between the two Communist countries—a conflict into which the rest of the world might be drawn.

SEEK ACCOMMODATION

One of Khrushchev's policies that the current troika of Soviet leaders has not abandoned is the search for an accommodation with the United States.

A few days after Khrushchev's ouster, party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Kosygin went out of their way at a Kremlin reception to assure the American ambassador that nothing would change in Soviet-American relations. On the contrary, the new leaders would strive for further improvement.

The policy of detente was pursued with vigor by American leaders following President John F. Kennedy's initiation of an extended dialogue with Khrushchev in 1963. America would seek to reassess its relations with the Soviet Union, Kennedy said in the aftermath of the Cuban crisis of October 1962.

The Kennedy line was continued by Lyndon B. Johnson and is favored by the current administration of Richard M. Nixon.

The implementation of the policy has been made difficult by and suffered serious setbacks from the Berlin crisis, escalation of war in Vietnam and the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Yet despite zigzags and setbacks, disappointments and unfulfilled promises, neither Washington nor Moscow has abandoned hope of reaching an eventual understanding.

A number of significant agreements have been concluded such as the ban on nonunderground nuclear tests, the nonuse of space for nuclear purposes, cultural and consular conventions and more recently the treaty of non-proliferation of nuclear weapons.

JOHN F. KENNEDY
Initiation of dialogue

MILESTONE REACHED

A milestone in American-Soviet relations was reached with the agreement to start talks on the limitation of strategic arms.

The talks will probably continue for several years and, barring the imponderables of history, are expected to end in the most meaningful agreement on disarmament ever achieved.

In the meantime, particularly when the war in Vietnam is terminated, improvement in other areas of American-Soviet relations—such as normalization of trade and expanded cultural contacts—probably will be registered.

The climate of American-Soviet affairs also will be favorably affected if new West German Chancellor Willy Brandt is successful in his professed desire to work out a modus vivendi with East Germany and other East European Communist countries.

What may become a new, fruitful era in East-West cooperation will also be influenced by the Soviet-proposed PanEuropean conference on security to be held in 1970. The conference will become more promising as a result of the Soviet abandonment of earlier insistence that the Americans and Canadians have no business in Europe. As the meeting now seems to be shaping up it will be in the nature of a NATO-Warsaw Pact assembly at which some of the members of both camps will probably raise the question of scrapping both military blocs.

Much will be tried in the forthcoming decade and considerably less will be achieved. But in the opinion of seasoned analysts the general trend of Soviet-American relations will be away from brinkmanship and towards more international cooperation.

Council To See Sewer Proposal

Preliminary designs for one-quarter of San Rafael's $1 million sanitary sewer reconstruction project will be presented to the San Rafael City Council when it meets Monday at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Prepared by Dan Coleman Associates of Greenbrae, the plans include sewer improvements in the older, downtown portion of San Rafael, according to Norris M. Rawles, public works director.

The reconstruction will include replacement and re-sizing of pipes and a new pumping station for the sanitary system, Rawles said.

The council will also accept the city's annual audit for 1968-69, and consider a Traffic Committee recommendation to limit parking on portions of Ritter Street to two hours on weekdays.

Magician Takes Over Reins For College

THE NEW BOSS — Dr. John A. Grasham, new president of College of Marin, answers an interviewer's question in his office. Grasham, caught up in learning about the district, its programs and problems, said he has been "very impressed" by students and staff he has met and by community attitudes toward the school. (Independent-Journal photo)

Taking over as president of a junior college in mid-year is a lot like stepping onto a moving merry-go-round.

John A. Grasham, who stepped aboard little over a week ago, has already begun moving in several directions at once while keeping his feet firmly on the ground.

If that sounds unlikely, remember that Grasham is a member of the Internation Brotherhood of Magicians, which can't hurt him in taking over the growing college.

"You can see from my desk what I've been doing," he said, waving a hand at a foot-high stack of papers and reports threatening to overflow their wire basket. "The stack's only half as high as it was, but they keep coming in."

He has done more than read reports, however. In the past week he has met members of the Academic Senate, attended a district board workshop on computer needs, got running reports on the state of floods and flood control on campus, and trekked to Sacramento to discuss the status of state funding for building projects on the Kentfield campus.

First priority for now, he said, appears to be the college's financing. "I haven't talked to anyone who was not concerned about financing," he said. "We are now in the process of matching budget requests to income" for 1970-71.

Staff is now formulating a proposal for future computer needs, he said, with a view to performing education functions and record-keeping on the same computer syste.

Grasham, with only a few days in the district, was not anxious to project any over-all impressions without more time to look things over. He did say he had been impressed by staff members he has met, "and by the people I've met in the community . . . they have an interest in the college and, by and large, a lot of pride in the college."

One thing that appears to have stuck in everyone's mind about Grasham is his hobby as a magician. But he hasn't actively practiced any magic for six or seven years, Grasham said. It takes too much time and energy away from being an administrator, he said. He no longer writes for the same reason.

His remaining hobby is photography and he does his own darkroom work with black and white film.

Grasham, 49, came to College of Marin from Los Angeles Southwest College, a campus founded in 1967 and under his leadership since. Still in Los Angeles are his wife, Elizabeth, and their three younger children, who will finish the high school year there. The Grashams have five children, James, 21, Jack, 19, Neale, 16, and twin daughters, Margaret and Mary, 14.

Grasham was a speech teacher before entering administration, receiving his bachelor's degree at Arizona State College, Tempe, and his master's and doctorate at the University of Southern California.

He was speech department chairman at Los Angeles City College from 1948 to 1958 and was also coordinator and assistant dean there.From 1958 until taking the Southwest College post, he was dean of instruction at Los Angeles Harbor College.

He is co-author of a book, "Improving Your Speech," as well as professiional articles. In 1962 and 1963 he taught at the University of Trieste on a Fulbright grant and gave a lecture series there, then camped through Europe with his family before returning to this country.

Grasham is also chairman of the California Junior College Association's committee on articulation with other educational institutions.

He is a member of Rotary Internation, a trustee of the United Methodist Church of Sepulveda, and the Hollywood Ring of the International Brotherhood of Magicians.

Pro Football One Big Happy Family (Almost)

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's long-awaited realignment finally has been accomplished to the apparent general satisfaction of all 26 clubs in the merged National and American leagues.

Not surprisingly, it took a woman's hand to finish the job.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle rates a medal, according to at least one club official, for wrapping up the eight month-long hassle over makeup of the National Conference Friday in a luck-of-the-draw package that appeared to leave only four teams out in the cold.

But if Rozelle gets his medal, his secretary, Thelma Elkjer merits no less than the Order of the Flower Vase.

After 13 National Conference club owners had fumbled their way through almost 65 hours of debate in realignment sessions beginning last May, Miss Elkjer reached into a cut glass flower vase at 11:26 a.m., EST, and drew the following ormat:

EAST DIVISION—Dallas, New York Giants, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington.

CENTRAL DIVISION—Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay and Minnesota.

WEST DIVISION — Atlanta, Los Angeles, New Orleans and San Francisco.

SOUGHT WARMTH

Then everyone went home happy, with the possible exception of the four Central Division bosses—linked together as they were last season in the National Football League but deprived of the warm-weather city all had sought as an addition to their line-up.

"There is some unhappiness, but I talked to the owners and they thought it was a fair shot and a satisfactory solution," said Rozelle, who prescribed the lottery and placed five possible alignments in the grab bag after deciding the owners had exhausted all other efforts to reach agreement.

If the four Central clubs were keenly disappointed with the result, they succeeded in masking that disappointment.

"We're pleased to remain with the Central Division as we've known it," said Jim Finks, general manager of Minnesota's 1969 NFL champs. "We feel they (the Bears, Lions and Packers) are not only geographical rivals but traditional rivals and the ones our fans have the most feeling for."

LIONS SATISFIED

"We're satisfied with it," said Detroit owner William Ford. "We had hoped that we might be able to have included a warm weather city in our division, but at the same time, we d also hoped to maintain the traditional rivalries with Green Bay, Chicago and Minnesota."

"Competitively, we eel the Bears are in the bestdivision," added George Halas Jr., whose father helped found the NFL 51 years ago and has guided the fortunes of the Chicago franchise ever since. "These four teams have won seven NFL championships in the last ine years."

"Cold weather doesn't bother any team, providing you don't have to play the last third of the schedule in it," said Phil Bengtson, coach and general manager of the Packers. "Everyone wanted a southern rival because of the weather and bigger parks. We'll get this chance because every team will play intra as well as interleague games. Our three games against American Conference teams could well be in Southern cities."

Elsewhere, the reaction was favorable, too.

OLD RIVALRIES

"We're very happy—it preserves some of our oldest rivalries," said New York owner Wellington Mara.

"We came into the league with these teams 10 years ago," said Dallas general manager Tex Schramm, "so as far as the Cowboys are concerned, we are extremely pleased from a club standpoint."

"We're delighted to be aligned with three teams representing great football cities with enthusiastic fans," said Jack Teele, assistant to Los Angeles president Dan Reeves.

One of the conditions of the 1966 AFL—NFL merger was that the Rams and 49ers remain in the same division under any realignment set-up.

"The Saints are just delighted to be with the Coastal people," said Vic Schwenk, general manager of New Orleans—the only

49ERS ARE ECSTATIC, COULDN'T BE HAPPIER

Said Lou Spadia, president of the 49ers after San Francisco was grouped with Los Angeles, New Orleans and Atlanta in the Western Division of the National Football Conference yesterday:

"I'm not just happy, I'm estatic. This is our optimura situation. This is exactly what we wanted and we couldn't be happier."

Added Art Johnson, Spadia's assistant: "It couldn't have been better. We have old rival Los Angeles plus two young, energetic franchises. Both Atlanta and New Orleans are coming like gangbusters. They are both in the hot bed which leads you to believe they will continue to play before large crowds. Both Atlanta and New Orleans are warm-weather towns, but it did rain in both games down there this season."

Hard Luck Nate Thurmond Out With A Knee Injury

Warriors Also Lose To 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hard luck Nate Thurmond did it again. The 6-foot-11 center of the San Francisco Warriors injured his right knee so badly he left here on crutches.

Thurmond suffered a bone bruise diving for a loose ball Friday night in the first period of a National Basketball Association game the Warriors eventually lost to the Philadelphia 76ers 127-105 at the Spectrum.

Injury has been Thurmond's history. Almost every year, the 235-pound former Bowling Green player comes up with an injury. His latest bruise is particularly frustrating, since it may keep him out of Tuesday night's NBA All-Star game in Philadelphia.

PAINFUL KNEE

"My chances of playing Sunday (against Milwaukee) are definitely out," Thurmond said as he leaned against a locker unable to straighten out the painful right knee.

Thurmond received the second highest vote of sports writers and sportscasters for the league's All-Star West team.

Thurmond explained his injury this way:

"I dove for the ball. I didn't feel any pain. But when I got up the knee felt as if it was locked. They say I fell down again. I don't remember." Two San Francisco teammates had to form a human chair to carry Thurmond from the floor.

If he doesn't play in Tuesday's All-Star game, it will be the second time in the five times he has been named to the squad that an injury sidelined him.

He did twist an ankle earlier in the season and missed three games, but had had no major mishaps.

As for the game with the 76ers, the Warriors let it slip away in the second period after battling to a 29-29 tie in the first quarter. Philadelphia's sixth man, Wally Jones, came on at the start of the second quarter and scored 15 of his 20 points to spark the 76ers to a 14-point halftime bulge. The Warriors never got closer than 10 after that.

Great Tire Controversy Bumps Jones, Five Others

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — In auto racing, sometimes the pre-race battles are the most interesting.

Parnelli Jones, 1963 Indianapolis 500 winner, found out what that means Friday when a tire technicality bounced him out of the pole position for Sunday's Motor Trend 500 auto race at Riverside International Raceway.

Officials of the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing said the Firestone tires used by Jones were ineligible bebecause Firestone didn't have enough tires at the track to supply any driver who wished to use them.

The ruling affected Jones and five other drivers who used Firestone tires during qualifying runs Thursday.

Lin Kuchler, NASCAR vice president, said Jones and the others would have to relinquish their qualifying spots but may start at the back of the 44-car pack if they could change to eligible tires.

Those affected were Jones, who qualified first with a speed of 112.337 miles an hour, Ray Elder, 9th, Jack McCoy, 13th, Scotty Cain, Sam Rose and from the West Coast.

And coincidentally, Jones is West Coast representative for Firestone.

PARNELLI WORRIED

"I don't mind starting at the back of the pack," said Jones after the controversy flared. "But what I'm worried about is getting tires for the drivers who want to use Firestones."

Kuchler said the decision to bounce Parnelli was made "following a count of tires on hand at the Riverside racing facility." He said 109 tires were available and 600 would be needed.

Jones and the five others immediately protested. Why, they asked, should they be allowed to qualify with Firestone tires and then be told they couldn't race with them?

Besides, Parnelli pleaded, all the other drivers in the race who are using Goodyear tires have 9½-inch rims on their cars. The Firestones, and consequently the auto wheels, have 9-inch rims and thus the Goodyear tires wouldn't even fit their cars.

"There is no way I can race now," growled Jones. "They're trying to put me out of business. We have more tires on hand here today than we had on hand for last year's race and more than we had at any other NASCAR grand national race in 1969.

Johnny Steel. Oddly, all are "Firestone has put $20,000 in accessory money for NASCAR races on the West Coast," he added. And we service nearly 90 per cent of those drivers and they make up about 50 per cent of the drivers in this race. If I lose them, I'm out of business."

The $100,000 race also has other problems: like for instance, rain.

The track's second day of qualifying was washed out Friday.

With Parnelli out of the starting pole position, Dan Gurney, driving a Plymouth SuperBird atop Goodyear rubber, moved into the top spot.

If more rain is encountered, the Motor Trend may have to be run next weekend.

Cassius Calls It Quits

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay, the undefeated 28-year-old heavyweight boxing champion who has not had a fight in three years, has announced his retirement from the ring.

Clay, who prefers to be called by his Black Muslim name of Muhammad Ali, made the announcement Friday at a press luncheon promoting a computerized version of a fight between him and the late Rocky Marciano to be shown in Chicago theaters Tuesday.

Clay, who was stripped of his title because of his views against the Vietnam war and his refusal to be inducted into the Armed Services, said he would never again attempt to enter a prize fight ring.

In making his announcement, Clay said he wished he could have fought Joe Frazier, a match which recently was in the making but again refused to be sanctioned by any of the states.

"If they could have got the fight legal, I'd have done the fight but only to show who was the real champion," said Clay.

Clay was irritated over remarks concerning possible promotions of a bout between himself and Frazier.

"I haven't tried to make a fight or believed one was being made, and later people changed their minds.

"It looked like I was being run out of all these places. And I hadn't even tried to make a fight. It just looked like I was being kicked out here and there."

Clay also cut off possible future promotions by saying "I want them to stop calling me now. I won't even answer the phone. I'm not angry, I just want them to leave me alone."

Clay won the heavyweight championship on Feb. 25, 1964, when Sonny Liston refused to answer the bell at the start of the seventh round.

A year later he again defeated Liston in one round in a hockey rink in Lewiston, Me. By then, Clay had joined the Black Muslim religion, adopting the name Muhammad Ali.

ATTACKED WAR

Clay fought and punished former champion Floyd Patterson in a 12-rounder in Las Vegas, Nov. 22, 1965, and at the same time attacked the war in Vietnam.

Redwood All Alone Atop Cage League

It was a bad night for Giant-killers in northern Novato last night.

Underdog San Marin High School fought the good fight against Marin County Athletic League basketball favorite Redwood in San Marin, but reality, in the guise of a blistering fast break, superior rebounding, excellent (48 per cent) shooting, speed, and a deep bench and anything else that makes a well-oiled champion caught up with the Mustangs in the second half as they absorbed an 82-58 shelling at the hands of the Giants.

The win kept Redwood on top of the league standings, all by its lonesome with a 3-0 record while San Marin dropped into a three-way tie for second with San Rafael and Tamalpais.

In other games, San Rafael whacked Novato, 73-58; Marin Catholic got on the board with its first MCAL win, a 57-51 verdict over Drake, and Tamalpais shook loose from improved Terra Linda, 57-50.

Good Shooting

San Marin, behind good shooting and plain stubbornness, stayed close to the Giants for almost three quarters, trailing by five points, 36-31, at the half. But the Mustangs just ran out of gas in the second half while Redwood poured in its talented reserves, who proceeded to run away from the home team.

The Giants got a superlative job out of Jerry Piro who, after two so-so- league games, cut loose for 25 points. But that was just the beginning. John Boro, tenacious on defense, chipped in with 13 points, guard Charley Flynn poured in 16 points, and Roger Smith, had 13 points.

Against all this, the Mustangs got 20 points out of overworked 6-foot-8 center Dana LaFerriere and 13 from Gary Howard, who shot frantically and inaccurately most of the night.

Rossi Out

San Rafael played without jumping jack Allen Rossi, out with the flu, but got 11 points out of veteran Bruce D'Ambra making his first start, 23 out of guard Bruce Nave and 21 out of 6-8 center Don Duryee, who also hauled down 19 rebounds.

The Bulldogs trailed by as much as eight points in the first quarter but pulled together to score 45 points in the next two quarters to roar away. Duryee got 13 of his points in the final period.

Sophomore Marty Moroski topped Novato with 20 points.

Marin Catholic couldn't stop Jeff Meeker, who scored 25 points for Drake, but the Wildcats got 19 points out of Bill Donellan, 13 out of Tim Stone and 12 out of Mike Parnow in addition to a fine floor job from sophomore guard Paul Bertoli, making his first start.

John Earl Huff, stymied in his first two league games, sank seven free throws in the final period to help Tamalpais pull away from Terra Linda in the final two minutes.

Bowling Business A Family Affair For Tom Coates, Wife And Kids

By RALPH CHATOIAN

The bowling business is a family affair for Tom and Frances Coates and their four children.

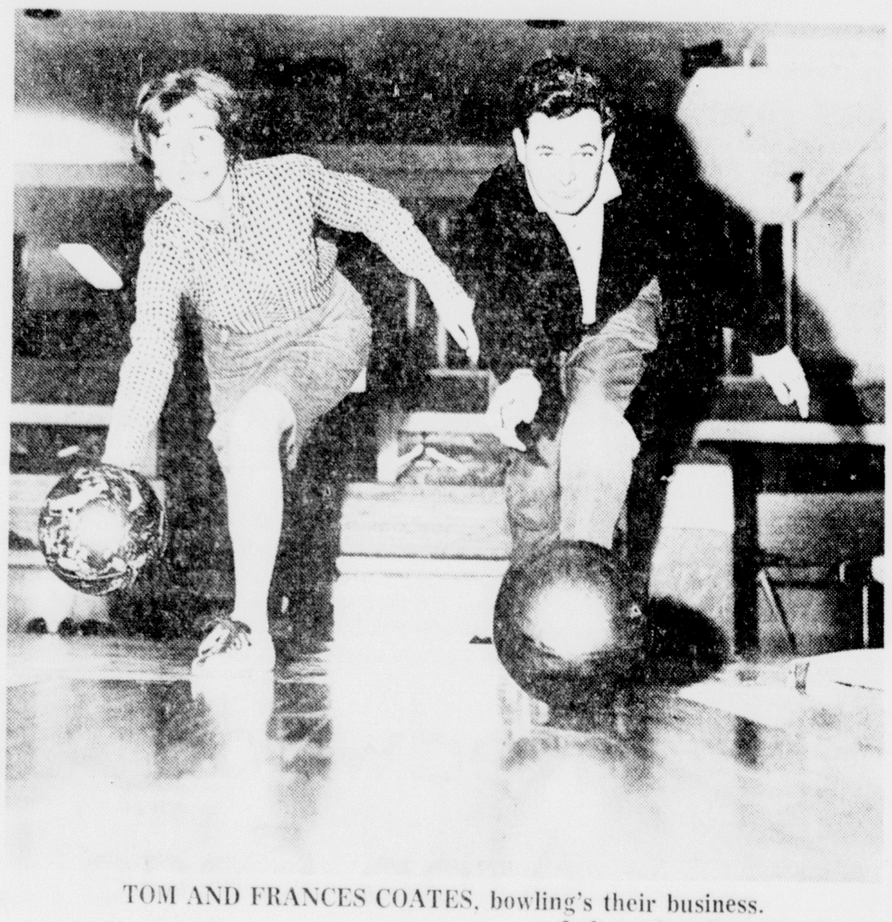

Coates is owner and operator of Greenbrae Lanes, a business he started from scratch 11 years ago. He leased the land from the Schultz Building Co. of Greenbrae, Brunswick Corp. financed the equipment, and using very little of his own money, launched an $800,000 business.

Coates, 40, a San Jose native, had been working as a salesman for IBM in Los Angeles just prior to this time and, "I saw the bowling boom and got interested in it." He checked out areas of California and found Marin County had only one bowling house, the old Marin Bowl on Grand Avenue in San Rafael, where Stan's for Sports is now located.

Construction started in 1958 and the next year Coates was open for business.

KOREAN VETERAN

He had gotten married in 1953, just after finishing pilots' school in the Air Force. By the time Tom was finished with active duty in Korea as a first lieutenant in the Air Force, it was 1956 and Tom and Frances had two boys. Then two years in Los Angeles with IBM and his move to Marin County.

TOM AND FRANCES COATES, bowling's their business. (Independent-Journal photo)

Coates and his family ran the lanes until 1967 when they moved to Oregon and hired managers to run the show. He had another business idea. He bought 102 acres in Selma, Ore., just north of Medford, built a large home on it, and then an airstrip. He had planned to sell adjacent to the turfed airstrip so people could fly their private planes right to their doorstep.

DISSATISFIED

But while Coates was gone, he wasn't satisfied with the new things were going at Greenbrae Lanes under the manager system, with a succession of five managers trying the job.

In May of last year, the Coates family returned to Marin and immediately cut the payroll from $120,000 yearly to $60,000, reducing the employees from 36 to 9, with family doing the rest of the work.

Coates puts in about 50 to 60 hours a week and Frances about 44. When the four children aren't in school, they're pitching in. The two oldest boys, Stephen, 16, and Clifford, 13, help maintain the lanes and do janitorial work; Kathy, 11, is a "general cleaner-upper," says Coates, and Willie, 10, "keeps the parking lot clean."

HIGHER PROFITS

"I'm convinced most bowling houses will be going to this family kind of operation," said Coates. "I can keep the place in better shape and the profits are higher."

He says there has been an increase of bowling lineage (number of games rolled) every month since he's been back, and the number of leagues and league bowlers are increasing. He also feels there's good growth in the junior program, with students from College of Marin, and Redwood and Marin Catholic high schools having regular bowling classes.

ICE CREAM

Neither Tom or his wife bowls in leagues now. "It's like always wanting to own an ice cream store," laughs Coates. "You always think of how much ice cream you'll eat. Well, you know how that goes."

When he did bowl, he carried a 180 average and his wife was about 145.

Being trained to fly an airplane in the service and having his own plane and air strip, Coates commuted at times from his Oregon ranch to the lanes to check out operations. But since his return to Marin, he's only had a chance to get back to Oregon once.

"I really do like it there," he said. "When I retire, that's the place. It's really fantastic country."

But retirement is a long way off for this man.

Generally Satisfactory Realignment club which shifted from East to West in the regrouping of NFL cities.

The 13-team American Conference, composed of 10 former AFL clubs plus Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore from the NFL, was set up last May after the Browns, Steelers and Colts agreed to make the switch.

OAKLAND WEST

Baltimore Boston, Buffalo, Miami and the New York Jets will play in the East Division beginning next season; Cincinnati, Cleveland, Houston and Pittsburgh in the Central Division, and Denver, Kansas City, Oakland and San Diego in the west.

The 14-game regular season schedule will be retained.

Each team in a five-team division will meet the other clubs in its division on a home-and-home basis, will play three of the other eight teams in its conference, and will cross over for three games against clubs in the other conference.

In a four-team division, each club will meet the others in its division twice, home-and-home; will take on five of the remaining eight teams in its conference and will play three interconference games.

Rozelle said he decided to resolve the National Conference dilemma by lottery after the owners "could not reach unanimous consent on any one plan.

WITHOUT CONSENT

"In effect, I did it without their consent. There was never any formal concurrence by the 13 owners."

Miss Elkjer was enlisted for the deciding draw after the commissioner listed his five different plans on a blackboard. A tal for each alignment was placed in the flower vase, and Thelma picked Plan 3.

Among the other plans were division set-ups that would have grouped either New Orleans, Atlanta, Dallas, or San Francisco and Los Angeles with two or more of the cold-weather Central clubs. Minnesota, however, would have been shifted out of the Central Division had any of the four others been drawn.

Judging from the favorable comment from virtually every quarter, the commissioner—and Miss Elkjer—came up with the best of possible worlds.

"I think it's great," said Sid Gilman, general manager of the American Conference San Diego Chargers. "Pete Rozelle should get the Medal of Honor."

Harney Leads Phoenix Open; Flood Files Baseball Suit

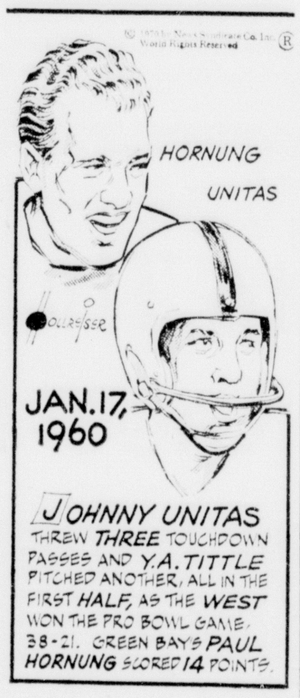

COMBINED AP & UPI

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Silver-haired veteran Paul Harney fired a two-under par 69 yesterday and took over the second-round lead in the $100,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament with a 134.

Larry Ziegler, winner of the Michigan Golf Classic last year, with the best round of the day, 65, to move one stroke back of Harney at 135. And Billy Casper, winner at the Los Angeles Open last year, failed to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Ron Cerrudo, formerly of San Rafael and now living in Napa, shot a 68 to move to within five strokes of the lead at 139.

Marin Tars Host Contra Costa '5'

That tangled-up Camino Norte Conference basketball race will become a little less messy tonight when College of Marin, one of the four-way co-leaders in the race, plays host at Kentfield to tough, fast and hot Contra Costa of Richmond at 8 o'clock.

Contra Costa, highly-ranked in northern California and a preseason favorite to cop the title, was upset for its first loss by West Valley of Campbell in a one-point struggle Wednesday.

"We're just going to have to play extremely well on defense," said Marin coach John Panagakis. "We're going to have to stop them early. And we'll try to play controlled ball. We're going to hang on to the ball."

College of Marin, Contra Costa, West Valley and DeAnza of Cupertino are all 3-1 won-lost in conference play.

Novato Stays On Top

Novato High School stayed on top of the Marin County Athletic League wrestling standings with a 30-19 rout of San Marin yesterday while San Rafael bounced back from an opening day loss to whip Redwood, 33-12.

SPORTS SHORTS

Baseball

NEW YORK — Curt Flood took another step in a process which may rock organized baseball.

Flood, challenging baseball's long-standing reserve clause after being traded by St. Louis to Philadelphia, filed a suit in U.S. District Court in New York yesterday against Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball, both major leagues and all 24 clubs. The suit is for a million dollars and aims to obtain a temporary injunction guaranteeing him the right to negotiate with any club for his service.

Hockey

BUFFALO, N.Y. — George "Punch" Imlach is back in the National Hockey League again. The colorful longtime general manager and coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs until he was fired last spring, landed the dual job yesterday with Buffalo's new NHFL entry which joins the league next season.

MONTREAL — The Oakland Seals, playing without leftwinger Bob Dillabough, try for their first victory in four games against the Montreal Canadiens tonight. Dillabough suffered a groin injury in a 1-1 tie with Minnesota Thursday.

In the Bowlerettes League at Country Club, Bobbie Hoover picked up a 4-7-10 split, Vi Novak missed a 134 triplicate by just one pin, and Bunny Galvin (143 avg.) rolled a 533 . . . Dick Treadway, Marin County Bowling Association secretary, rolled a 672 series in the Ken Bailer Classic at Castle Lanes, San Francisco.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Remember To Delay Showdown Finesse As Long As Possible

We conclude our week's post-graduate course on the art of not finessing by examining a case in which the finesse is reserved until the last moment but is finally rejected when a better chance appears. The expert tries to avoid committing himself as long as possible in the hope that he will eventually adopt the play that seems most likely to succeed in the light of all the evidence.

SECOND ROUND

hearts, and declarer puts up the king since there is no need to risk the finesse so early. East signals encouragement with the ten. Declarer cashes the top spades, ending in his hand, and West discards a heart on the third space. Now South leads a heart, and West follows suit. What should declarer do?

KNOWS DISTRIBUTION

There is every reason to believe that West started with four hearts. If so, each opponent is reduced to two hearts. South would lose his contract if he took the heart finesse, since East would win and return a heart. South would have to begin the clubs by himself and would lose all three club tricks.

South makes the contract by taking the ace of hearts and giving up a heart. Now the opponents must start the clubs no matter who has the queen of hearts. South is sure to win his seventh trick with dummy's jack or his own queen of clubs.

MAKES IT SAFE

South would have tried the heart finesse if either defender had saved a heart or a spade as a possible setting trick, but their actual discards made it safe for South to reject the finesse and make the defenders lead clubs.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened with one club, and partner has responded one spade.

It is up to you again, holding:

S- K Q 3
H- A K J
D- 10 9 4
C- J 6 4 3.

What do you say?

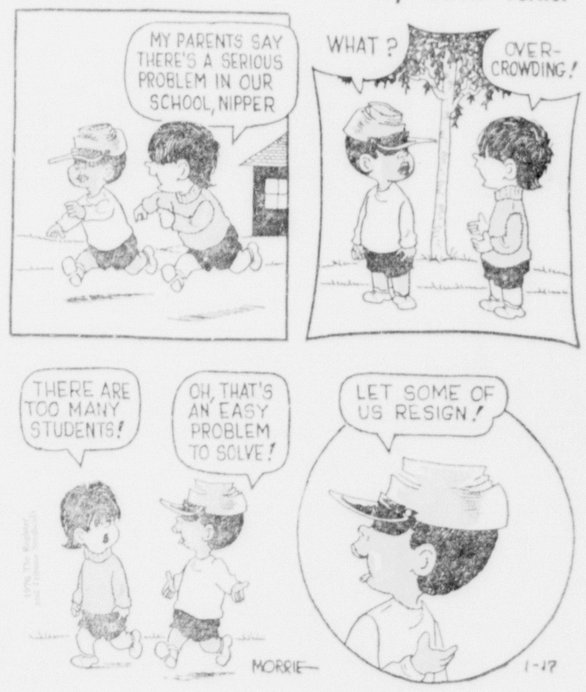

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

With this bid you do full justice to your hand. If you bid T—No-trump, describing your distribution and the fact that you have a minimum opening bid, you will wonder whether your excellent spade support needs to be mentioned. You should not be tempted to make three bids on a hand that is worth only two bids.

In medieval times, the word "garbage" applied to a combination of chicken head, feet and innards stewed as a delicacy by creative chefs.

Yesterday's Answer

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1970 with 348 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1706 American statesman and author Benjamin Franklin was born.

In 1806 the first baby was born in the White House. He was the son of Thomas and Martha Randolph and the grandson of President Thomas Jefferson.

In 1950 nine bandits staged a $1.5 million robbery of a Brink's armored car in Boston.

In 1968 President Johnson delivered a state of the Union message. In it he proposed a $186 billion budget, a tax surcharge and offered a conditional bombing halt in Vietnam.

A thought for the day: Benjamin Franklin said, "Doth thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of."

Driver Hurts Elbow

Jose S. Maldonado, 25, of 3550 Redwood Hfghway, Apt. 12, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital Thursday for a cut right elbow suffered at 2 p.m. when his car skidded on Highway 101 near the Corte Madera Creek bridge and crashed into the freeway divider fence, the California Highway Patrol said yesterday.

Shop Burglary

Peppington Doggie Salon at 7410 Redwood Highway, Novato, was entered sometime between 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m. Thursday, and $500 worth of dog grooming tools taken, Novato police reported yesterday.

California Lawmakers' Report Cards Show Some Similarites

By JOHN E. SIMONDS

WASHINGTON — In their 1969 voting records, California's two U.S. senators seemed about as far apart politically as any other pair from the same state, but both have been trying to minimize their partisan differences.

When the liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) came out with its annual report cards on Congress, Republican George Murphy scored 11 and Democrat Alan Cranston received a 72, out of a possible 100, on 18 roll call votes the ADA considered crucial during the first session.

CONGRESSMEN TIE

(Both of Marin's congressmen, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, and Don H. Clausen, R-First District, scored 13 points in the ADA report, the Associated Press reported.)

Only the senators from Texas, Iowa, Maine and Idaho were as far as Cranston and Murphy or farther apart, in their voting records — at least by ADA standards. But the ADA ratings do not tell the whole story. There were dozens of other roll calls in which Murphy and Cranston surprised political observers by voting the same way.

Both senators voted against an amendment by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to cut $533 million from the Air Force's C-5a transport plane program. Their votes helped defeat the amendment, 64-23.

Murphy and Cranston also voted for eliminating the $20,000 annual ceiling on farm subsidies which the House had passed as part of the agriculture appropriations bill. The Senate vote to remove the ceiling on subsidies was 53-34.

They differed on three of the biggest Senate votes of the year: Murphy supported the deployment of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile, and Cranston voted against it. The ABM squeaked through, 51-49. Murphy also voted to confirm Judge Clement F. Haynsworth to the U.S. Supreme Court. Cranston voted with the majority that rejected Haynsworth, 55-45. Murphy was one of 22 senators who voted against the final passage of the tax reform bill, while Cranston was one of 69 favoring it.

Murphy voted against the tax bill even though it included his amendment allowing persons over 65 to deduct all medical and drug costs from their income taxes. That amendment passed, 46-41, with Cranston among the "no" voters. In the House-Senate conference on the much-amended tax bill, Murphy's amendment was stricken, along with many others the conferees considered too costly for the Treasury. When the conference report came back to the Senate, both Murphy and Cranston voted for it.

Cranston lost points with the ADA raters, as did Murphy, when he voted with the majority to accept a Republican elector from North Carolina who cast his vote for George Wallace. Cranston also voted with Murphy against a defense bill amendment to require periodic reports to Congress on the costs of big defense contracts. It passed, 47-46. Both senators also voted against lowering the oil depletion allowance from 27.5 per cent to the House-passed 20 per cent, Murphy favoring the existing percentage and Cranston supporting a reduction to 23 per cent. The bill which became law provided for reduction to 22 per cent.

Murphy's big legislative effort of 1969 was an amendment to the Office of Economic Opportunity bill that would give governors of states veto power over the setting up of legal services programs for the poor in any state. It passed, 45-40, with Cranston among those voting against.

SPLIT ON HEALTH

Murphy recouped a few points with the liberals when he voted for an amendment appropriating an additional $587.5 million for urban renewal, which was rejected, 36-34. Cranston was absent. Murphy and Cranston both voted to exempt U.S. education funds from the ceiling on federal spending, a move which carried, 52-43. But they differed on exempting health funds from the same ceiling. Cranston was for it, Murphy against, as the amendment lost, 47-45.

Murphy voted against ratifying the "Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty" banning the spread of atomic weapons to nations which do not already have them. Cranston voted for it, and it passed the Senate, 83-15.

Cranston was one of the minority of 16 who voted against confirming Walter Hickel as Secretary of the Interior. Murphy was one of the 73 who supported the appointment. The issue at the time was whether Hickel had shown enough evidence as governor of Alaska that he was as interested in conserving the nation's resources as in marketing them.

Indians Face New Trouble On Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Indians on Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay prepared today to cope with another problem after learning that heir water barge will be taken out of service—perhaps for good.

The Coast Guard, in cooperation with the Army Engineers, has kept 160,000 to 200,000 gallons of fresh water in the big steel reinforced barge, which also is used as a dock for small boats.

Because of the barge's deteriorating condition, Thomas Hannon of the General Services Administration said Friday it gill go into drydock "in a couple of weeks" to determine if it can be salvaged. He said there were reports it was "falling apart."

The GSA is the official landlord for the 21-acre, former federal prison.

"We'll probably start taking over water in five-gallon cans," an Indian spokesman said. "We understand there's no barge to replace it."

The Indians, claiming the ranshackel prison under an 1868 treaty that returned abandoned federal property to the Sioux tribe, have braved rain, freezing temperatures and other discomforts since last Nov. 20.

One youngster suffered a leg injury when she was caught between the barge and the permanent dock, and a 12-year-old girl died from head injuries after falling three stories down a cellblock stairwell.

An original occupation force of more than 200 has shrunk to about 50.

A spokesman at the San Francisco Indian Center said the island Indians held elections Friday night for a nine-member governing council, but said, "We don't know the outcome because we're having problems with our short-wave radios."

Just How Golden Was The Golden Age?

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Many a veteran television viewer looks back on the 1950s as the Golden Age of TV drama.

It wasn't quite so golden as it seems in retrospect says Barbara Schultz.

She is executive producer of CBS Playhouse one of the last bastions of thekind of vital drama that was once seen on such series as Studio One Playhouse 90 and the U.S. Steel Hour.

Of that era Miss Schultz comments:

"In those days there were four or five anthology shows on every week. It was easier for new writers to develop because they had a frame of reference - they knew there was a market for original dramas. There weremany excellent plays in those series but also many terrible ones.

"We remember the good ones and forgot all of those that were bad."

Could such an era return to television? She doubts it.

"Costs would be a problem," she points out.

For example CBS Playhouse averages $400,000 per 90-minute drama. The show can't make a profit at that rate and the network picks up the debit.

Another problem in restoring the Golden Age would be finding sponsors. There aren't many as public-minded as General Telephone which not only sponsors CBS Playhouse but limits its messages to the beginning and ending of the show.

Barbara Schultz was here recently to oversee the taping of this season's third play "The Day Before Sunday" starring Martin Balsam Uta Haggen and Farley Granger. It will appear on CBS on Tuesday Feb. 10.

THIS IS THE third season for CBS Playhouse which appears four times a year. The idea for the series came from network programming chief Mike Dann Miss Schultz said.

"He figured it was bad that there was no place in television for anthology drama" she remarked. "I think it was wise to do CBS Playhouse as specials rather than on a weekly basis. In that way you could do the best possible scripts.

"This is primarily a writer's playhouse and we feel that the writer's intentions should be carried out.

All of he plays are origals written especailly for this series. All are contemporary American dramas. They are not aimed at sheer entertainment."

THE PLAYS ARE taped at CBS Television City thus capturing some of the immediacy of live drama during the so-called Golden Age. Sometimes outside locations are included to give the plays a bit more scope.

The supply of scripts is always a problem but Miss Schultz said the situation is getting better.

"The movie industry isn't very active right now" she observed, "so more writers who have something to say know that here is a place they can do it.

"There aren't many shows like this in television."

CBS PLAYHOUSE generally manages acceptable if not spectacular ratings.

"But the sponsor feels the show is good for its image and so does CBS," she said. "The network schedules it at the latest possible prime time in order to get a mature audience. And there is a nucleus of people who will tune in meaningful drama."

Marin Poets' Corner

WINTER WELCOME

Summer has been slightly overripe
For several weeks
Our woolens hang expectantly
In the closet
And the leaves are turning
Defiantly yellow
Yesterday a few clouds,
A light sprinkle
Previewed the days ahead
Those grim and cold days
That soon will wash away
This embrangling, sticky summer
And though I pity the golfers
And the tennis players who will Then impatiently busy themselves
With household chores
I will survive their sorrow
And while they cling to the fire
Booted and scarfed I shall stride
The main street
Face lifted to the wind and rain,
Eyes wide open, smiling
For, peering inward
I see robins nesting on your window sill.

ROSS — J. A. BECKER

On The Stereo Scene

The Music Of Debussy, Rachmaninoff And Berio On The Label Of Columbia

By JOHN SUNIER

The newest LPs from Columbia:

LUCIANO BERIO: "Sinfonia" — The Swingle Singers /New York philharmonic/conposer conducting — Columbia MS 7268:

One of the most important new works of contemporary music this season.

Avant—gardist Berio has unleased a wild and wooly musical "happening" that makes sense out of nonsense. Its four movements sum up the malaise of our times better than a dozen essays.

The first is a spooky thing using fragments from a text in French on Brazilian myths. The second section is a tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and consists only of a vocal part based on his name. The lengthy third section employs texts by Samuel Beckett, slogans of the rioting students in Paris in May, 1968, and many other sources.

The texts make their musical voyage "aboard" the third movement of Mahler's "Second Symphony." There are also quotes from Bach, Ravel, Beethoven and other composers.

The fourth section is a sort of summing up of the preceding.

The Swingle Singers, famed for their scooby-dooby Bach performances, turn in a hair-raising interpretation of this moving work which was written for them and the New York Philharmonic.

"WALTER CARLOS" — Columbia MS 7286:

This is the first true sequel to the highly successful "Switched On Bach" LP, which was the first to employ the Moog synthesizer in classical music.

A number of technical refinements in the Moog have been made in the year since that first surprise hit album. For example, the keys are now sensitive to the slightest nuances of touch in the performer, rather than being merely on-off electrical switches.

The major work this time is Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 4" — a simply astonishing performance which Glenn Gould calls the finest he has ever heard on any instrument.

There are four harpsichord sonatas of Domenico Scarlatti, three excerpts from Handel's "Water Music," and two short Monteverdi selections. The variety, accuracy and tastfulness of these electronic performances set new standards.

Having had a few lessons on the complex Moog myself, I can readily appreciate the exacting labor that went into the creation of this album.

DEBUSSY: "Images pour Orchestre;" "Danses Sacree et Profane" — Alice Chalifoux, harp (in Danses)/The Cleveland Orchestra/Pierre Boulez — Columbia MS7362:

This LP is sub-titled "Boulez Conducts Debussy Volume 2," and follows on the heels of the terrific performance of that composer's "La Mer," which was originally released on the CBS label and has just been re-issued on Columbia.

Boulez is one of the top avant-garde composers in the world, and was recently named to succeed Leonard Bernstein at the helm of the New York Philharmonic. He accepts Debussy as a major influence on his own music, and since devoting a major part of his time to conducting has received rave notices for his meticulous and yet dramatic interpretations of the impressionist master.

"Iberia" is the second and longest of the three "Images," and is of course Spanish in spirit. "Gigues" has an English flavor and "Rondes de Printemps" is very French. The astonishing attention to detail that Boulez gives is balanced by a feeling for the overall structure that never bogs down.

The filler item is especially interesting, since it is the only version available of the exquisite dances for the harp which features the full symphonic accompaniment instead of the usual string quartet.

RACHANINOFF: "The Three Symphonies" — The Philadelphia Orchestra/Eugene ormandy — Columbia D3S 813:

Rachmaninoff sid of the Philadelphia Orchestra, "When I think of composing, my thoughts turn to you, the greatest orchestra in the world."

The third of his robust, super-Romantic symphonies was dedicated to and premiered by the Philadelphians, as well as several other of his compositions.

The unparalleled string section of the Philadelphia is heard to full advantage in the lush melodies of Rachmaninoff, especially in the familiar "SYMPHONY No. 2 in E Minor."

This is easily the best performances of the less popular First Symphony, which really deserves the fame of the other two because it is full of expansive melody and richness.
sion of the short "Vocalise" is a filler on the final sie of the three bargain—packaged discs.

The sound is excellent, with perhaps a slight rolloff of highs ne-equipment to achieve the proper Rachmaninovian lutre.

Marin Shops Well Stocked For The Skier

Winter Sports Gear Can Be Found In Abundance

By HARRY CRAFT

Winter sports — particularly the sport of skiing — have changed the vacation schedules of thousands of Americans in recent years.

More and more are planning time off during the winter instead of the summer, or at least dividing their leisure time between the two seasons.

While experienced skiers can get by nicely by devoting their weekends to the sport, a rank beginner will usually learn faster if he can manage to take off a full week for everyday instruction. He won't make the Olympic team after this period of training, but he should be able to leave the nursery slopes and take the big lifts.

After that he may find that he can keep up and improve his technique solely on the weekends.

In most cases he'll be better off renting as much of his equipment as he can and waiting until he finds out just what sort of a skier he is before he undertakes any substantial investment. The quality of ski rental equipment is good these days, and most stores that handle it can fit anyone to exact size.

Marin County stores are as well stocked as those anywhere else and most of the advantages are in buying or renting near home, where advance arrangements can be made more conveniently.

STAN'S FOR SPORTS has three stores in Marin - at Third Street and Grand Avenue, San Rafael; Reed Boulevard and Knoll Road in Strawberry; and at Diablo Avenue and South Novato Boulevard, Novato.

Each has a large winter goods department, with both sales and rentals.

Skis include Head, Kneissl, Alpine, Mustang, Fischer, Rosignol and many other brands. Poles, shoes "saucers," mittens, jackets, ski pants, sweaters, after-ski shoes and other gear are available in many makes anf styles.

LAST WINTER the A to Z Rental center in San Rafael added a line of ski goods to its equipment and this year's stocks have been just about doubled.

New are metal skis, a new type of polyethelene toboggan that is said to be faster, and the new "ski bike." Available also is a list of ski lifts where it can be carried up the slopes. No clothing is handled, but there are poles, ski racks, heaters and tire chains.

Goods are sold as well as rented.

The A to Z Rental Center in Mill Valley, a separate operation, has not yet gone into stocking this type of equipment, though it does handle wooden toboggans and ski racks.

THE SKI SHACK (Outdoor Recreation, Inc.), 521 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, has cut back on some of the many brands of skis it featured last season. Principal lines are now Hart and Rosignol.

There has always been a heavy rental business here. Rental of clothes has been discontinued, but racks, chains, skis, toboggans and saucers are still available. As before, records are kept of customers' sizes and specifications for reordering convenience.

And the store is always able to give the latest weather and snowfall reports at the resorts.

SNOWMOBILES are becoming increasingly popular in winter sport areas and Cycle Town at 933 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, handles these vehicles made by Yamaha, the motorcycle manufacturer.

There are three different models (one for competition) but Cycle Town has in stock only one model that sells for $895. Others can probably be ordered in time for use this season, though I am told that stocks are somewhat low and deliveries may be delayed. Club rates.

Cycle Town has brochures and other information on this equipment.

A van, trailer or long-bed pick-up would be required to transport a snowmobile to the snow country. Insurance is now available to snowmobiling buffs.

A MAJOR SPORT in the Scandinavian countries, cross-country skiing, is fast becoming popular in this country as well.

MANY SKI BUFFS find it practical to continue renting their equipment even after they have become proficient on the winter slopes. At Stan's for Sports in San Rafael, which maintains a large rental and repair department, Edward Lang suggests proper fittings to Mrs. Stephen Wehr and Edith De Poli. (Independent-Journal photos).

THE CAMERA doesn't usually come to mind when one considers skiing equipment, but the snow and evergreens offer the outdoor person splendid opportunities for photography.

CROSS-COUNTRY skiing or snowshoeing is a different type of sport from skiing on the slopes. It requires special skis and bindings that are adaptable to ski boots or regular hiking boots. Here Paul Chourre at the Mountain Shop in Kentfield fits Gayle Persac with snowshoes. Model at the right illustrates typical cross-country clothing used. Notice the long, slim cross-country skis.

Winter Sports Equipment Big In Marin

Many Stores Carry Goods For The Snow Country-Bound Outdoorsman

Cross-country skis are a different breed from downhill varieties. They are long, slim and preferably of wood, with different bindings adaptable to hiking boots with simple adjustments.

A new store in Marin, the Mountain Shop, 1028 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, specializes in all necessary gear for this sport as well as other outdoor and camping equipment. Cross-country skis (several makes) and bindings, snowshoes, down parkas, warm-up pants, down mitts and "skeezies" snow spats, socks and high-energy foods are some of the items in demand and on the store's shelves. No rentals.

The Mountain Shop is planning a get-together of interested cross-country skiers at its San Francisco store (228 Grant Avenue) on Tuesday evening, Jan. 27, at 7:30 to talk over the sport with experts and to show movies. Visitors are welcome and information may be secured from the Kentfield store.

SNOW COUNTRY at Battens and Boards on the Sausalito Bridgeway are mostly for retail, although some rentals can be had.

There are several lines of skis - Voit, Head, Fisher, Rosignol and Killy. Lange ski boots are a specialty. Stocks also include ski poles, hats, caps, ski racks, ski pants, jackets, mittens and boot trees.

You can find many items in children's sizes.

DISCO HAS two discount stores in Marin—one on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, and the other in the Plaza at Larkspur. Both have warm clothing for the snow country.

Check out the sporting goods department for Innsbruck and Grand Prix skis, along with boots, goggles, boot trees, socks, pants and jackets.

At last check there were a few toboggans on hand.

TOBOGGANS HAVE been added to snow goods at the Marin Surplus Store in San Rafael this year. Other items are mittens, ski socks, after-ski shoes, knit caps and face masks, parkas, ski and snow jackets, sweaters, pile-lined waterproof caps and sweaters.

Snowshoes, heavy sleeping bags and tents for the snow are sold - but no skis or ski poles.

DURING 1968, the Huski Ski Club (Post Office Box 4267, San Rafael) opened in Marin with a series of Saturday trips for the youngsters to the ski country, with instruction and supervised programs included.

All this is being carried on again this year by Ernest and Suzanne Gray. Adults snow tours are also arranged, with one or two of these a month as long as there is enough snow on the ground for skiing.

FALL AND WINTER catalogs of Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck and Co. continue to feature skis, ski-boot-pole combinations and snow clothing. Emporium Northgate carries some ski goods and other department and apparel stores stock assorted clothing items for the snow country.

If you are without a car to drive to the winter resorts, several Marin automobile rental agencies can provide you with one.

And any drug store can supply lotions for snow and sunburn protection, chapped lips and skin comfort.

Where To Go For Fun In The Snow

Sierra Resort Areas Beckon

By GARY TISCHLER

Fun in the snow, just like fun in the sun, is mostly a state of mind.

Out here, as opposed to places like, say, the Midwest, where fun in the snow is not fun, or Florida, where there is none, it grips young, old and in-between and turns them into early risers and long-way trippers as they trek out to the white promised lands--the Sierra.

Fun in the snow is knowing where to go, how to get there and what's there, which, if you follow the words in the white stuff, we will show you in our annual report, which is about things like lifts, slopes, runs, gondolas and a few of your other favorite things.

But fun in the snow, the state of mind that is called snow country, is also:

Something warm in a furry, thick and fuzzy girlish sweater, Going down the first and 10th times, the wind chipping and lashing your face, and a hot toddy after all that, and hopefully clear roads and maps that lead you to:

ALPINE MEADOWS, located two miles north of Tahoe City, five double chair lifts, three T-bars, five pomas, four beginner lifts, slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts, ski school, ski patrol, first aid and rentals.

...your first set of skis, 1960's Christmas present, Killy's big grin and dazzling speed, Avery Brundage's scowl, the bundled-up bunny in the December issue, snow tires, congregations of skiers at 5 in the morning at Stan's, Marlboro Country in black and white, mostly white, and places like...

... SQUAW VALLEY, five miles north of Tahoe City, beginner, intermediate and expert slopes, all-day lift ticket, ski patrol, first aid, rentals, lodges, meals and snacks, 15 double chair lifts, 9,000-foot gondola.

...and holiday jobs dishwashing in Aspen, two casts in front of a fireplace, at least on television, toboggans and saucers and sliding down a hill on a garbage can lid ... and places like ...

POWDER BOWL, two miles north of Tahoe City at the entrance to Alpine Meadows, two poma lifts, two rope tows and slopes for beginners and intermediates.

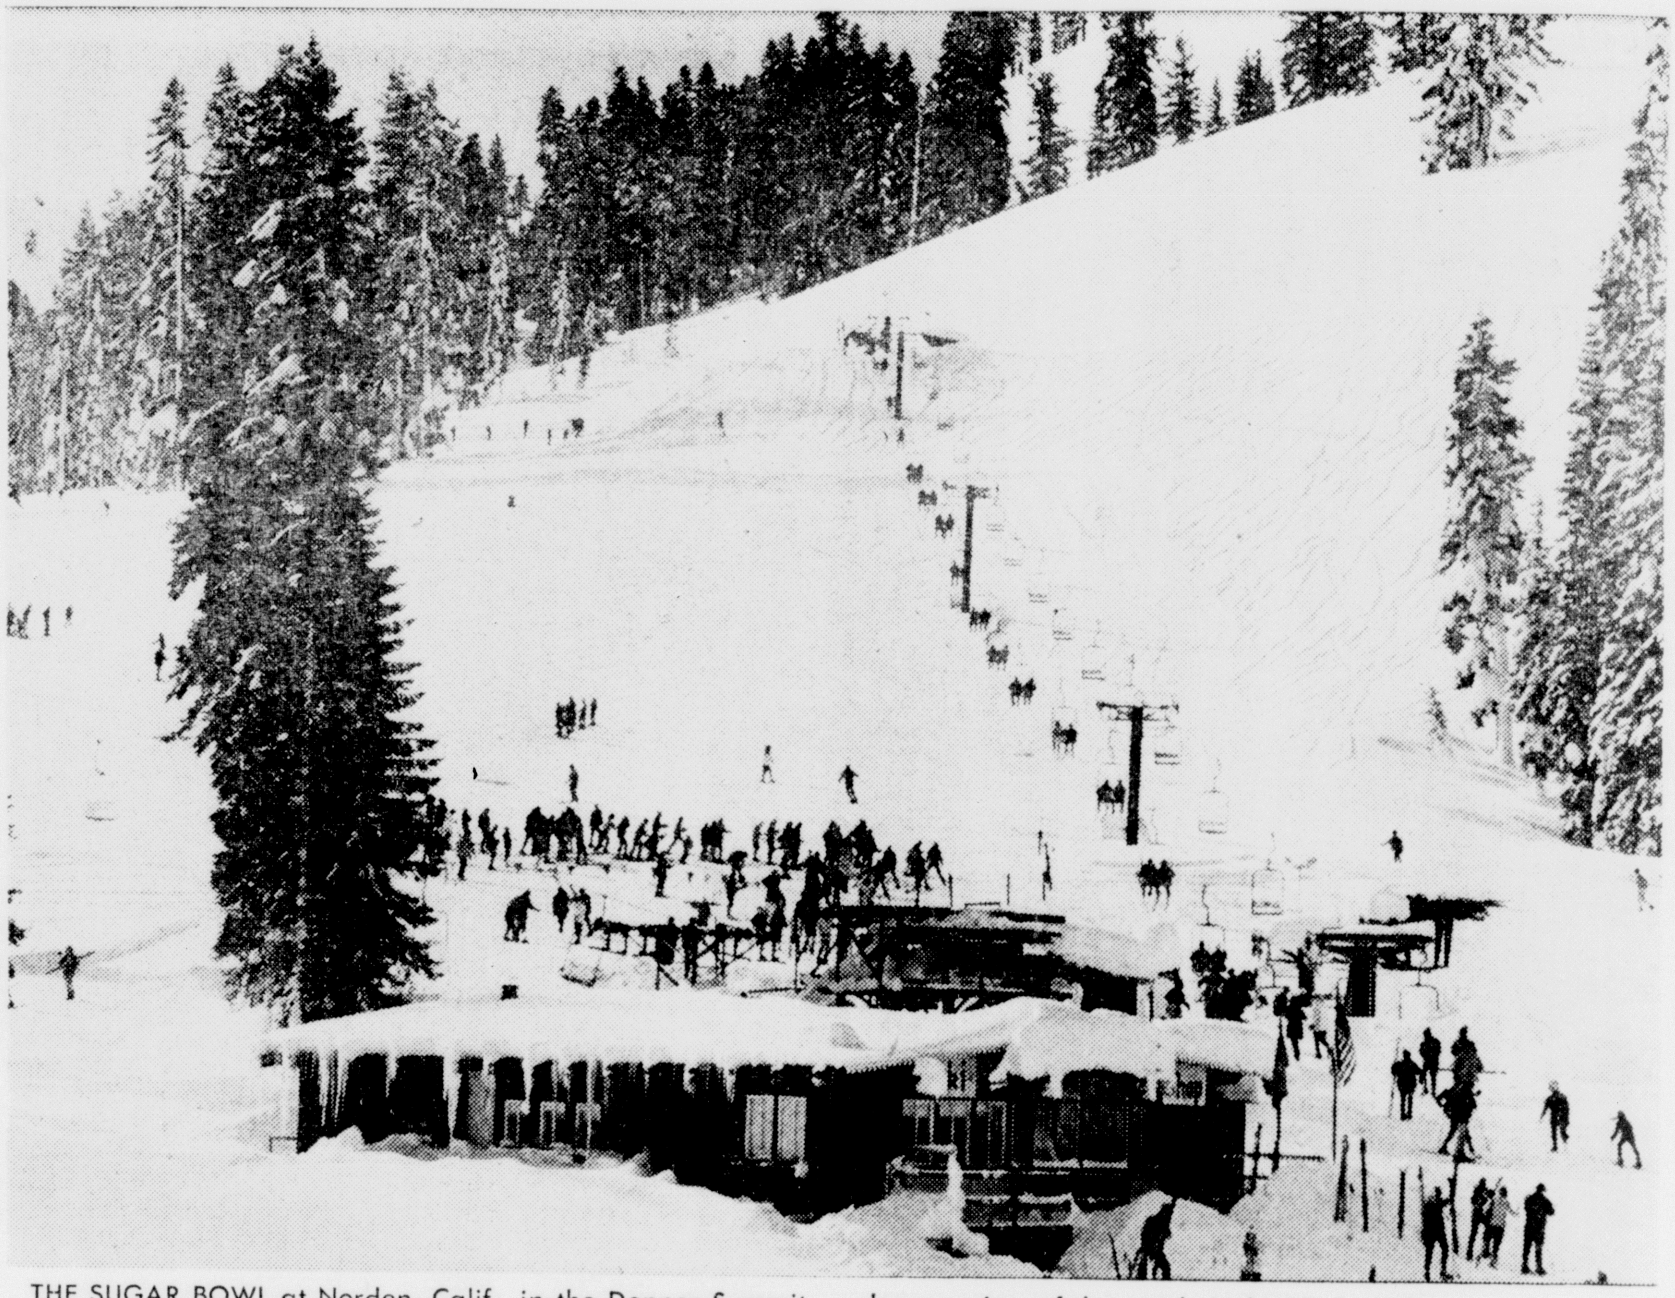

...and blondes who don't ski but want to learn, preferably from you, blondes who do ski and flash a big smile as they help you off your back, just behind the dip, and snow balls and Peggy Fleming, ice rinks in Central Park, lodge parties and sleek ski pants and places like ...

HOMEWOOD, seven miles south of Tahoe City two double chair lifts, slopes for all classes, night skiing on weekends.

GRANLIBAKKEN, one mile south of Tahoe City, three rope tows, one poma, jump hill with slopes for all three classes

... and all those Swedish and German names and accents, the brauhaus and Ingmar Bergman on the slopes, sweaters again,

THE SUGAR BOWL at Norden, Calif., in the Donner Summit ski area on Old U.S. Highway 40 is one of the more popular winter play sports with Marin County snow-lovers. Here you have a view of the gentle Nob Hill chairlift—one of six—that carries advanced beginners to their site on the slopes of Mount Lincoln.

WHILE SIERRA RESORTS get the major play from Marin skiers, many of them travel a greater distance for their snow fun at least once or twice per winter. One of the favorite vacationing spots for Marin snow-lovers that does not take them too far from home is Sun Valley, Idaho, with its splendid runs and many special events.

ONE MAN'S CHOICES FOR THE BEST RUNS

For the Palo Alto Times, Bob Lynne selected these as the finest runs for Northern California skiers:

FOR EXPERTS

1. The Silver Belt on Mount Lincoln at Sugar Bowl — "a peculiarly unforgiving run, requiring great versatility and offering variety . . . "
2. KT-22 at Squaw Valley, famous as the men's giant slalom course in the Winter Olympics and offering "an interesting variety of terrain."
3. National Run at Mount Reba — "a good run later in the season, but may be marginal early, on the lower part . . . "
4. The Northwest Passage at Mount Rose — "real fun in ideal snow conditions. Most of it isn't too tight, but it is steep . . . "
5. West face of KT-22 at Squaw Valley, "a steady, steep grade all the way down . . "

FOR ADVANCED

1. The National Run at Alpine Meadows.
2. The East Bowl at Heavenly Valley, the run used for the World Cup Giant Slalom in 1968 and to be so used again this March.
3. The Gold Run at Slide Mountain, with a deceptively easy start.

FOR INTERMEDIATES

1. Shirley Lake, at Squaw Valley — "really a complex of interesting runs, not just one.
2. The Ridge Run at Dodge Ridge — "a good, continuous descent, right to the bottom of the lift."
3. The runs from the top of Roundhouse Chair at Alpine Meadows.
4. The Flying 50 at Yosemite Park, a pioneer ski area limited in terrain, but offering a great variety of open slopes, rolls and drops, and second to none in maintenance and grooming.
5. Crow's Nest at Sugar Bowl, offering a choice of four interesting runs.

FOR BEGINNERS

1. The variety of beginner runs at Yosemite, all well protected from the wind, all the beneficiaries of highly-selective tree removal, and with lower lift charges than at most resorts.
2. Boreal Ridge — "This entire resort is a beginner's paradise."
3. Heavenly Valley's beginner runs.
4. Lower Bronze Nugget Bowl at Dodge Ridge — "a ballroom floor, well packed slopes, good protection from the weather."
5. Slide Mountain, with a baby chairlift that is really for beginners alone.

and cabins a snowball's throw away from Bobby Gentry or Mrs. Harrah, freezing in an exhilarating sort of way, toes and ears and teeth tingling, all wrapped up in sleek speed and places like ...

SKI PAPPOOSE in Squaw Valley, two pomas, six rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes.

... and the feeling, watching somebody ski, zoom and breeze down a hill, that maybe, any minute now, before they become graceful pencil dots in the snow, that they just might fly with no engine, and places like ...

TAHOE SKI BOWL, seven miles south of Tahoe City, one double chair lift, three rope tows and slopes for all classes and ECHO SUMMIT, three miles west of Myers, South Lake Tahoe, one platter pull, three rope pulls, beginner and intermediate slopes.

... and kids, almost any age, but especially the small ones, wavering like small toys on their first skis, the ever-present trees, slopes where white is a beautiful color, snow-white, ice-white, and reams of travel posters, the lake in the winter ... and places like ...

HEAVENLY VALLEY, off U. S. Highway 50, near the end of Ski Run Boulevard in South Lake Tahoe, a 4,025-foot aerial tramway, 10 double chair lifts, slopes for three classes and three ski huts and SIERRA SKI RANCH, two miles west of Echo Summit, two pomas, three rope tows and beginner intermediate slopes.

... and the boss as Santa Claus in February at a club party, saunas for frozen toes, all the centerfold girls and the Gentleman's Quarterly guys, and places like ...

CEDAR PASS, 19 miles east of Alturas by way of State Highway 299, one rope tow, slopes for beginners and intermediate skiers. HORSE MOUNTAIN SKI AREA, 45 miles east of Eureka by way of Highway 299, slopes for all three classes, three rope tows. LASSEN PARK SKI AREA, nine miles northeast of Mineral via State Highways 36 and 89, one poma, two rope tows, slopes for beginners, intermediates and experts. MOUNT SHATA SKI BOWL, 14 miles northeast of Mount Shasta by way of U. S. Highway No. 5, one double chair lift, one T-bar, two rope tows, slopes for all three classes.

... and gold medals, Billy Kidd, downhill racers, ski bums and cigarette commercials, now gone, chartered buses and chartered trips, marriages in ice rinks, and bourbon and cheese, forgetting about 49er games and places like ...

PLUMAS-EUREKA SKI BOWL, one mile north of Johnsville off State Highway 70, one poma, three rope tows and beginner and intermediate slopes. SKI SAFARI BASIN, ski safaris departing from House of Ski at Ski Village Drive in Mount Shasta, near U. S. 99, four-wheel drive buses, snowmobiles or helicopters. YUBA SKI LAND, 12 miles east of Sierra City by way of Highway 49, two rope tows, beginner and intermediate slopes, no ski schools. SUGAR BOWL, in the Donner Summit ski area, on old U. S. 40, two-and-a-half miles off the Soda Springs exit on U. S. 80, four double chair lifts, one poma, two rope tows and slopes for beginenrs through experts.

... and all those names for ridges, mountains and slopes, like battles in Korea or something, knowing that you too can be just a bit afraid of it all, parties, sweaters, snow that sticks to shoes, fireplaces, color television in a bar or motel, hospital bills and flush, pink faces, singing "Auld Lang Syne" in groups of 20 and more, and yet more places to go like ...

BOREAL RIDGE, DONNER SKI AREA, SODA SPRINGS, BADGER PASS in Yosemite National Park, DODGE RIDGE, four miles east of Pinecrest, via State Highway 108, BEAR VALLEY, between Tamarack and Lake Alpine on State Highway No. 4, via State Highway 88 and 49 and U. S. 99; CHINA PACK, 65 miles east of Fresno via State Highway 168; COTTAGE SPRINGS, eight miles east of Arnold on State Highway No. 4; PEDDLER HILL, 40 miles northeast of Jackson via State Highway 88. And more places like SIERRA NEVADA, the MOUNT ROSE ski area on Nevada State Highway 27, ASPEN, Colo., VAIL, Colo., SUN VALLEY, Idaho, and JACKSON HOLE, Wyo.

And there's always the Alps.

THERE'S SOMETHING about the clean white snow and the exhilarating air on the California ski slopes that makes even a conservative feel like kicking up his heels. This skier performs some tricks which his friend photographs with a movie camera.

There's Color On The Slopes

"Fashions" is a word usually associated with women.

And in the past, the ski scene was no exception. The girls donned colorful garb that lit up the snowy slopes. But the men often were as somber in their ski attire as in their business suits.

However, this season's men's skiwear, notes the Men's Fashion Association, is proof positive that the "fashion explosion" has reached the ski slopes and the ski lodge.

Acorrding to Ken O'Keefe, the association's fashion director, "Ski outfits this year are lighter, livelier and more colorful."

WHEN DARK blues and blacks are worn on the slopes this winter, they are accent shades to complement the brilliant oranges, yellows, greens and reds as well as the popular skipper blues and electric blues.

While the brightest of those colors are usually used in the windproof, water-repellent, ski jackets, it is not unusual to find the new trim-fitting stretch pants in brighter blues, rich browns, forest greens and in medium to light grays.

Eye-catching patterns are added to the bright outfits when the ski coats are doffed and the bulky knit Scandanavian-type sweaters appear.

WHILE THE design of active ski-wear is limited to some extent by functional requirements, apres-ski outfits are limited only by the imagination of the wearer.

Those outfits can be classic or contemporary in concept or sometimes combine some of each in the same ensemble.

For instance, among the classic "tops" are wool or wool-blend shirts in Scottish tartans, lumberjack plaids or bright solid colors, as well as many colorful turtleneck and mock-turtle pullovers. Standard apres-ski slacks range from flannels to tweeds to well-washed denims. The fashionable look now includes lighter weight versions of patterned ski sweaters, knitted sweater shirts in a wide choice of patterns and solids, and some newly revived velour pullovers with several type of collars.

AMONG THE smartest after ski slacks are the richly colored velvet jeans. More generously proportioned in keeping with the current trend, velvet jeans duplicate many of the style features of their denim prototypes in their low-waisted cut and patch hip-pockets.

Knitted slacks, now in patterns as well as plains, are another fine choice for wear during night time ski lodge get-togethers.

Saunas are on the increase at ski resorts and fashion has found its way into the restorative Finnish steam room. The old terry towels are being replaced by full-length cotton robes in colorful prints or long kimono styles in bold stripes, lined with terry toweling cloth. The kimonos have wide, belled-sleeves that make them easy to don and are fastened by belts.

Other styles include pullovers in long, loose lines that almost reach the ankles.

OBVIOUSLY, those good looking robes are fine for use at home and for travel as well as for wear at the sauna.

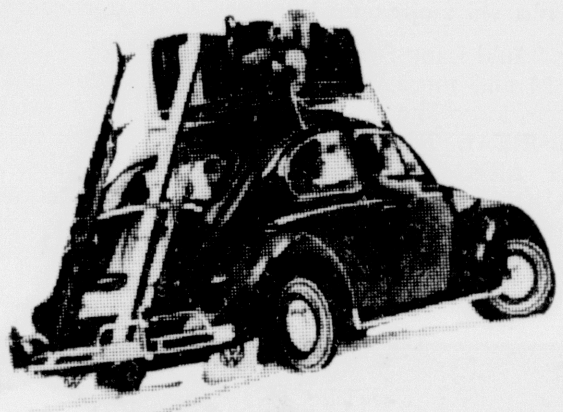

No doubt about it – the somber look is no longer a part of the men's ski scene.

EXPERT skiers pay as much attention to their fashion form as their ski form. This fellow wears the currently popular belted ski jacket in a bright yellow, notes the Men's Fashion Association. It makes a perfect combination with his chocolate brown ski pants.

Snowmobiles Are Newest Thing For Fun-In-The-Snow Crowds

Marinites Have Discovered These Vehicles That Can Go Anywhere

Snowmobiling is the newest "big thing" in outdoor winter sports.

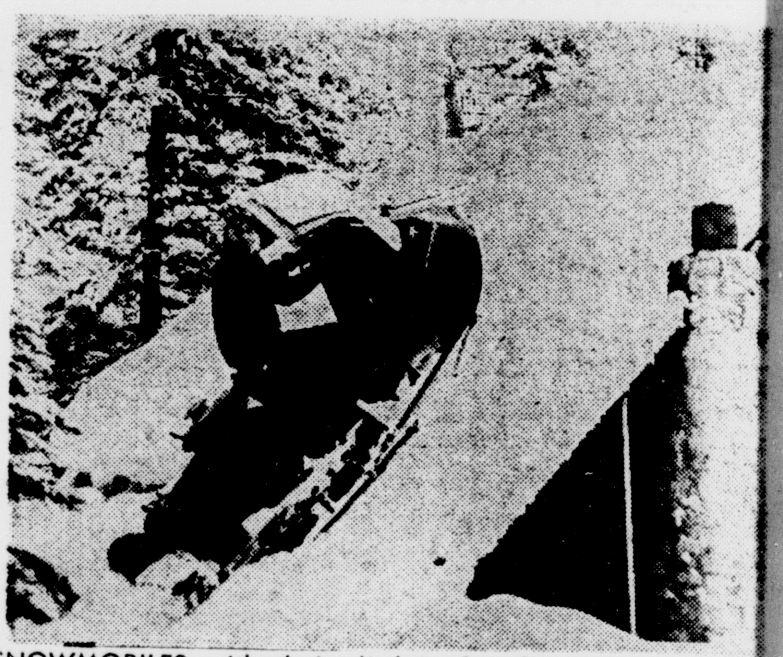

It is a sport for all ages. Those who shudder at the thought of skiing can zip over and through the snow without difficulty in a snowmobile.

And Marinites have discovered the sport, along with other outdoor enthusiasts here and abroad.

AND THIS IS true to the point where they are being sold in Marin. Marinites then transport their snowmobiles to the snow by trailer or pickup truck.

They thus open to themselves a means of "fun for the whole family" that carries them into winter wonderlands that would have formerly been inaccessible to them.

A survey by the Johnson Motors, one of the manufacurers, shows that cabins once closed by winter's first snowfall have been kept open by this jaunty vehicle. Ice fishing spots once hard to reach now are easily accessible with a vehicle that has power for steep hills, and speeds of 35 to 45 miles per hour.

SNOWMOBILES with their disdain for the steepest terrain and the heaviest snowfalls open up a whole new fresh world of white powder to the winter-time adventurer.

EASILY TRAILERED from one location to another, they help the head of the household bring home the trophy of his beer hunt. Mom and the kids easily can reach their favorite

The Snowmobile Grows In Popularity As Winter Sport

ski slopes on this easily handled snow-skimmer.

Where there are no hills, the snowmobile can bring the fun and thrill of ski-joring, with two-ropes pulling skiers on flats at breath-taking pace.

Tobogganing or sleighing, once confined to steep slopes, now brings fun to all menbers of the family through the snowmobile. In many areas the fast vehicle provides the thrill of competition, with smooth, snow-packed lakes providing surfaces for exciting race and "slalom" events.

THE WINTER picnic, unheard of a few years ago, is back in popular standing because of the snowmobile. With the picnic comes the "bonus" of woodland cruises to areas once reached only by skis or snowshoes.

Across the land, thousands of snowmobile clubs have been formed to enjoy cross-country "rallies", snowmobile "gymkhanas", breakfast rides, ski-joring and perhaps a side trip, with favorite shotgun, into a slough, are certain to provide a chance at bagging some meat for the locker.

The popularity of snowmobiling has been startling.

PRIOR TO 1964 (when American families first started to look at snowmobiles) only an estimated 4000 machines were being built by a handful of manufacturers. Since then, the number of companies entering the snow vehicle field has grown to over 30, and the annual volume has swollen to more than 200,000 units.

The dollar volume of the snowmobile market is expected to exceed the 200-million-dollar mark.

Accessories, from special snowmobile suits to tag-along sleighs, alone, will account for 20 million dollars.

MANY OF THE snowmobiles can do 30 to 40 miles an hour, which not too far back, was respectable speed in the family car on good non-snowy highway.

They offer one more good reason why more and more, Marinites, and others, are heading for the snow country on winter weekends and vacations.

Wide Diversity Of Winter Sports Fun Awaits The Lively Ones At The Snow Resorts Of Many Lands

TOBOGANNING IS a winter-time sport not too frequently encountered on the North American continent, but these young people enjoy a race on the lightning-fast runs at Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, Canada.

AMONG ITS MANY enticements for winter sports lovers Norway offers air taxi services, such as this one photographed at Eidsburgaren in the Jotunheimen Mountains, that transport skiers from cities to the deep snows in minutes.

BUILDING A SNOWMAN remains a popular snow country pastime with youngsters and adults alike. So does photography, especially when there are pretty girls around, like this pair at Sun Valley, Idaho.

JUST LOOKING AT the scenery can, in itself, be a most satisfying winter-time preoccupation. Especially when the ground is covered with an as yet unsoiled mantle of snow. The scene here is New Hampshire, part of the New England sector long known for its landscape beauty in autumn and winter.

SOMETIMES ITS FUN just to sit and soak up the sun while watching other skiers exert their energies. The scene here is Courchevel in the booming Alps of France, a resort launched by the great French ski champion Emile Allais.

ONLY THE REALLY daring and experienced indulge in the winter sport of ski jumping. The scene here is an international ski jumping competition at Obersdorf in Germany, scene of some of the most important championships.

SKIING IS BY FAR the most popular of the sports enjoyed by the lively ones in winter. Here a schussboomer seems to be jumping for pure joy on Mount Norquay's slopes in Banff National Park, Alberta, Canada.

NEW ZEALAND offers something different for fun-in-the-snow addicts atop its Mount Raupehu in Tongariro National Park, where skiers can pause for a swim break in the steaming waters of a lake.

ICE SKATING VIES with skiing for the interest of vacationers in many Swiss winter resorts where natural rinks such as this one enjoy a brisk and animated patronage.

The Skier's Dream-- A Redwood Chalet

The last decade has seen a 300 per cent increase in ski and snow addiction among Americans.

One result of this winter-time-weekend mass exodus to the mountains is that more and more ski buffs are building their own accommodations—call them vacation homes, cabins, huts or chalets—in the high country. Many Marinites are included in that number.

And, in the West, at least, redwood remains a favorite material for these snow country shelters.

This is because carefree existence requires a carefree mode of living and as a building material, redwood is particularly suited to the rigors of snow country climate. It will not shrink, swell, warp or split despite extreme changes of temperature.

FOR REDWOOD is truly a carefree material. Mountain homeowners are finding they can insure more time on the slopes, or more time just sitting in front of the fireplace, with the use of redwood in their retreat.

Annual maintenance, painting? Forget it.

Natural extractives in every cell of redwood heartwood resist termite and decay damage with unequaled determination. Lacking the volatile oils and resins present in conventional woods, redwood is naturally resistant to fire.

Heating costs are reduced in these redwood "resorts" because the wood's unique cellular structure provides an extra margin of natural insulation.

AND NO WOOD surpasses redwood in its ability to take and hold a wide variety of finishes. If left unfinished, redwood will weather dramatically and beautifully into a soft, driftwood gray.

Building a redwood retreat can be far less expensive than you would imagine. And land in these mountain areas is an excellent investment. As the second home boom continues, land values can only increase.

A redwood ski house can also serve as a steady source of income. Even the most avid ski enthusiasts can't manage to ski every weekend of the long season. The demand for ski cabin rentals is high, and accordingly the rents received for even a single weekend are astronomical.

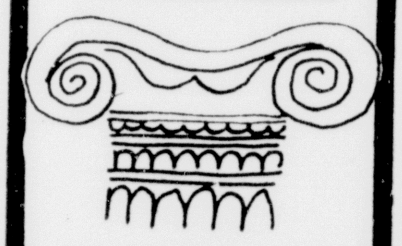

Renting your cabin is just as easy in the spring and summer months, when your maintenance-free ski chalet becomes a maintenance-free summer home.

ONCE YOU'VE decided to build a redwood ski house, the rest falls into place in logical sequence. Pick a location -- near the ski slopes or toboggan runs --, then buy the land. Find an architect, or obtain blueprints and plans from any of a number of available sources.

BEAUTY and distinction alone make this ski house a winner. Add to that extensive use of redwood siding and you have a low-maintenance, beautiful, distinctive ski cabin that will gracefully watch season after season schuss by. Some Driving Tips For Snow Country

. Most Marinites headed for the snow country are bound for a driving environment in which they are relative neophytes.

Heavy traffic, yes? But snowy, icy, slippery roads, they are unaccustomed to.

For such as these, the National Automobile Club from its San San Francisco office offers these driving-in-bad-weather conditions tips:

DON'T LEAVE for the snow country empty-handed. Why leave easier driving to luck? Prepare for it by making sure your car is prepared for it too. Equip it with certain supplies, such as anti-freeze in the radiator, enough solution in your windshield washers, and reinforced tire chains, to prevent getting stuck in the snow.

Now's a good time to check the mechanical condition of your car. Start with your tires. What to look for is smooth treads. Such treads are dangerous, fail to hold the road well. Change those bad tires.

. With the existence of such a deadly gas as carbon monoxide, be the wise one who looks at his exhaust, checking closely for a leak. No matter how cold outside, drive with at least one window partially rolled down.

. HOW ABOUT your seeing aids? Poor visibility causes many an accident in snow country. Since keeping the windshield and interior windows clear is a job for both the heater and the defroster, thoroughly check their condition. And that of your lights too, all of them, including your directional signals. Don't forget your windshield wipers either, making sure they can wipe without streaking or smearing. Peering through a dirty windshield means flirting with death.

. Let's say you've taken your first overnight stop in snow country. It's the following morning and you turn on the engine. Everything's fine for about five or 10 minutes. Suddenly the radiator begins steaming. Before it boils over, hurry to the nearest gasoline station. You probably don't have enough anti-freeze.

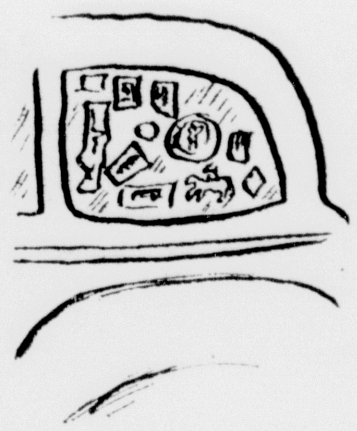

. Out on the road again, get the feel of it while driving at a low speed. Away from other traffic, accelerate carefully to detect any spinning of the wheels, brake to detect skidding.

. When stopping or slowing down, don't jam on the brakes. This only invites skidding. Instead, pump your brakes, giving the pedal hard, rapid pushes. Such action lets your wheels roll, lets you maintain steering control.

. IN THE PRESENCE of snow, reject the maximum speed limit. Reduce your speed to meet the conditions of the road.

. Never "tailgate" in snow country, or anywhere for that matter. It's a common mistake, a costly mistake. To avoid paying with your life, leave plenty of room between your car and the one ahead.

. On clear, dry roads, you safely allow one car length for every 10 miles an hour of speed. On a snow-covered highway, you need up to 12 times more distance to stop. So adjust your following distance accordingly.

If your car does skid, don't lose your nerve. There are ways you can handle it. And there are ways you shouldn't handle it. Turn the front wheels in the direction of the skid, and again the club warns you against slamming on the brakes.

COLIN HUGH ROGERS, left, an American Field Service exchange student from Bristol, England, attending Tamalpais High School this year, listens as Ivan R. Cousins, Sausalito antiques dealer and expert, explains the origins and workmanship of one of his prized pieces, an Early American tool tray. Cousins is among the exhibitors and Rogers among the volunteer workers for the antique show and sale being held this weekend at the Peacock Gap Country Club, San Rafael, for the benefit of the international scholarship program of the Tam Chapter of American Field Service.

Early American Antiques Fascinate Ivan R. Cousins

Marin Shop Is Filled With Fine Pieces Crafted In New England

To step into the small antiques shop operated by Ivan R. Cousins on Sausalito's Caledonia Street is to step back into the old New England of the 18th and 19th centuries.

Early American furniture and art pieces hold a special fascination for Cousins.

Cousins, born in Massachusetts, smiles: "I guess it's my New England background. I grew up in an area where I was surrounded by these fine things, and with a desire to share them with others."

COUSINS IS ONE of 25 California antiques dealers participating this weekend in the Second Annual Antiques Show and Sale at the Peacock Gap Country Club, San Rafael, benefitting the scholarship program of the Tamalpais Chapter of the American Field Service Student Exchange Program.

The show and sale opened yesterday at the club at 333 Biscayne Drive, and is continuing today, 1 to 10 p.m. and tomorrow, 1 to 6 p.m. Some of Cousins' most cherished acquisitions are on display there.

Cousins' mustard-green and yellow shop is rich with memorabilia of America's history and heritage, most of it dating back to before California was a state.

MUCH OF IT crossed the plains from the East in covered wagons, or was carried aboard sailing ships around the Horn.

Cousins with his New England background is perfectly at home among the fine pieces hewn and crafted from maple and pine. Yet, while admitting a decided

FOR IVAN COUSINS, the pride and joy of his Sausalito antiques shop is this chair, part of a set, all in fine condition, that he owns. He tells Colin Rogers of the document he also owns, detailing their history back to Ohio where they were handcrafted in the early 1800s.

"WHAT'S THIS?" asks Colin Rogers of Ivan Cousins. And Cousins explains that it is a dowelled screw hole in an Early American Windsor chair of the 19th Century. It was carefully constructed of pine wood with an especially fine texture, grain and finish, and is a handsome piece.

A TIGER MAPLE chest of drawers with knobs of matching wood is admired by Ivan Cousins and Colin Rogers. Cousins says the top is the biggest single piece of tiger maple, found in Eastern United States where nature gives it the striped effect, he has ever seen used for furniture.

A CLOSER LOOK at the trencher that can be seen atop the chest in the photo on the left is taken by Ivan Cousins and Colin Rogers. To the British youth, the pomegranates are a new and strange fruit, but he finds them pleasingly decorative. (Photos by Richard De Lew)

AN EARLY AMERICAN end table in a beautiful golden color and with a satin feeling is admired by Colin Rogers and Ivan Cousins. The table, built from New England pine as a family heirloom in the mid-1800s, holds a salt glaze pitcher formerly used to fetch milk.

AN UNUSUAL three-legged chair made by a sailor prior to 1900 from pieces of wood—ash, hemlock, hickory and golden oak—found in the Pacific Ocean, stands beside a trunk stripped of its heavy canvas and refinished so that its shell of natural pine now shows.

THIS DOLL OF German origin, with paper mache body, arms and legs, and with bisque head and face, is included in the Ivan Cousins collection. The doll has moveable eyes, an open mouth and human hair made from tresses of the early 1900s when women first bobbed their hair. The dress is a baby girl's, size one, of the 1920s.

partiality for Early American, he says: "I really feel a home should have mixture of things, because if you have only one time of furniture and decor in your house, you create the look and atmosphere of a museum rather than a home."

Cousins opened his Sausalito shop three years ago with a background in merchandising and handling fine fabrics and objects of art.

AND HE CAN recall in detail most of the finest and most interesting antiques that have passed through his hands through the years.

He and his wife Dorothy reside in Sausalito. They have two teen-age children, daughter Phila, a student at Radcliffe College, and son Sam, a sophomore at Tamalpais High School.

Cousins says he has two hobbies -- piano-playing and service to young people.

And, not surprisingly, when he sits down to the piano, he sometimes plays "Bicycle Built for Two" or "In the Good Old Summer Time," celebrating the era that the Early American pieces in his antiques shop recall.

BUT HE IS also quite capable of playing Beethoven, Bach or Brahms, or one of the songs made popular by the Beatles or Johnny Cash.

His keen interest in young people is reflected by his enthusiastic participation in the current American Field Service benefit antiques show and sale.

Cousins does not find it strange that his own interest in the welfare of young people is shared by many other antiques dealers who are also taking part in the show and sale.

"An interest and appreciation of our American future rests with how well our homes turn out our children. In fact, instilling an awareness of our heritage is one of the best steps that can be taken in guiding our children in the right direction."

HE ENDORSES wholeheartedly the American Field Service motto:

"Walk together, talk together; then and only then can we have peace."

Somehow, Cousins feels, the founding fathers and the Early Americans who came before and after them, creating and using the fine furniture that is to be seen in his shop, would have been equally committed to such a principle.

The Maverick Priest—

AS I LIVE AND BREATHE by Malcolm Boyd; Random House, 276 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

Rev. Boyd seems to have some credentials for writing an autobiography at age 45 years. He has become a prominent national figure, and controversial, in the past 10 years.

Grist for his biographical mill includes freedom rides, jazz festival poetry recitals, nightclub prayer sessions, ghetto riots, beatnik boites, hippie happenings and scrapes with Episcopal Church authorities.

Malcolm Boyd's story begins with brief glimpses of a bright, lonely child deserted by his father. Little mention is made of his mother and childhood scenes and experiences.

He was an outsider in his teen-age years, but a Big-Man-On-Campus at the University of Arizona. He was caught cheating in an exam ("I needed to cheat because I simply never studied") and nearly expelled for publishing "a particularly dirty issue" of the campus magazine.

After graduation, Boyd went to work for an advertising agency in Hollywood supervising several radio programs. Prominence came quickly. He befriended celebrities, started his own business and "dated very beautiful young starlets."

Reviews Of New Reading

Not fulfilled in the secular world, Boyd entered divinity school in Berkeley and was ordained an Episcopal priest in 1954. Studies at Oxford followed, then a period in continental monasteries.

The reflections and impressions about himself, religious life and monastic customs in this brief episode are the best part of the book.

In 1956, Reverend Boyd became pastor of a run-down parish in Indianapolis. He painted the church doors bright red to lift morale but incurred resentment instead.

He tried to bring black and white parishioners together at a party to which 150 blacks came—and five whites. Boyd fled the fiasco but forced himself to go back. This is one of the few honest, touching moments in a narrative where the author is usually admiring himself as he suffers.

A few years later he was the "Expresso Priest," then the "Beatnik Priest." Boyd had moved from parish to campus at Colorado State University and Wayne University, Detroit—with quick forays to the "beat" scene in North Beach. His coffee house colloquies with students amid a muffle of bongo drums became his way of espousing "armpit theology."

Here at the halfway point Boyd's autobiography loses its chronology and much coherence. In scenes reminiscent of "Last Year at Marienbad," Boyd is freedom-riding in Mississippi, engaging black militants in eyeball-to-eyeball dialogue, writing and staging one-act plays on racism, picketing, and dancing on a San Francisco beach at dawn while hippies mate.

He espouses a symbodium of causes. At times one cause stems from another sans continuity or explanation.

"While I was on a hunger strike protesting nuclear testing..." is all we read about that topic. There are winning moments of candor, insight, trenchancy. Too often a thick slice of bologna is then quickly served. He's been to the ghettoes, talked to the radicals, listened to the young. Having done this, Boyd rightly believes he deserves an audience.

Sadly, he flubs his opportunity in a welter of self-praise and self-pity in lieu of meaningful insights and spiritual hope.

MALCOLM BOYD, controversial priest and author of inspirational books, has now written his autobiography under the title "As I Live and Breathe."

'The Most Indigenous Of All The American Cooking'

SOUL FOOD COOK BOOK by Bob Jeffries; Bobbs-Merrill, 116 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

"Soul food" is very much an "in cuisine" these days, and for more reasons than its well—known economy. It also makes for some very tasty eating.

Bob Jeffries, who went from medicine show man to chef and caterer, notes in the introduction to this book:

"What makes soul food unique — and more indigenous to this country than any other so-called American cooking style — is that it was created and evolved almost without European influence. It differs from southern food in its use of plain ingredients, its ways with inexpensive cuts of meat and its original uses for what was available — fresh-caught fish, rabbit and possum, truck garden vegetables, easy-growing yams, sweet potatoes and corn."

Jeffries then proceeds to trot out a long list of examples of this substantial, no-nonsense fare, and to recite their recipes.

Present are such "soul food" standbys as chit'lins, hog's head cheese, pigs' tails, collard greens, corn dodgers and barbecued spareribs.

Not all the suggestions will immediately tempt your taste buds. They sound "too different" from our regular fare. But a good many sound mouth-watering. And no doubt many that do not would win one over, if given a fair taste test.

Anyway, Jeffries' recipes are the bonafide thing, the real cooking of Southern Negroes, who had to do with very little, and being imaginative, did some amazingly good things.

"Soul Food" rates witht jazz as a major contribution to our country's culture from our black population.

"Why Don't Colors Hold Up On So Many Garments?"

It would appear that if we can place men on the moon we should be able to color fabrics so that the color will remain. However, the National Institute of Drycleaning Textile Analysis Laboratory reports that customer-negligence is responsible for much of the color-change complaints it receives.

Among the chief causes are improper use of bleach, spillage of hair-setting solution on clothing, perfume applied to a fabric and antiperspirants on garments.

Color loss, change or fading in the fabric itsef was high, too. Some popular colors have poor color-fastness. Abrasion was the greatest cause of color loss with water-soluable dyes next. In color-fading, N.I.D. found that pigment prints were the greatest cause with sun-light fading next.

Plan your colorful garment purchases with these color-loss causes in mind. You'll enjoy the new colors longer. However, your drycleaner anticipates the increased use of color by both men and women will bring him increased color-loss complaints.

From Middle-Roader To Firebrand Union Leader

BLOOD BROTHERHOOD by John Van Der Zee; Harcourt, Brace & World, 248 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

This is the saga of a lost-in-th-crowd colorless minor union official, transformed in a short period to fiery leader. Joe Burke had known for a long time and worked in the shadow of Baxter Bragg, a union radical and liberal who got his via anonymous shotgun.

While author Van Der Zee writes a plausible enough story, the transformation of Burke, a sort of middle-aged has-been, into the bearded firebrand Burke, is not convincing.

Burke has lived too long in the middle of the road and for too long has hoped his love affair will blossom into marriage, to become overnight the banner-carrier for the anti-union headquarters faction, the one that won't play footsy with management.

Too, Burke, a widower and father of a 17-year-old son, has too much to lose on that score — although in the glory of fiction he would provide handsomely for both paramour and son.

There are scenes though, that can not be laid to waste: the desolation of men without work during a strike, the futility of some union meetings, the drama and spark of others.

Practically nothing of the locale—the Bay Area, but mainly San Francisco — is evident. It could be Boise or Boston even down to fictitious counties. Why, if the author identifies San Francisco, Oakland as cities and some counties, does he claim Marin as Madrone?

But be that as it may, nice-guy Burke could never be an exposive boss-hating Burke.

This one goes to the bottom of the list.

Chalk Up One Victory For Adventure Over Security

By DON KEOWN

TRAVELS WITH MY AUNT by Graham Greene; Viking, 244 pages, $5.95.

Graham Greene's "Travels With My Aunt" is a rollicking fun romp over much of the globe that at the same time touches upon one of the more fundamental tugs of our time — the tussle between conformity and non-conformity, between respectability and individuality, between security and adventure, between the home fireside and faraway places.

In Greene's novel, security and home are represented by one Henry Pulling, retired bank manager, dahlia grower, English middle class.

"I was afraid of burglars and Indian thugs and snakes and fires and Jack the Ripper" he muses later, "when I should have been afraid of 30 years in a bank . . . and a premature retirement."

On the side of adventure and non-conformity is the unlikely person of septuagenarian Aunt Agatha Bertram, footloose and fanciful, traveler, romantic, teller of juicy tales, and tolerant of "trivial illegalities."

Nephew and aunt meet after a long separation at the funeral of Henry's unlamented mother. Before long, Aunt Agatha is tempting the staid and stayed-put Henry from his cottage and his dahlias. Their journeys begin modestly, first to Brighton. But before long they are on the continent, then in Turkey (briefly before being expelled), and finally they wind up in South America in, of all places, Paraguay among smugglers and war criminals.

All the while Aunt Agatha is telling her stories of the variety of men who have made up her past. Some begin to reappear. But the most intriguing of them all is Wordsworth, her black American protege with a strange love and devotion for this much older woman and a secondary affection for "pot."

Wordsworth is only the most memorable of a whole assortment of original and peculiar characters, including one CIA agent (or is he?) with a compulsion for some unique statistic-keeping.

At first, Henry is shocked by these people of so different a culture and moral stripe. Then he is intrigued. And finally he is won over.

Liberated from a drab life? Or corrupted from a good life? Well, that is for the reader to make his own determination, based, doubtlessly, upon his own inclinations and secret ambitions.

Despite that underlying theme, Greene's latest novel is more humor in the vein of "Our Man in Havana," though exaggerated, than it is a stock thriller of "The Third Man" kind. The book is replete with clever, witty little nuggets. Indeed, for a time, the reader tends in savoring these to become preoccupied at the expense of the main story line.

Comments Aunt Agatha in the midst of one of her recollections: "I sometimes believe in a Higher Power, even though I am a Catholic."

And Henry sees teen-age Tooley, the American girl encountered on the Orient Express, thusly: ". . .her eyes bulged like a Pekinese dog's, but they were pretty nonetheless. They had in them what used to be called by my generation a sexy look, but this might have been caused by short sight or constipation."

The reader eventually overcomes these distractions to concentrate upon Greene's wild plot.

In his new life, Henry Pulling looks back: "It was as though I had escaped from an open prison, had been snatched away, provided with a rope ladder and a waiting car, into my aunt's world, the world of the unexpected character and the unforeseen event."

Or as he admits to Agatha: "I have been very happy . . . but I have been so bored for so long."

And he quotes Tennyson: "Death is the end of life; ah, why should life all labour be?"

We leave Henry Pulling far from his dahlias, deeply involved in smuggling and preparing to wed the 16-year-old daughter of the customs chief.

And who is to disagree then with Henry—and Robert Browning—that: "God's in his heaven—All's right with the world!"?

RANDOM HOUSE has published "Good Times" ($4), a collection of verse by the black poet Lucille Clifton. The reader is offered a more penetrating inside look at ghetto life than most novels provide—as a place where "Good Times" are when "My daddy has paid the rent and the insurance man is gone and the lights is back on and my uncle Brud has hit for one dollar straight . . ."

BUSY DOVER Publications has added four nature guides to its vast list of reference book reprints. They are:

GRAHAM GREENE has written in his "Travels With My Aunt" his first novel since 1965. Viking is the publisher. (Photo by Ottawa Karsh)

"Winter Botany" by William Trelease, "Our Northern Shrubs" by Harriet Keeler, "Plant Materials of Decorative Gardening" by Trelease, and "Rocky Mountain Trees" by Richard J. Preston.

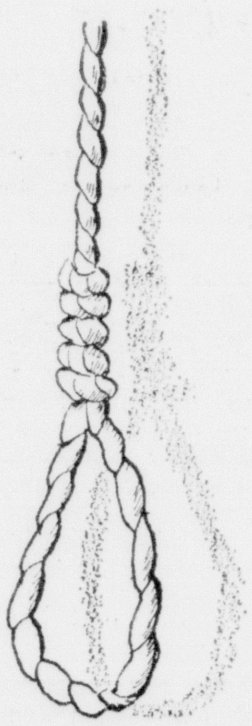

The books all first appeared earlier in this century, and all are regarded as definitive works in their fields. None is aimed at our geographical region, yet each contains information of general interest to botanists, especially to those who travel to and study in other areas. "Rocky Mountain Trees," for instance, would be invaluable on any foray into the forests of that rugged tree-studded region.

THE LITERARY Guild has announced a special double selection for winter for its subscribers in Ira Levin's novel, "This Perfect Day," and Ellin Berlin's novel, "The Best of Families."

Sleuths & Suspense

IN THE HOUR BEFORE MIDNIGHT by Jack Higgins; Doubleday, 185 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

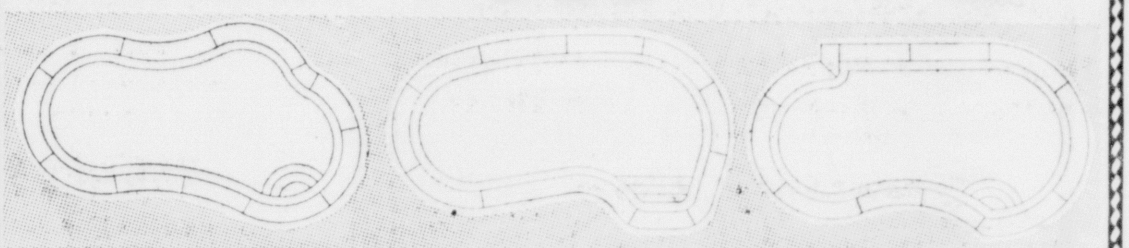

Stacy Wyatt knew Sicily because after his American father died he and his mother went there to live with Wyatt's grandfather, a rich man, a big figure in the mafia. Wyatt knew of murder because his mother died in a bombed car. That was when he ran away.

A few years later he was drawn back to take part in a dangerous job involving a kidnapping. He still knew Sicily and its way of life, the murder and hazards. But he didn't know about people until it was almost too late.

Just after he had lead a crew of adventurers by night parachute drop into the rugged hills in search of a kidnapped heiress he began to put pieces of a nagging puzzle together. And after more than a brush with death, he seeks revenge, bloody and murderous.

This is an action-packed story with a fiery ending.

The Azalea Show Is On Right Now At Your Nursery

These Beauties Give You Color For More Than Half The Year

If you are one of those who thinks of the azalea as a spring bloomer only, you have only to visit a nursery right now to get straightened out.

You'll find many of the most beautiful azaleas in bloom at this time. Some of them began blooming in the early fall. And the show will continue in the spring.

In all their different varieties, azaleas can claim a flowering span of more than half a year.

THE ONES IN bloom now belong to a class called Belgian Indicas, a varied group of hybrids with mostly double flowers and a wide range ofcolors. Hues range from glistening white to salmon to rose pink to deep reds. These are shade lovers. And, like all azaleas, they want rich, acid, well-drained soil.

Scheduled for later bloom are the Southern Indicas or so-called Sun Azaleas. While they do not like blazing sun, they can take a great deal more of it than the Belgian Indicas and still thrive.

They bloom here from March to June and produce large-size blooms in a dazzling color array.

KURUME AZALEAS with tight foliage and bright blooms, are also worth looking for. So are the deciduous Mollis hybrids, popular in this area.

For any and all of these, provide soil that is well-drained and rich in leaf mold, peat moss or bark, and regular feedings. Your nurseryman can recommend an acid-type plant food and a feeding schedule.

'The same holds true for that other beautiful shrub with a huge Marin following, the rhododendron.

CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

Violas and pansies can still be set out over a bulb bed. And fairy primrose can go in for early spring borders in shaded beds.

Give peach trees the first of two sprayings now to prevent peach leaf curl.

Plant the deciduous (Chinese, Saucer, etc.) magnolias for a sudden burst of bloom when the weather warms up.

Sharp shears are the greatest asset in pruning roses, trees and shrubs, a job you should be doing now.

Winter feeding will often do surprising things toward improving the appearance of a bedraggled lawn.

Bulbs and roots for planting now include Lily of the Valley, amaryllis hybrids, hardy lilies and cannas.

Most nurseries now have roots or divisions of artichokes and rhubarb for your vegetable garden.

Gladiolus bulbs may be planted any time from now into early summer for a succession of bloom.

Winter daphne is coming into bloom now. Select yours and give it a well-drained spot near the house where you can enjoy its fragrance and flowers.

That Much-Abused Tool—The Hand Saw

No matter how many power tools a do-it-yourselfer has in his home workshop, he knows that there are times when only one of the basic hand tools will do the job.

Included among the necessities in such a workshop are such things as hammers, screwdrivers, bit braces and saws .

Of these, the ordinary hand saw is perhaps the most abused, getting dull much quicker than it should because it often is not used properly.

ENTIRELY ASIDE from the matter of wear and tear on the saw is that of wear and tear on the user. When a saw isn't used as it should be, sawing becomes difficult, requiring extra physical effort and producing a poor result.

For the most common kind of sawing—cross-cutting—the saw should be held at an angle of 45 degrees, that is, 45 degrees between the handle and the table, sawhorse or stand on which the wood is being cut.

The saw cut is started by drawing the saw backward until a notch is started, then cutting up and down. If the saw leaves the cutting line, twist the handle slightly and draw it back to the line. Saw with an even, rhythmic stroke.

IN RIPPING WOOD, about 60 degrees in the corrtct angle between the saw and the work.

While holding the saw at the correct angle is a vital ingredient to easy and successful sawing, two other factors are involved: using the proper type of saw and using one that is sharp.

Use a cross-cut saw or a rip saw depending on the kind of cut being made. A rip saw generally has less points per inch. Also, the teeth are shaped like chisels, whereas those of a cross-cut saw are more like knife points.

Once a saw gets dull, it is better to have it sharpened professionally unless you have the knowhow. It may be more economical to buy a new saw.

A COARSE SAW is better for fast work and green wood. A fine saw is better for smooth accurate cutting and dry seasoned wood.

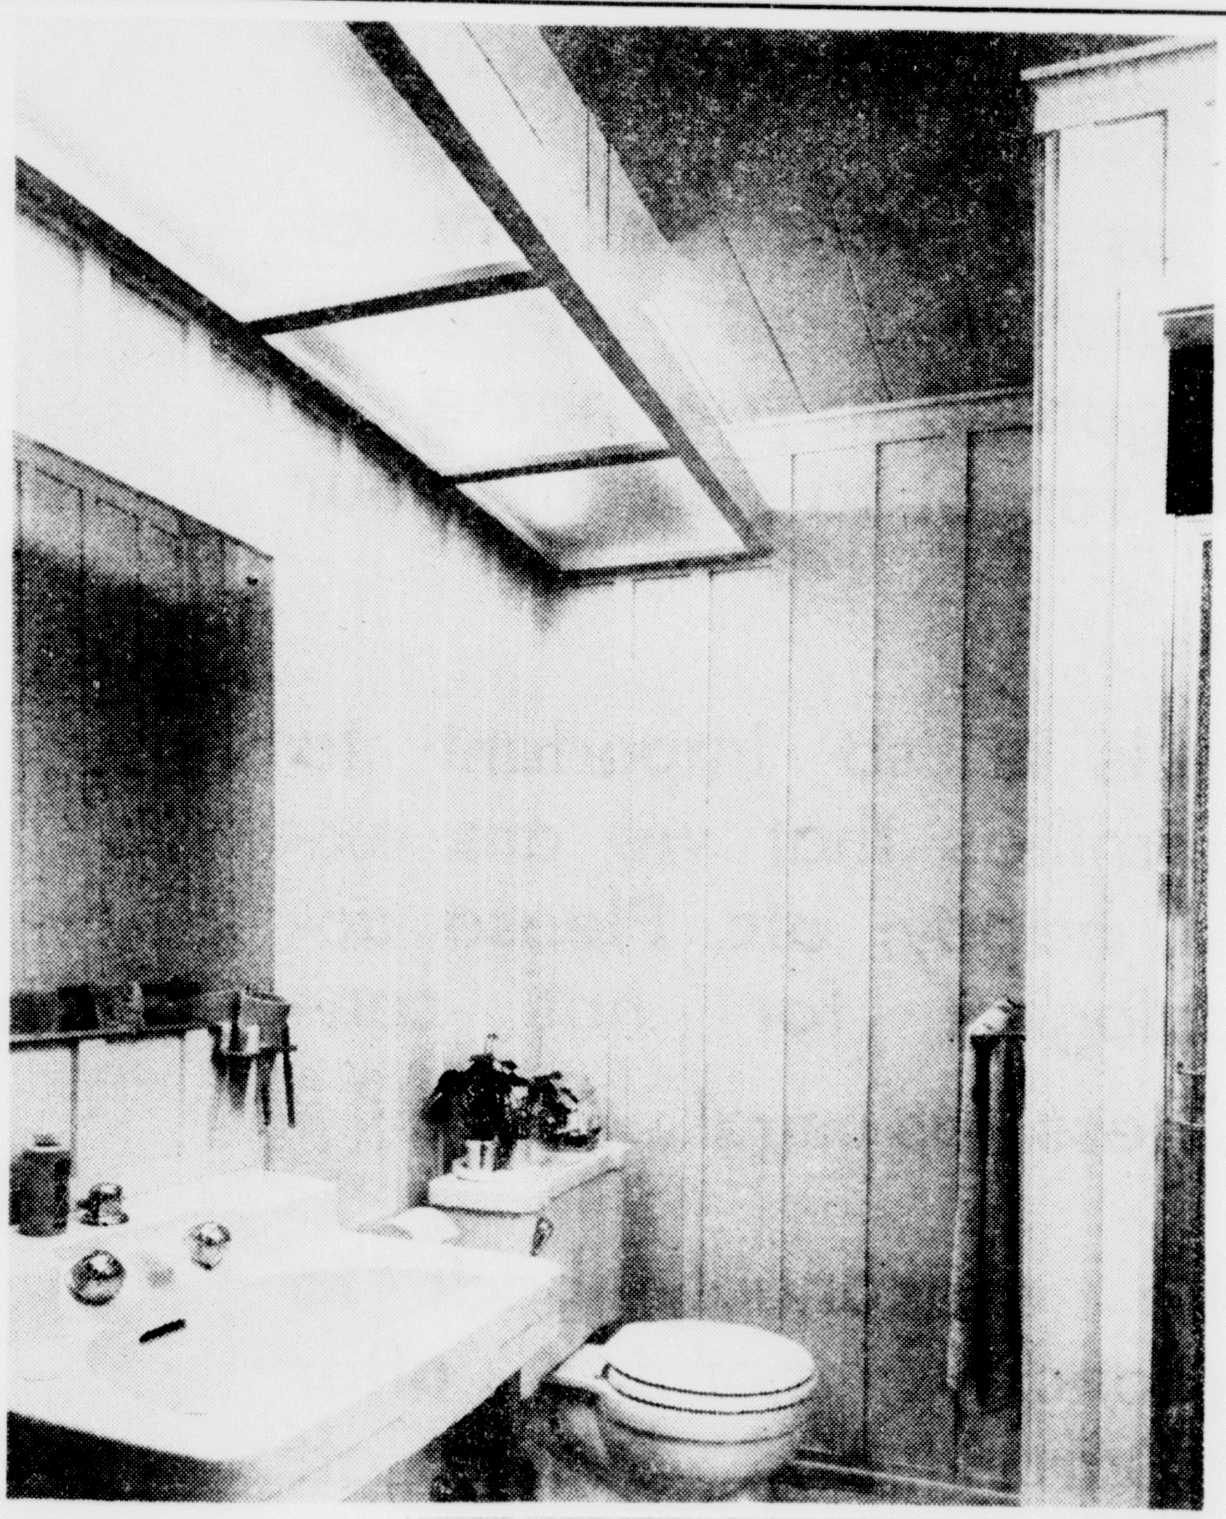

When cutting to a line, be sure you cut on the wrong side of the line to allow for the width of the cut. The kerf will be wider that the saw, since saw teeth are set, with every other tooth bent to the right and those between to the left.

If teeth were not set, the saw would bind quickly and often.

FOR CUTTING curves, use a compass or keyhole saw. A web or turning saw is for cutting irregularly curved shapes. The same is true of the coping saw, which is particularly good for thin wood.

For fine, accurate straight cutting on small pieces of wood, use a back saw, which is a thin cross cut saw with fine teeth, stiffened by a thick back.

Handyman's Page

A BATHROOM often tattles on a house's age, condition. Modern fixtures, paneling, lighting can do wonders to transform it. Soffit installation provides good over-all lighting. Painted cedar board-and-batten paneling offers durability, easy care and dress-up values. A modern ventilation system is yet another most worthwhile improvement. Such renovation will more than pay for itself in added value to your home in many cases. (Photo from Western Wood Products Assn.)

A New Look For An Old Bathroom

No other room in the house is as tell-tale as the bathroom. Chipped, ungainly fixtures, archaic tile and inadequate lighting are a sure sign of neglect that only a beauty treatment can cure.

Renovation isn't purely a matter of aesthetics; it also does away with most of the old scrub-a-dub necessary for hygiene.

SIZE NEEDN'T be a limiting factor, either. Good planning and arrangement of the major facilities are far more important.

A stall shower takes little space, yet provides the ultimate in convenience. Translucent shower doors prevent splashes more effectively than a flapping curtain and are easily kept in pristine cleanliness.

Poor lighting is the simplest problem to overcome. There are many ways to ensure adequate illumination without creating a glare. Neon tubes behind the frosted panels of a dropped-ceiling fixture spread a healthy glow. The framework of the fixture can be tailored to match the walls or ceiling.

WITH MODERN ventilation systems, there's no longer any need to be confined to the same trite choices in wall surfacing. Exhaust fans carry off the dangers of condensation.

There's no escaping the intrinsic coldness of porcelain fixtures, but they can be warmed by the natural beauty and texture of wood paneling.

Tough polyurethane finishes make it as practical as laminated plastic. Commercial sealer is recommended around the bath or inside a shower stall.

WESTERN RED cedar is a sturdy yet attractive wood for walls and ceiling. It can be finished clear or painted any shade to bring out the best features of the room.

Choices in style of paneling abound. Board and batten walls create an intriguing and unusual background—and a comparatively inexpensive one. Finished with a satiny light-toned paint and topped with a ceiling of matching eight-inch boards, it expands and lightens a small room.
